Grand Jury Investigates Oil Prices In D. C. Area

Representatives Of 10 Firms Heard As Alleged 'Fixing' Probe Is Opened

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

Representatives of 10 gasoline and oil companies were summoned before a grand jury here yesterday as part of the widening Government probe of alleged anti-trust law violations.

Another grand jury has been hearing evidence since last Wednesday in a Justice Department investigation of the Nation's real estate brokers.

The April grand jury was recalled for an investigation of alleged price fixing and other anti-trust law violations in the sale and distribution of gasoline in the District and Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Firms Named

This jury yesterday heard testimony from spokesmen for American Oil Co., Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Independent Oil Co., Shell Oil Co., Tidewater Associated Oil Co., Cities Service Co., Sinclair Refining Co., Gulf Oil Co., Texas and Sun Oil Cos.

W. B. Watson Snyder, special assistant to the Attorney General, and Willard R. Memler, Justice Department attorney, who are conducting the probe, asked the witnesses to identify themselves and also records they had brought before the jury.

The records concerned the price, supply and taxes on gasoline distributed in the District and the two nearby Maryland counties. It was reported that the subpenas had called for records dating back only to last January 1.

Snyder, unlike Victor H. Kramer, who has been entrusted by the Justice Department with the real estate probe, gave reporters the general outline of the gasoline price investigation.

He said the probe, which was ordered by Attorney General Tom Clark, has as its main objective the determination of whether the gasoline companies fixed prices in the Washington area in violation of the antitrust laws.

Snyder said the Government intends to examine all correspondence and records of the oil companies relating to prices, supply and taxes on gasoline in the District and the two Maryland counties.

29 Ordered to Appear

He declared that 39 witnesses have been ordered to appear before the grand jury and estimated that the investigation will last two or three weeks.

Witnesses subpenaed yesterday were:

American Oil Co.—W. C. Connelly, division manager for the District, Maryland and Virginia, and Attorneys C. H. Thompson of Baltimore and H. E. Chaffetz of Washington.

Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey—Attorney C. Horace Tuttle of New York.

Tidewater Associated Oil Co.—A. D. Webster, local manager.

Cities Service Co.—E. W. Lang

'Niblick Cuts Divot In Wife's Scalp; Golfer Takes 90

Mrs. Nattie Smith, 321 McLean ave. sw., will be a "golf widow" for the next 90 days, it was decided in Municipal Court yesterday.

Her husband, Medell Smith, 46, faced Judge George D. Neilson on charges that he hit Nattie over the head with a broken niblick golf stick, and hurled the club at her as she fled down stairs, cutting her scalp.

Smith testified that he loves golf so much that he lost his head completely when his wife broke his favorite club, hence the assault. He chose to serve 90 days rather than pay a $100 fine.

The Gallup Poll

Many Like Eisenhower, Whether Republican or Democrat, Ike Both Amused, Disturbed by His 'Presidential Candidacy'

Doubt About General's Party Label Makes Him Mystery Man of 1948, but He Stands High With Working Classes of America

Princeton, N. J. Aug. 26.—The mystery man of the 1948 presidential campaign is Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The country isn't sure whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. But a very substantial number of voters in both parties think he ought to run for President.

When the general accepted the presidency of Columbia University, starting next year, speculation about his political future immediately began. It was argued that by leaving the Army he would become "available" for the 1948 presidential race, although General Eisenhower himself has remained strictly silent on the subject.

In view of the speculation, the institute sounded out the attitudes of the Nation's voters toward the famous war hero as a possible political leader. From coast to coast a cross-section of the electorate was asked:

"Do you regard General Eisenhower as a Republican or a Democrat?"

The percentage who think he is a Democrat is neatly balanced by the percentage who believe him a Republican, although by far the largest number say they just can't make up their minds what he is.

Think Eisenhower is a Republican	22%
Think he is a Democrat	20
Don't know	58

There's a tendency for Democratic voters to claim him as a Democrat and for Republicans to claim him as a member of their team. The general hails from Kansas, a strongly Republican State, where a number of Republicans are reported to be setting the stage for an Eisenhower boom.

The fact that the general is comparatively free from traditional political tags may enhance his pulling power as a candidate with the people, although it might limit support for him from party machines and bosses.

In any case, about one third of the Nation's voters would like to see him run in 1948.

Would you like to see General Eisenhower become a candidate for President in 1947?

The vote:	Pct.
Yes	35
No	48
No opinion	17

However, comparatively few voters in either party have up to now given much thought to General Eisenhower as a possible candidate.

That is shown by the fact that when the Institute has in recent months asked voters, "What man would you like to see elected President in 1948?" only 4 per cent of Republicans with opinions and 6 per cent of Democrats volunteer his name. One reason, undoubtedly, is that there has been less publicity about him as a possible candidate than about such men as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Harold E. Stassen, President Truman and others who lead the field of popular choices.

One very important asset of General Eisenhower is his popularity with the working classes. In today's survey the occupation group showing the highest vote in favor of his becoming a candidate is the manual worker group.

That is the section of the pop-

NLRB Rejects Union's Taft Law Affidavit

Pattern Makers Say Non-Communist Oath Will Create 'Czar'

By The Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday spurned a union effort to throw out the type of non-communism affidavit which it requires of all union officers under the Taft-Hartley Act.

President George Q. Lynch of the AFL Pattern Makers League charged the Government's form of affidavit follows "a totalitarian technique" and offered a substitute of his own union which condemned all forms of dictatorship.

The board rejected Lynch's idea and sent him a new supply of its own for himself and the officers of his 14,000 super-skilled pattern makers.

The affidavits declare the signers are not Communists and do not advocate overthrow of the Government by illegal methods. They are required of all officers of a union in order for it to share in the board's services.

Hints Lewis Would Be "Czar"

Lynch declared the plan would put his pattern makers "under a czar." This would come about, he contended through a ruling by Robert N. Denham, NLRB general counsel, that all 15 members of the AFL executive council must sign. Otherwise the unions under them would not be entitled to the board's facilities.

"It is rumored that a John L. Lewis, thirteenth vice president of the AFL, refuses to sign the Communist disclaimer and that his union has withdrawn cases previously filed in regional offices of the NLRB," Lynch said in a letter to Denham. Lewis is a member of the AFL council.

"The Taft-Hartley advocates assured us that Public Law 101 would curb the dictatorial powers of so-called 'labor czars.' Your ruling, sir, places the Pattern Makers League under a czar for the first time within its 60 years of constitutional self-government. You have created the opportunity for any Gromyko on the AFL to say 'no'."

Lynch's union consists of the Chief of Staff Can't Withdraw Because He's Not a Nominee

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower will not authorize anybody to propose him for the presidential nomination in '48.

Since that is his position, he doesn't see how the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia next year could nominate him for the highest office in the land.

The conqueror of the Germans in the West knows of no case where a man, having said he was not a candidate, ever got the presidential nomination without conniving to get it. He doesn't intend to connive. Therefore, he thinks he's out so far as the GOP nomination is concerned.

Sums up Attitude

That, it can be said on good authority, sums up General Ike's attitude as of today.

But suppose that the Republican delegates at the Philadelphia convention next June took the position that since Ike hadn't said "No" he might mean "Yes." And suppose, further, that they went ahead and nominated him for the presidency in a real "draft."

What would he do then?

Genehal Eisenhower has never said what he would do. Furthermore, he hasn't any intention of saying what he would do. He feels that what he has said already ought to be enough to convince people that he is not interested in politics.

Believe Ike's Sincere

The politically-minded here in Wsahington grant that General Eisenhower is sincere in what he has said, but many of them think, nevertheless, that he would accept the GOP nomination if it came his way.

In other words, they think that the door is still open to an Eisenhower draft.

They are going to continue thinking that, apparently, until the Chief of Staff makes a statement as conclusive as that of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman in 1884: "I will not accept if nominated and will not serve if elected."

General Eisenhower is thoroughly familiar with the career of Sherman, and he probably knows things about that '84 statement that are not known by many politicians.

Had No Offer

He feels that if he, himself, issued such a statement, it would be a piece of effrontery. Why? Because there is nothing to turn down; nobody has offered or is in a position to offer, him the presidential nomination.

The Republican National Convention of '84 was actually in session when General Sherman issued his famous statement. The great Civil War soldier, who had been boomed for the Presidency for nearly 20 years, received a telegram from J. B. Henderson, a delegate, saying tha the drift toward him could not be halted. Sherman's first reply was "Please de-

Tsaldaris Will Follow U. S. Wishes

Premier-Designate Indicates He Will Step Aside for A 'Neutral' Leader

New Setup Favored

Bars Sophoulis

Athens, Aug. 26 (AP).—Premier-designate Constantin Tsaldaris conferred for 45 minutes tonight with United States Ambassador Lincoln MacVeach on the Greek Government crisis and it was reported unofficially that the Populist leader indicated he would step down in favor of a neutral premiere, but would not yield the post to Liberal Leader Themistokles Sophoulis.

Sources close to Tsaldaris said he offered to comply with "whatever the American Government wishes."

The meeting with MacVeagh followed reports that the U. S. Government in Washington had expressed concern over the delay in solving the crisis and had urged speedy formation of a new cabinet. A Greek source said Dwight P. Griswold, administrator of the 300-million-dollar U. S. aid program to Graace, also attended the meeting.

Sophoulis Blocks Coalition

During the day, Tsaldaris and the 86-year-old Sophoulis met face to face at a conference with MacVeagh, but Sophoulis blocked formation of a broad coalition government desired by the United States with an uncompromising demand for the premiership and rejection of a proposad appointment of a neutral premier.

At tonight's session, one source said, Tsaldaris refused to accept Sophoulis as premier, but hinted strongly he would agree to a neutral.

Political circles said this stand would be acceptable to the United States as long as he pressed his efforts to persuade the leaders of other Greek political parties to join the coalition.

Tsaldaris, rebuffed on what high-ranking American sources described as "extremely generous" concessions offered Sophoulis, had announced he would form a government without Sophoulis on as broad a basis as possible.

Sophoulis insisted he was the only political leader capable of leading Greece out of is present crisis.

Tsaldaris, head of the majority Populist (Royalist) Party which has 40 per cent of the parliamentary votes, offered Sophoulis the presidency of the ministerial council and "equality" in cabinet appointments.

But Sophoulis spurned all of Tsaldaris' offers.

[The United Press said Tsaldaris offered to step down in favor of a third person as premier, but Sophoulis rejected this even though MacVeagh asserted, "This is a critical moment for Greece."

[Sophoulis said he would consult again with his party leaders, leaving the door open for compromise.]

(M. W. Fodor, writer on Greek affairs for The Washington Post, radioed from Athens a possible explanation of the failure of the Tsaldaris-Sophoulis talks, Tuesday.

Six Overcome By Heat Before Storm Cools Air

Brisk thundershowers out of the Northwest early last night dropped Washington's temperature 10 degrees in 20 minutes.

Although accompanied by strong gusts of wind and lightning, the storm caused only minor damage in Greater Washington. The day's heat, however, which reached 93 degrees at 5:18 p. m., felled at least six persons.

19 Countries Adopt Joint Defense Plan

Quitandinha, Brazil, Aug. 26 (AP). Nineteen American republics agreed today to fight jointly against any armed aggression occuring in a Western Hemisphere "security region" extending from the Arctic to the Anatarctic.

The proposal, sponsored by the United States, was accepted unanimously by the delegates to the full Inter-American Conference Committee on aggression and inforcement measures after a 14-nation subcommittee approved it earlier.

Delegates said adoption by the plenary session was a foregone conclusion.

Delegates predict the conference will end not later than September 2.

Under the agreement, the American nations will rise to immediate defense of the hemisphere if any attack occurs within the security region, which includes Alaska and Greenland.

The vast "security region" would embrace the North American and South American continents, Canada, Greenland, Alaska, the Falkland Islands, South Orkney Islands; the South Polar region (Antartica), the Sandwich and South Georgia Islands of the Antarctic

State Aide Leaves For Paris; European Proposals Disappoint

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

George F. Kennan, chief policy planner of the State Department, left last night for urgent consultations in Paris on the Marshall program for European recovery.

He left in the nick of time. For the past nine weeks the representatives of 16 non-Soviet nations have been trying to agree on what they can do to help themselves and what help they will need from the United States.

Preliminary proposals of the European subcommittees, received in Washington in the last few days, have depressed and disappointed those officials who have read and studied them.

Vast Shopping List

They appear to involve little more than a vast shopping list of European needs, amounting to a colossal 28 to 30 billion dollars, enclosed in an attractive looking envelope of standing committees to study and supervise future economic cooperation in Europe.

To official eyes in Washington, this simply will not do. It is not just that the amounts sought from the United States are impossibly large, in terms of dollars or of goods; it is also that the program, as it now stands, will not accomplish its job of making Europe self-supporting.

It contains many promises, designed to make the shopping list attractive to the American Government, Congress and people. It shows bold thinking in one field: of making the currencies of the participating countries transferable, although this, too, would require American help.

U. S. Protest On Petkov Is Rejected By Russians

State Department Is Preparing New Action but Nature Is Not Revealed

By The Associated Press

Handed another Russian rebuff, the United States yesterday turned to new measures in a last-ditch fight to prevent Bulgaria from executing Nikola Petkov, anti-Communist opposition leader.

The State Department made it plain to reporters that urgent efforts in Petkov's behalf will be continued. It declined to disclose the next step.

Moscow rejected a direct appeal by the United States and Britain for three-power conference on the case of Petkov who was convicted of plotting against the new Communist regime. The Russians said they have confidence in the Bulgarian courts.

Texts of communications between the United States and Russia were made public yesterday.

Bulgarian Reply Awaited

Eventually, it is reported, the conviction of Petkov, along with other Communist tactics in switching control in eastern Europe, is destined for a United Nations airing. But officials declined to say whether the United Nations will be asked to act in time to save the Bulgarian leader.

Meanwhile a formal reply is awaited from the Sofia government to an American plea for delay in executing Petkov. However, John Evarts Horner, American political representative on the scene, already has reported he received little encouragement in an informal interview with Bulgarian Provisional President Kolarov.

Petkov, outspoken leader of the minority Agrarian Party, was convicted August 16 after a trial which the United States contended was a "gross miscarriage of justice."

[The United Press said it was expected that Petkov would enter an appeal Friday against his sentence, and that the Court of Cassation—the high appeal court—would hear it within two months. When Petkov was sentenced he was given until Saturday, August 30, to appeal.]

The Bulgarian Parliament today voted to expel all the Agrarian deputies and dissolve Petkov's party.

World Opinion Cited

The United States and Britain appealed directly to Moscow after Lieut. Gen. Alexander Cherepanov, Soviet deputy chairman of the Allied Control Commission, ruled that action by the commission would mean "interference" in Bulgarian domestic affairs. His "veto" prevented the commission from stepping in.

The American note dispatched Saturday to Moscow said that world public opinion as well as the U. S. Government attached importance to Petkov's conviction and said that his execution would "jeopardize the establishment of a representative democratic government in Bulgaria" as agreed to by Russia in the 1945 Yalta Conference.

The United States chraged that General Cherepanov "disregarded the obligations assumed by the Soviet government" by his ruling.

Fay Promises Early Action In Clegg Case

Truscott to Present Results of Inquiry To Barrett Today

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

United States District Attorney George Morris Fay said yesterday he would act on the complaint made by Julius Willie Clegg, 26, that he was beaten by police as soon as results of a police investigation are given to him.

The investigation by Chief of Detectives Floyd A. Truscott is to be completed today and is to be presented to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

Clegg, a Negro war veteran employed by The Washington Post, accused police of holding him 34 hours without filing any charges and of beating him at police headquarters.

Fay's statement came soon after attorneys for Clegg and the policemen involved made known requests for grand jury action.

Roger Robb, attorney for Clegg, sent a telegram yesterday to Fay, reiterating his request for grand jury action made two weeks ago.

Attorney Charles E. Ford, on "behalf of the officers" accused by Clegg with beating him, asked Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett on Monday that the accusation be submitted to a grand jury.

Robb's telegram from Falmouth, Mass., where he is on vacation, declared:

"I understand that as attorney for unnamed clients Charles Ford has asked the chief of police to request grand jury investigation of charges of police misconduct and brutality filed by my client, Julius Willie Clegg.

"As you know I requested two weeks ago that you present Clegg's complaint to the grand jury as soon as the police investigation was completed.

"Ford's present demand therefore is an obvious attempt to make virtue of necessity. In any event I now renew my earlier request for prompt grand jury action."

Quoddy Plan Backer Sees 'Conspiracy'

Brewster Enemies Held Using It as a Political Football

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Through a spokesman, Frank Cohen of New York told The Washington Post yesterday that "opportunists" had made a "political football" of his program for training displaced persons at Quoddy Village, Me.

Unfavorable attention given the project, he added, was "an obviously planned conspiracy on the part of those hostile to Senator Brewster (R., Me.)." These persons were, he said, attempting "to discredit the Senator's efforts in behalf of any humanitarian projects which otherwise would reflect to his credit."

"It was a good thing," he said, "to cash in at an opportune moment and it was regrettable that such unnamed persons saw fit to make a political football out of these European victims of the despotic terror. No wonder they refuse to disclose their identity."

He pointed out through his spokesman, Ben Trynin of Pasadena, Calif., a consultant and adviser, that publicity on the Quoddy project followed shortly upon hearings before a subcommittee of Brewsters' Senate War Investigating Committee.

Trynin told The Washington Post that a report of the Securities and Exchange Commission on performance of Cohen's Empire Ordnance Corp. in fulfilling British arms contracts in 1940 and 1941, was presented to a Federal grand jury in the Southern District of New York. This grand jury, Trynin said, "held exhaustive sessions from December, 1943, to March, 1944, and refused to substantiate these one-sided findings."

"During the investigations," he added, "Mr. Cohen was not allowed

Auditor Threatens Seizure

District and Guard at Odds Over Armory Rental Income

The District government and the local National Guard were at odds yesterday as to where revenue produced by rental of the National Guard armory is to go.

District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton yesterday threatened to seize for the District's general fund any sum gained by rental of the $2,700,000 armory.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox retorted that "the armory was built principally for the Guard, and secondarily for the citizens," and that armory-raised revenue would be used by the D. C. National Guard.

The controversy grew out of a contract—to be signed today—between the George Washington University and the National Guard.

The contract in part provides that the university will "donate" $900 to Guard units as payment for use of the huge drill hall for its homecoming dance November 1. The contract specifies the money is to be donated only if the university fails to recruit 500 National Guardsmen by December 1.

"All proceeds from District buildings are supposed to go into miscellaneous revenues of the District of Columbia known as the general fund," Pilkerton declared.

"If he (General Cox) gets $900 for the use of the armory, we will seize it and put it into District revenue."

General Cox, however, prefers word of the judge advocate board of the D. C. National Guard. The judge advocate general has told him, he said, that "the armory

11 Are Imprisoned 45 Minutes In Five-Foot-Square Elevator

Eleven persons were trapped 45 minutes in a five-foot-square elevator at 710 14th st. nw. late yesterday afternoon.

The elevator in the eight-story office building was slowing down for a first-floor stop when it jammed midway between the first and second floors.

Jammed in the narrow space, all passengers suffered intensely from the heat before they were freed by a Fire Department rescue squad.

One girl, Sadie LeRoy, of 2430 Rhode Island ave. ne., collapsed from heat and exhaustion as she was being helped out.

They were taken into the air-conditioned law offices of Welch, Mont & Morgan, where helpful secretaries supplied cold towels and drinking water.

Miss Mary Davis, 24, of 4212 Foote st. ne., operator of the elevator, said it halted suddenly as she applied brakes for the first-floor stop. Passengers soon joined her noisy calls for help.

A janitor, Randolph Smith, 43, who lives in the building shouted instructions to the operator, but the car refused to budge. An effort was made to change fuses from the adjoining elevator, but firemen could not get into the stalled car for lack of room.

Other occupants of the car were: S/1c Homer D. Blacke, of the USS Sequoia, Naval Air Station, who had called at the building for Miss LeRoy.

Fay Asks Severer P[illegible] Treatment for Sex

Post Rep[illegible]

United States Attorney George Morris Fay yesterday proposed that the District be given a new triple-barreled law to control sex offenses.

Fay said the proposal had received general indorsement from health, police and prison officials in an afternoon conference at his office. He said his aim was to have proposed new law in the hands of Congress for action early next year. It would:

1. Write into basic District law a new general statute dealing with sex offenses, and fixing heavy penalties for violations.
2. Aim even heavier penalties at persons guilty of sex offenses affecting children.
3. Set up a new legal procedure for committing dangerous sex psychopaths for medical treatment

As Kurds Mass

Iran Ready To Take Up Red Oil Pact

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Iranian Parliament was ready today to take up the controversial Soviet oil agreement as Iranian and diplomatic officials reported that "10,000 Barzani Kurdish tribesmen, backed by the Red Army" were assembled in Soviet Azerbaijan on the northwest frontier.

"This may be another move in a Soviet war of nerves," said one high displomatic source.

The oil agreement, signed by Prime Minister Ahmed Qavam in April, 1946, while Soviet troops were occupying northern Iran, granted Russia oil concessions in five northern provinces with Russia receiving 51 per cent of the shares for the first 25 years.

One member of Parliament who made an unofficial canvas of the deputies said he found "only two members who might support the Soviet agreement."

Some of the Kurds reported gathered on the Iranian frontier recently escaped into the Soviet Union after fighting a series of battles with Iraq, Iranian and Turkish troops. Their leader is Mullah Mustaf Barzani.

A foreign diplomat said, "If the outlaw tribesmen are to be used as an instrument in inspiring armed conflict on the Iranian frontier, the world should know of this potential threat to world peace."

Reports here, too, said 30 Soviet divisions were engaged in summer maneuvers near the Iranian frontier.

Japan Aiirmail Ban Is Partially Lifted

The ban on airmail to occupied Japan has been ordered lifted in part, the State Department said yesterday. A new order from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters also raised the limit on parcel post relief packages for Japan from 11 to 22 pounds.

The order set August 28 for the start of airmail service but officials said there might be a delay of several days so postoffices could be notified.

Yacht Is 11 Days Overdue on Return Trip to Sweden

Stockholm, Aug. 26 (AP).—Two American students and one British artist who left Stockholm for Finland in the 30-foot sailing yacht "Sea Shark" in July have failed to return to Sweden, American students in Stockholm said today. They were expected back 11 days ago.

The missing trio—Robert Storch, 25, former United States Army sergeant from Newark, N. J.; Miss Anne Bloomenfeld, 20, San Rafael, Calif., and British Artist Gordon Thomas McGill Lawson, 32—left Stockholm July 26. They were last seen in Hango, Finland, August 3, where they were given some nautical charts.

Stockholm newspapers speculated whether the party had drifted into the Russian Porkkala zone.

A check in Helsinki failed to establish whether the trio had arrived there. The Finnish coast guard confirmed searches had been carried out.

[In Stockholm, a spokesman at the Finnish legation intimated the Russians may be holding the trio for questioning about their trip from Stockholm to Helsinki, the Internation News Service reported.

[He said he believed their boat may have drifted into waters off Porkkala, to which the Russians have strictly forbidden entry.]

U. S. Dickering For Fishing Fleet To Send Germany

Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Boston Globe says the bulk of New England's steel trawler fishing fleet will be bought by the State Department and turned over to Germany to implement the Marshall Plan in helping Germany to feed herself.

Negotiations are under way for Government purchase of between 30 and 40 of the larger fishing vessels, the Globe says in a copyright story.

Boat owners were reported to have talked to a delegation of three men—a British Foreign Office representative, a British shipbuilding official and an American rehabilitation officer.

The goal is 300 vessels for western Europe fishing fleet rehabilitation, the Globe says, explaining the delegation first contacted the tuna fleets in Los Angeles and San Pedro, Calif., but found only 30-odd boats available.

Admiral King's Medal . . .

Greece Must Become Liberal To End War, Writer Asserts

Athens, Aug. 26 (AP).—It may be difficult for American readers to unscramble the complexities of Greek politics as evidenced in the present cabinet crisis, but the issues at stake are quite simple and tremendously important from an American point of view.

The Greek government, headed by Premier Dimitrios Maximos and Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris, which has just fallen, is strongly monarchist and right wing.

Since this government came to power, liberals and republicans in Greece, the majority of them strongly anti-Communist, have been persecuted and mistreated politically and economically.

The Communist guerillas in the north of Greece, aided by the Soviet satelites Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania, have taken advantage of this unpopular policy to wage civil war.

The policy of arresting republicans and sending them to concentration camps on barren islands has added to the unrest.

Today in Athens experienced observers are watching with keen interest the efforts of Tsaldaris to form a new cabinet. As this is written, Tsaldaris has issued a statement stating that a new cabinet will be formed by nightfall.

None Favor Amnesty

Government spokesmen say that the new government will be much along the same lines as the old one, with the possible exception of a new Interior Minister to replace George Papandreous.

If this is true, it can be stated that the American government will be greatly disappointed, for it will mean that the same general policy will be continued.

The attitude of American officials here today is "wait and see."

It is true that the government which fell on Saturday was not able to stamp out civil war on the northern borders of Greece. It is also true that any coalition that includes the same personalities of the old government will do no beter, for none of these gentlemen favors political amnesty for rebels or citizens disagreeing with the government.

While it is important that a Communist coup be prevented in Athens, it is equally important that a more liberal policy be adopted if political peace is to be reestablished in Greece.

As I write this dispatch, government politicians are busy figuring out how the new government should be manned, on the basis of election returns from last year. It is a scene that could be duplicated in any American community where politicians gather to determine where the votes lie.

But at this moment a real civil war is being fought in the north and in Rumelia, as well as Attica, and the Macedonian population is more restive than any politician here in Athens seems to realize.

Revolt Is Possible

Greece has changed since the election last year. There has been drought and economic hardship throughout Macedonia. Real revolution is a possibility at any moment.

Political temporizing is not going to unite Greece. It is not going to stop its Slav neighbors, as well as the Politbureau in Moscow, from hurrying plans to bring about a complete political upset in Greece.

It is not going to held American effort to bring Greece back to her feet.

The American Government does not want to play nay part in the political life in Greece, but, at the same time, the commission here is charged with dispersing some $300,000,000 to help Greece, and this cannot be accomplished unless there is a popular government which is willing to work together for the welfare of the entire country.

Sophoulis Is Very Old

It could well be that this money could be poured down a rathole, while Moscow waits for the appropriate moment.

So far the only name that one hears to pacify the people of Greece is Themistocles Sophoulis, leader of the Liberal Party.

Sophoulis admits to 87 years of age, but close friends say he is 93. He is a grand old man and a patriotic Greek, but after all he is somewhere around 90 years of age and, like all men of that age, he has not the strength nor the drive necessary to right the mistakes of the government which has just fallen.

He said neither contracts nor agreements are ever signed on Tuesday. Fodor said Tsaldaris apparently has the new cabinet list in his pocket but will not announce it on Tuesday.—Editor's note.)

It appeared that Tsaldaris' best hope for a broad coalition lies in naming a nonparliamentary premier and including the Venizelist Liberals under Sophocles Venizelos, the National Liberals under Gen. Stylianos Gonatas, and the Republican Socialists under George Papendreou, to join him.

If Tsaldaris cannot persuade the opposition group to go along with him, then he will be forced to name a government including the Rightist Gen. Napoleon Zervas, head of the National Liberal (Royalist) Party. The resignations which precipitated the present crisis revolved in part around continuance of Zervas as minister of public order.

Rumors persisted of unauthorized political activity on the part of the United States Greek-aid mission headed by former Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska.

It was recalled that a high official [illegible] this mission conferred [illegible] until two weeks ago. Two [illegible] Griswold told newsmen [illegible] "not representing [illegible] an active during man said the move to ban the Agrarian Party in Bulgaria was a good example of "gleichsaltung" (forcing into line) technique of which "there have been several examples in Germany since 1933."

[The bill passed by the Bulgarian Parliament asserted that the Agrarian Party and all its sections had "turned into the organized center of all Fascist and reactionary forces in the country," and undertook "organized coups de etat for overthrowing the people's authority." It accused the Agrarians of "terroristic sabotage and diversional activity with the purpose of provoking disorders."

[The bill provided also for dissolution of the Agrarian youth organization and confiscation of all party property. It made no provision for seating other opposition members to take the place of the ousted deputies.]

Bulgaria 'May Join' Marshall Plan Later

Missim Mevorah, Bulgarian political representative to the United States, said yesterday that if the Marshall Plan is developed "we may join if it doesn't infringe on our independence."

"It all depends upon the conditions under which it is offered," he said.

Mevorah also said:

1. Nikola Petkov received a "fair trial," and Bulgaria feels this country has no right to "interfere" with his sentence.

2. Bulgaria could not accept a border watch by a United Nations commission with powers to investigate civil strife in Greece because "we knew it to be a screen for an intensification and justification of foreign intervention." He said that this intervention "threatens our own security."

3. There "is no doubt whatsoever" that the Greeks are pursuing a policy of "discrimination and persecution of the opposition in Greece" and that this "has been encouraged by British intervention."

In reply to a question, Mevorah, a Communist, said Bulgaria will "never be a member of the Soviet Union—we stick too much to our own independence to become a satellite."

$2 Canadian Wheat Seen

London, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Canadian Press said tonight Canadian food experts were expected to recommend that the price of wheat sold by Canada to Britain be increased from $1.55 to more than $2 a bushel during 1948 and 1949.

The $1.55 price was established for the first two years of a four-year contract signed in 1946.

Text of U. S. and Russian Notes on Petkov

By The Associated Press

Following are texts of an exchange of notes between the United States and Russia on the case of Nikola Petkov, Bulgarian leader sentenced to death:

(The United States note delivered August 23 by U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith):

My Government has instructed me to bring to your attention, as a matter of urgency the importance which the United States Government and world public opinion attaches to the case of Mr. Nikola Petkov, the opposition leader in the Bulgarian Parliament who was recently sentenced to death in Bulgaria.

My Government has instructed me to inform you that it cannot accept the position taken by the Soviet chairman of the Allied Control Commission in Bulgaria to the effect that it was not possible for the commission to interfere in Mr. Petkov's case on the allegation that it is a purely internal Bulgarian affair. It is the firm belief of my Government that the sentencing to death of the duly elected leader of the Bulgarian opposition is a most grave matter, which if carried out will jeopardize the establishment of a representative democratic government in Bulgaria. The establishment of such a representative democratic government in Bulgaria and other countries was the primary objective of the declaration on liberated Europe agreed to by the United States, United Kingdom and the Soviet Union at Yalta.

Therefore, my Government is of the opinion that the Soviet chairman of the Allied Control Commission disregarded the obligations assumed by the Soviet government in the Yalta agreement when he refused to consult with the United States and British representatives in Bulgaria in order to reach concerted policies in regard to the case of Nikola Petkov.

In view of the inability of the United States and United Kingdom representatives in Bulgaria to reach a concerted policy with their Soviet colleagues in regard to this case, the world-wide interest which this case has received and particularly the obligations assumed by the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union in the declaration on liberated Europe, my Government requests that immediate consultations take place at a government level among the three Yalta powers in order that they may reach concerted policies in regard to the matter.

The United States representative in Sofia also has emphasized to the Bulgarian government the importance which the United States Government attaches to this case and has informed the Bulgarian Government that pending agreement of the three powers the United States Government expects that the sentence passed on Mr. Petkov will not be executed. It is hoped that the Soviet government will make similar representations to the Bulgarian Government.

I should appreciate receiving an urgent reply indicating the Soviet government's consent to the three-power consultations proposed by my Government.

(The Russian Reply)

It is impossible to agree with the appraisal contained in your note of the acts of the deputy president of the Allied Control Commission who refused consideration of the proposition brought up by Maj. Gen. Robert and Colonel Green to the effect that the Bugarian government be directed to delay execution of the sentence in the matter of Nikola Petkov until such time as the ACC could consider the matter. Such a statement of the question is incorrect and inadmissible, since the Control Commission in Bulgaria has no right to review judicial matters decided by Bulgarian courts, or to give the Bulgarian government any directives whatsoever in such matters. Such action by the Control Commission would constitute interference in Bulgarian internal affairs and would be direct infringement of the state sovereignty of Bulgaria.

As regards the propsition of the Government of the United States of America which was contained in your note, immediately to begin government consultations between the three powers which took part in the Yalta Conference in order to work out concerted policy regarding the matter of Nikola Petkov, the Soviet government, for the reasons set forth above, does not see any possiblity of agreement with indicated proposal. The Soviet government has an attitude of full respect and confidence toward the Bulgarian court set up by the Bulgarian people as a guardian of justice.

Opposition Leader Beaten in Hungary

Effort to Hold Political Meeting Is Broken Up by Communist Mob

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Independence Party declared in a statement today that its leader, Zoltan Pfeiffer, chief anti-Communist politician remaining in Hungary, was "half dead" from a beating administered by "Communist hoodlums" at Csongrad.

The statement said three other Independence Party members were so severely handled yesterday when Pfeiffer tried to hold a political meeting at Csongrad, 75 miles southeast of Budapest, that they had to be carried away in ambulances.

The United States legation issued a statement saying it viewed "with serious concern" developments concerning freedom of speech and assembly.

Examination Refusd

The legation statement was made after a representativ of the ministry of information told a news conference "I must refute" the account of Pfeiffer's beating.

An American doctor, Lieut. Col. Harry C. MacClain, was told by an intermediary that he could not examine Pfeiffr, and that even a Hungarian civilian doctor would not be allowed to see him.

Pfeiffer was being attended by a police surgeon. Pfeiffr's friends had asked MacClain to make an examination after they had quoted the police surgeon as saying the political chief was unconscious because his wife had given him "too much medicine."

Pfeiffer's friends said about 200 persons broke up a meeting of 5000 persons he tried to address at Szentes, near Csongrad, by throwing eggs, vegetables, yellow paint and bricks.

Communists Attack With Clubs

The party then went on to Csongrad where they were refused use of a hotel balcony because the hotel manager was frightened by about 300 people "who had been brought to Csongrad that noon by leaders of the Communist Party in Szentes," the statement said.

The Communists were said then to have set upon Pfeiffer and his friends with bicycle pumps and clubs. Police did not interfere, the statement said.

[The United Press said Pfeiffer was severely injured on the head and body. He tried to take shelter in the town hall but the vice mayor refused him entry, the Independence statement said. Two policemen rescued him finally and he found refuge in a neighboring house where he hid for an hour and a half until the mob dispersed.

[Tamas Keresztes, a leading member of the Independence Party, also was injured. He was beaten and kicked to the ground where one of the mob stamped on his hand.

Pfeiffer Too Weak to Talk

[Pfeiffer, seen at his home today by a United Press correspondent, was evidently in severe pain. He was able to open only one eye and was too weak to talk as he lay in bed.

[The government forbade Budapest newspapers to publish news of the attack until the Communist-operated interior ministry issued its own version in a communique at noon.

[Before the meeting began a laborer, Istvan Eke, stood before Pfeiffer and asked repeatedly for an explanation why Independence placards were put above coalition party placards in Csongrad," the statement said. "Pfeiffer finally slapped Eke. In consequence of which Pfeiffer and Keresztes were slightly hurt. The outbreak of the fight made the holding of the meeting impossible."]

Pfeiffer, like Deszo Sulyok, leader of the Freedom Party, is an anti-Communist lawyer who was expelled from the Smallholders Party because the Communists said he was a "reactionary." Sulyok was reported by the Associated Press two weeks ago to have left the country secretly.

Middies Return—But Only to Depart Again

U. S. Navy Photo

THE END OF "OPERATION CAMID II"

Middies leave troop ship and climb into launches in Annapolis Roads

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Annapolis looked more like its usual self today, but not for long.

The Middies were back in town, hot and tired and anxious to be on their way after 11 weeks at sea.

Within a few hours most of them were off on 30-day leaves.

Their training cruise ended soon after daylight when motor launches lugged the 1993 youths ashore from two battlewagons, four destroyers and an attack transport that anchored in Annapolis Roads last night.

They wore their white work outfits as they swarmed over the seawall, but it didn't take long to change to summer grey.

The academy band played as the midshipmen checked in at Bancroft Hall, groaning under heavy seabags and suitcases. The permanent staff, aided by the plebes who have had the "yard" to themselves all summer, put away their gear, paid them and parceled out tickets for trips home.

Legion Plans Campaign for Training Law

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Plans for an all-out American Legion drive for enactment of universal military training took shape today at meetings of several of the organization's committees preceding the twenty-ninth annual convention.

The national defense committee, headed by S. Perry Brown of Beaumont, Tex., indicated strong support of a bill introduced in Congress by Representative Harry L. Towe (R., N. J.) providing for a six-month basic training period for all Ameerican youths. The bill was reported favorably by the House Armed Services Committee but made no further progress in the recent session.

The four-day convention opens Thursday. Some of the Legionnaires, equipped with huge water pistols, got in a little preconvention marksmanship practice in front of the Hotel Pennsylvania, convention headquarters. Most of their targets were attractive girls and quite a few hits were registered on bare legs.

C. E. Rosendahl, retired vice admiral and dirigible commander, addressing the Legion's aeronautics committee, urged transfer of jurisdiction over lighter-than-air craft from the Navy to the Maritime Commission. He predicted wide use of airships in transoceanic commerce.

Robert C. Goodwin, director of the U. S. Employment Service, told the Legion's national employment committee that 12 million World War II veterans now held jobs, indicating "94 out of every 100 veterans in the labor market are employed."

However, Perry Faulkner, chief of the veterans employment service, said that, in case of a recession, this group of veterans "probably would be the most adversely hit of any group," since they are the youngest workers and have the least job experience.

Mrs. Lee W. Hutton of Excelsior, Minn., unopposed for president of the women's auxiliary of the legion, said "The general public is forgetting its veterans and what it owes them in the line of housing and jobs."

Burglars Get Smokes

Besides his usual expenses, Nicholas N. Courtaglou's vacation also cost him 70 cartons of cigarettes and 10 boxes of cigars. They were missing on return to his grocery at 102 G st. nw., he told police yesterday. Police set their value at $123.

Two Purses Taken

A sneak thief yesterday made off with two purses from Apartment 41, 814 22d st. nw., occupants told police. Losers were Mrs. Hazel V. Clark, who said her purse contained $27, and Betty Clark, whose purse contained small change and her automobile operator's permit.

Hoboes Meet, Crown 'Highway Johnny'

Britt, Iowa, Aug. 26 (AP).—America's hoboes, in annual convention assembled, warmed themselves by early morning campfires today, elected "Highway Johnny" Weaver, 53, of Ashland, Nebr., as their new king and then partook of a noon meal of slumgullion served up in tin cans.

Polly Ellen Pep, who is developing her 30-acre tract near Cuba, N. Y., into a hobo heaven called "Rock Candy Mountain" was re-elected Queen of the Bo's without opposition.

1500 Legionnaires to Leave Tonight for N. Y. Convention

About 1500 members of the District Chapter of the American Legion will leave tonight for New York to attend the twenty-ninth annual national Legion convention, which opens in New York tomorrow.

Among them will be District delegates and their alternates, 100 men of the National Guard of Honor, 75 men of the James Reece Europe Post Drug and Bugle Corps and 50 men of the Fort Stevens Post Drum and Bugle Corps.

The District department is backing Joseph J. Malloy, local attorney, for the office of national commander of the Legion for 1947-48.

About 1000 other Legionnaires will entrain here Friday night to join the District delegation.

They are to assemble at 2 o'clock Saturday in New York to join the Legion's parade up Fifth Avenue.

District convention headquarters will be in the Commodore Hotel, while Malloy's headquarters will be in the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Dalegates: Owen C. Halloran, department commander, chairman; Donald G. Stanley, John Lewis Smith, jr., Herbert J. Jacobi, John M. Wilson, Richard Raymond, Watson B. Miller, C. Francis McCarthy, Fred G. Fraser, Harold J. McLaughlin, Richard C. Beverly, Harvey L. Bean, Julius I. Peyser, Chester A. Bennett, Lee R. Pennington, Guy C. Nadeau, C. E. DeVito, Frank Haley, Charles Pearis, Geofrey Creyke, Theodore Cogswell, Edward J. Clarke, David E. Kisliuk, Edward L. Marthill, Paul J. McGahan, George Lowery and Thomas O'Hara.

Alternates: Howard S. Fisk, Morris V. Spicci, William F. Luckett, Frank L. Platz, Gerald J. Lawler, David E. Miller, Gail T. Judd, Albert L. Duff, Joseph A. Walker, L. Russ, Howard Eales, Curtis Shears, Charles Schuettler, Richmond Harris, Norman L. Grant, Robert Murtaugh, Herbert S. Graham, Willard E. Dougherty, and Patrick J. Fitzgibbons.

W. Leo Collins will serve as cheminot national of Grand Voiture of the local Forty and Eight, while Henry Heine will be alternate cheminot national.

Delegates of the Forty and Eight are Gerald J. Lawler, chairman; Gail T. Judd, Clarence T. Milne, David E. Kisliuk and Fred Money. Alternates are James C. Clarke, Horace Hector, Mike Escleman, Francis Leonard, and James A. DeForce.

Jap Trade Bars Raised, But Goods Aren't There

Tokyo, Aug. 26.—Eleven days after the resumption of private foreign trade with Japan, it is increasingly evident that a long time will pass before Americans will find goods marked "made in Japan." Most of the 85 foreign traders here do not feel able to conclude profitable contracts.

The primary reason is that the Japanese have simply nothing to offer the American markets.

Canada May Cut U. S. Imports

Ottawa, Aug. 26 (AP).—Canadian Trade Department officials have virtually completed a list of imports that might be restricted from the United States should the government decide to impose restrictions as a means of conserving dwindling American dollar reserves, it was learned today.

One source said motor cars made in the United States were among the things that could come under an import ban.

Meantime, reports circulated in unofficial circles to the effect that Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, had gone to Washington over the weekend to sound out American feeling toward a 750-million-dollar loan to Canada.

Bank Head Has Faith In British

JOHN J. McCLOY
"... It's unwise to write off the British too quickly"

By the United Press

John J. McCloy, president of the World Bank, expressed polite doubt yesterday that Britain faces a neconomic collapse, and he advised the gloomy prophets against writing off the British people too quickly.

He told a news conference that he believed the British are aware of their postwar problems, are analyzing them and facing them realistically.

"The British are a sturdy people, possessed of good business sense, and their internal budgetary situation is good," he said, "and anyway, history dictates that it is unwise to write off the British too quickly."

Under questioning, he said Britain thus far has not asked for a loan from the eight-billion-dollar World Bank, despite persistent speculation that she would have to do so to bolster her shaken economy.

The British last week obtained modification of the terms of the $3,750,000,000 American loan agreement in order to conserve their dwindling dollar reserves—most of the loan already has been used—but McCloy said there is no question of their asking another United States Treasury loan while Congress is away.

He said a World Bank mission headed by Economist E. G. Burland had just returned from Poland, where it conducted an economic survey necessitated by Poland's application for a $600,000,000 bank loan. Officials of the bank are still studying the mission's findings.

Plans to Tour Europe

McCloy said h plans to tour Europe hismself in the interests of the Bank after the forthcoming meeting of the Bank's governors in London next month.

Questioned about the possibility of a German reconstruction loan, McCloy said the Bank could lend money to increase coal production in the German Ruhr, provided the loan could be made to an agency of a non-enemy government and could be guaranteed by that government.

The Bank's charter forbids direct loans to non-member or enemy nations.

British Doubt Russian Offer Of Crisis Help

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Reports spread tonight that Russia had offered to help Britain in its hour of crisis, but officials were skeptical.

One government source, who probably had heard the reports, said Britain was so near broke it probably would have to start using its $2,400,000,000 gold reserve in four to eight weeks.

He said the Marshall Plan for Europe and the Labor government's master plan would not become effective soon enough to keep at least part of the gold reserve from being spent.

Negotiations Failed

The reported Russian offer of help was said to have been relayed to Britain through a "friendly embassy" in Moscow. What the Russians were reported to have offered was to reopen negotiations for an agreement under which Russia would supply millions of bushels of wheat, tons of canned fish and enough timber for hundreds of construction projects in return for British machinery and manufactured goods.

Earlier negotiations had broken down over Britain's inability to deliver machinery as fast as the Russians insisted and its refusal to reduce the interest on a loan made to Russia at the beginning of the war.

More Talks September 11

The gold reserve and British investments in the Western Hemisphere, which probably are worth a little less than the gold, are Britain's last economic defense. If they go the barrel will be completely empty.

The master plan, which the cabinet approved yesterday will be announced before the end of the week.

No further British and American financial talks are expected until Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder arrives in London for the International Monetary Conference, opening September 11.

6802 Relief Packages Released by Greeks

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Care, nonprofit cooperative for distribution of relief in Europe, announced today the Greek Government has released 6802 packages which had been held up on a legal technicality since March.

The organization will extend its negotiations for a continuing agreement with the Greek Government as the result.

Bulge Massacre Charge Against Nazis Dropped

Munich, Germany, Aug. 26 (U.P.). The prosecution rested its case against Nazi Lieut. Col. Otto Skorzeny and nine of his officers today after dropping a charge that they had killed American prisoners of war during the Battle of the Bulge.

The Germans are being tried before an American military tribunal. After the prosecution rested, the defense started trying to prove them not guilty of remaining charges—forcibly taking uniforms from American prisoners and wearing them in combat and stealing Red Cross packages.

Hospital Accepts Girl

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—A 14-year-old epileptic girl, who has lived in a stockade for three years, will be placed in the State Hospital for Epileptics, officials said. Until today, the hospital insisted it had no room for her.

Miami Police Looted

Miami, Fla., Aug. 26 (AP).—Thieves broke into busy police headquarters on Flagler st. here sometime last night and robbed it of three revolvers valued at $310.

Britain Due To Recover, Says Stassen

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, said today that in 10 years England again would be a vigorous, highly productive, solvent power and, given United States help, would turn from further socialization back to regulated capitalism.

Stassen, writing in the Ladies' Home Journal about his recent trip to England, said that England is "not doing very well" at making socialization of coal and transportation work.

"I am inclined to the view that coal mining under government ownership will continue to be unsatisfactory and after one more bad winter the English will revise their present system either back toward a regulated capitalism in coal or at least a seperate governmental corporation of the TVA or Swedish type," Stassen said.

Stassen said he believed a reform of capitalism in coal would have been a better solution to England's fuel problem. The nationalization of the English mines demonstrates that "you cannot have government ownership without compulsion and force."

Stassen said the British people "will come through but they need, should have, will be granted, major assistance by us for the next five years."

Stassen estimated that England would need one billion dollars worth of goods during each of the next five years that she will not be able to pay back in dollars.

He suggested the establishment of a "peace production board" with authority to place orders in this country, finance them and schedule their delivery. One of the goals of this board, he pointed out would be to insure a smooth flow of production so as not to place too great a burden on any one industry.

"In return for this allocation of machinery and food," Stassen said. "We should get assurances that the sources of raw materials under British control will be open to us for current stockpiling and future imports on the same basis as they are to anyone else. This would assure us that we would not exhaust our own sources of raw materials and insure us a fair price on our future needs."

Navy Televises Fish 160 Feet Under at Bikini

Davy Jones' locker soon may be opened to the public as a result of an underwater television experiment in Bikini lagoon, the Navy announced last night.

A group of scientists and naval officers sat on the deck of a surface ship and watched the fish swim by a television camera 160 feet below the surface of the sunken submarine Apogon.

Deep sea divers who recently explored the sunken craft reported the the five-inch square deck television screen approximated in clarity what they saw on the bottom during underwater searches.

The Navy said the television camera was lowered to the deck of the Apogon, a target ship in the Bikini atom bomb explosion. It was focussed fro mthe vessel floating atop the lagoon.

Woman Sprints as Bus Door Traps Long Skirt

Bakersfield, Calif., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The revolt against long skirts won a militant supporter in Mrs. Louise Horn of Oildale, Calif.

She was wearing her first "fashionable" long skirt when she started to get off a bus. The trailing skirt was caught between the doors.

The bus started up quickly. It traveled almost a block before passengers convinced the driver he should stop.

"If I hadn't been a sprinter in college," Mrs. Horn panted, "I might never have made it."

Rail Fare Rise Asked

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 26 (AP).—Thirty-six southern railroads told the Interstate Commerce Commission today they are facing deficits in passenger operation and asked an increase both in basic coach fare and in parlor and sleeping car rates.

House Probe Calls Welles About Eisler

By The Associated Press

Chairman Thomas (R., N. J.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities announced yesterday Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State, has been subpenaed to explain how Hans Eisler, Hollywood song writer, obtained papers to remain in the United States after getting in from Austria. Hans is the brother of the jailed Communist Gerhardt Eisler,

Eisler

Subpenas also have been issued, he said, for George Messersmith, former Ambassador to Argentina, in an investigation of alleged "Communist influences" in the motion picture industry.

Thomas said Eisler will be the first witness here on September 24.

Thomas said subpenas were issued also for Joseph Saboretti, assistant commissioner of immigration; Clarence R. Porter, chief inspector of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service at Calexico, Calif., and P. C. Hutton, an employe of the foreign service at Guatemala City.

U. S. Aid Stand To Be Clarified

too few signs in the documents of genuine inter-European cooperation, sharing, pooling and retrenching, to make the best possible use of Europe's own resources for her own salvation. It can be said on good authority that the Administration would not dream of submitting such a program to Congress.

With all the understanding in the world of what European nations have suffered, of their present tiredness and economic prostration, officials in many parts of Washington regard these preliminary proposals as unrealistic, uninspired and unconstructive. Their conviction is that Europe must do better, much better, toward working out a program.

A complicating factor at Paris has been the insistence of Secretary Marshall that Europe must work out this program for itself, without American direction. Coupled with this is the Communist charge, echoing from radio loudspeakers all over Europe, that the Paris conferees are marionettes who dance as Uncle Sam pulls the strings.

Attitude to Be Clarified

Until now the United States has confined itself to discreet guidance from Undersecretary Clayton and Ambassador Jefferson Caffery in Paris. Now, however, Washington knows it has to make its attitude clearer, since the European proposals will come to Washington next month for approval by the Administration and Congress.

The Europeans at Paris have been complaining privately that they could get no coherent statement of what America wants them to do. American representatives there have put much emphasis on two points:

(1) That any European program will have to be bold, imaginative and at the same time realistic enough to appeal to Congress and the American people; and

(2) That to make it acceptable Europe should make at least the first moves toward a customs union. Clayton is said to have been preaching the free-trade doctrine with all the fervor of Cordell Hull himself, but has opposed any system of European tariff preferences against other countries.

Production a Vital Factor

Kennan's visit may help to persuade Clayton that while tariff reductions and multilateral trade are long-term goals, they will not in themselves meet Europe's desperate and immediate needs of producing more cial, growing more food, controlling inflation and balancing budgets.

He can also bring first-hand information on the work of the three presidential committees, notably the 19-man group headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman, assigned to survey what America can do to help Europe.

There is still time for the Europeans to modify and improve their subcommittees' proposals, which are no more than drafts at this time. The Paris Conference set itself a deadline of September 1, but this is likely to be postponed until the conference can produce something more "constructive."

Many Studies Underway

From now on it will be harder to keep up the pretense that Europe must work out a program by itself. The Administration is busy here in Washington with scores of studies on the subject. The British economic crisis has shown that Europe's crisis is becoming more acute; the current discussion on coal output in the Ruhr are directly linked to Europe's over-all recovery.

Kennan's departure last night coincided with the sailing from New York of a 19-member joint Congressional committee headed by Representatiive Christian Herter (R., Mass.) which intends to study the European economic situation.

The committee was throoughly briefed before sailing: it is taking experts with it, and it intends to do the most serious job of overseas investigation ever undertaken by a Congressional group.

Britain Sees Stalemate on Peace Pacts

London, Aug. 26 (AP).—A British Foreign Office spokesman said today a "state of deadlock" had developed among the four leading Allied nations and the five European states which fought alongside Germany over formal ratification of peace treaties.

He said Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary and Romania were ready to deposit their instruments of ratification and that the Italian constituent assembly had authorized its government to do so.

The United States, Britain and France have passed legislation necessary for ratification and also are in a position to deposit their signed and sealed documents. Russia has nt.

The spokesman said two factors still prevented the ending of the state of war between the Allies and the former enemy states.

The first was that Russia proposed recently that the Allies withhold deposit of their ratifications until all five ex-enemy states ratified their treaties. The spokesman said the second factor was that at least two Italian political parties, the Communists and Socialists, were insisting that the Italian government not ratify its treaty until all the Big Four had done so.

Britain asked Russia to reconsider her proposal, but has received no answer, the spokesman said.

Doctors Die Early

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Physicians, until they are 34, enjoy a "markedly" lower death rate than the general population at the same age, but as the years of practice go on, the effect of professional activities shows itself in death rates which rise above those of the general population, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. said today.

British Keep Strong Guard On Jewish Ships at Gibraltar

Gibraltar, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The entire police force turned out to help British soldiers guard the wharf are a today when three British refugee ships carrying approximately 4360 Jews docked at Gibraltar.

The area was barricaded with barbed wire and traffic was checked closely. The ships were to remain here for 10 hours to take on fuel and provisions.

The Jews, who refused to land in France after being turned back from Palestine, were en route to Hamburg, Germany.

Arab Shop Bombed

Jerusalem, Palestine, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—An Arab shop, the second within a week, was bombed today by the Arab underground organization Hurrieh, probably for selling Jewish-made goods.

High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham conferred with leaders of the Jewish Oriental community of about some 300 Afghan Jews, now in Bombay on their way to Palestine.

Rain Snarls Subways As N. Y. Cools Off

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Subway traffic was snarled in one of the worst rush hour tieups in 15 years today after a heavy thundershower brought the city's sweltering millions a 24-degree drop in temperature in two hours and drowned out subway power.

The storm, which started at 4:25 p. m., shortly after the mercury reached 91, poured 3.42 inches of rain over the city in the first two hours. The temperature slumped to 67 degrees by 6 p. m.

Disability Pay Extended For Tubercular Ex-GI's

The Veterans Administration said yesterday it would provide full disability compensation for two years instead of six months hereafter to war-veteran hospital patients released with arrested pulmonary tuberculosis.

The agency said the action will provide better control of arrested cases of the disease and will reduce the necessity of further hospitalization of the patients.

U. N. Ballot Expected Soon On Egypt Case

Lake Success, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Security Council droned through another inconclusive debate on the Egyptian case against Britain today after witnessing a scuffle resulting in the ouster of two now-familiar Egyptian spectators from the chamber.

Adjournment came before the delegates could hear speeches by Russia, which might veto, and Colombia.

The Egyptian debate will be resumed Thursday morning when a ballot is expected.

The disturbance came when Ahmed Kamel Kotb and Mustafa Momen, who had been ejected last Friday, managed to get into the chamber again.

Police Fire on Egyptians

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Police opened fire with shotguns tonight on a crowd of about 100 Egyptians demonstrating against Britain and the U. N. Security Council.

It was not determined how many, if any, were wounded.

Earlier today nationalist youth delegations called at the Russian Legation to express their gratitude for Soviet suport of their aims.

Polio Delays School

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 26 (AP).—Delaware's infantile paralysis epidemic today postponed the opening of Wilmington public schools from September 2 to September 15. The number of polio victims in the State reached 75. Three children have died.

Hirohito's Cousin Plans To Sell Cigarettes

Tokyo, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Gen. Prince Naruhiko Higashi-kuni, cousin of Emperor Hirohito and first member of the imperial family to head a Japanese cabinet, will sell American cigarettes in Japan if Allied headquarters approves the contract, it was announced today.

A Philadelphia company hopes to manufacture "Prince Higashi-kuni cigarettes or the Japanese trade.

France Believed to Concur In Steel Plan With Reservation

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—A French delegation was reported reliably tonight to have accepted conditionally an American and British plan to raise steel production in western Germany to about 11 million tons a year.

The condition was that France would approve so long as increases in German industry do not consume coal from the Ruhr and other raw materials from the Reich that France needs.

A reliable source said a communique confirming France's conditional acceptance had been sent to the State Department in Washington and the British and French foreign offices in London and Paris.

The final session was scheduled for today, but was postponed, probably because the foreign offices of the three nations had not finished considering the communique.

The figure to which Britain and the United States want to raise steel production is still a secret.

Motorists Warned Not To Pay Wrong Meter

Livingston, Mont. (U.P.).—Police Chief Frank Olson advises motorists in Livingston to pay the left-hand parking meter and warns that no longer will the excuse that "I put my money in the wrong box" be accepted.

Since Livingston adopted diagonal parking in the business district, motorists have been flipping coins to determine whether to pay the meter on the right or the one on the left.

Too often they've been guessing wrong, Olson says.

Took Elevator—And Were Stuck With It

The Washington Post

Fellow passengers who were crowded in a tiny elevator which jammed yesterday in the office building at 710 14th st. nw. look a bit wilted even after relaxing for a while in an air-conditioned office after their rescue from the lift. They are (front, from left) Seaman 1/cHomer D. Blacke, Sadie LeRoy, Lillian Crawford, Bob Daily and Tom Daily; and (rear, from left) George McGehee, Robert D. Dailey, John R. 'Persecutory' Hatred Seen in Priest Attacks

Rome, Aug. 26 (AP).—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, charged in an editorial today that mob violence against Catholic clergy in Yugoslav-occupied Zone B of Venezia Giulia was inspired by "persecutory hatred against religion and the Catholic church."

L'Osservatore said "groups of armed bullies" were to blame for the attacks in which dispatches from Trieste reported one priest beheaded, another tortured to death and a third sent to a hospital at Fiume with a fractured skull and serious knife wounds above the kidneys.

(Associated Press dispatches from Fiume said officials at the city's main Catholic church were unable to confirm the statement of Mons. Antonio Santin, bishop of Trieste and Capodistria, that Father Miro Bulesich had been beheaded when he visited Lanische in Zone B to confirm Catholic children.

Slovene Youths Blamed

(Mons. Jackob Ukmar was reported conscious only intermittently in his darkened room in the Fiume general hospital. A priest who visited him said the injured prelate was suffering from a concussion, and body wounds and was able to say only that he and Father Bulesich were attacked by a group of Slovene youths using fists and sticks. Ukmar was reported as saying Father Bulesich was killed almost instantly from a blow on the head.

(Priests at Fiume could not bear out reports from Trieste that a third priest, identified as Father Kristian, had been found dead from torture at Golazzo.)

L'Osservatore said the attack was "disastrous to the investigations" of eight American Protestant leaders who recently toured Yugoslavia and reported religious freedom existed there.

Vatican Paper Skeptical

The Vatican city newspaper commented skeptically on reports that Yugoslav authorities were making a vigorous investigation and had arrested 33 persons. It recalled that similar assurances were given after Bishop Santin was roughly handled in the Yugoslav zone on June 19, and commented, "after that, nothing more was heard."

[The Communist-controlled ATI news agency said all 33 reported arrested would be tried by a Yugoslav people's court, the United Press reported.

[ATI sympathized with the attackers, describing them as "partisan peasants who were trying to participate in church services."

[According to the news agency's version the "peasants" tried to enter the church but were barred and bombarded with stones which had been hidden in the belfry of the church.

[Mopsignor Santin said the Communist mob was barred from the church because during the previous week smillar "hooligans" waving red flags broke into churches, broke up services and threw rotten tomatoes and eggs at the altar.]

Observatory Sees Sun-Circling Rock, Distant as Mars

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 26 (AP).—A tiny, hitherto unknown member of the solar system—a rock two or three miles in diameter—flying in a great circle around the sun, has been discovered by C. A. Wirtanen, Lick Observatory, California, the Harvard Observatory reported today.

The rock is moving in an almost circular orbit ,almost as far away as Mars, at least 50 million miles farther away from the sun than the earth.

Oklahoma City Agog Over New Oil Field

Oklahoma City, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Discovery of a new oil field near Oklahoma City which taps the fabulous Wilcox sand brought excited bidding for leases today.

The Standard Oil & Gas Co. disclosed that a test well northeast of Aklahoma City, flowed 17 barrels of oil in 20 minutes when first opened.

404 Relief Cases 'Screened' in Day; 75 Pct. Due to Go

More than 75 per cent of the 404 relief cases "screened" yesterday by Welfare Department case workers will be dropped or suspended, Welfare Director Ray L. Huff revealed.

At the close of the work day yesterday, 4848 of the 5300 cases on relief roles had been investigated, he said. A total of 1322 clients have been chosen for elimination or suspension, he reported.

The case "screening" began August 15 after the Board of Public Welfare adopted strict new economy measures to cut the number of relief clients rather than slice all relief payments.

Workers are expected to complete their check of the remaining 452 cases today, Huff revealed.

Claims Deadline Extended

Attorney General Clark yesterday announced a general extension until further notice of the deadline for filing debt claims against former enemy governments, businesses or individuals whose property was seized as alien property prior to January 1, 1947.

Hero and Iturbi Agree

Hollywood, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Concert violinist Stephan Hero and his father-in-law, pianist and movie actor Jose Iturbi, have worked out a friendly agreement over custody of Hero's two children, it was announced.

Moral Front Discussed by Pope, Taylor

By Michael Chinigo

Rome, Aug. 26 (INS).—Pope Pius and Myron C. Taylor conferred for 30 minutes today in the first of a series of talks which church officials said will lay the groundwork for amoral, antiatheist front of western sttaes.

The meeting was held as the body of a priest was found on the Appian Way today. Apparently a Pole, the priest died of wounds of the head and chest under circumstances not yet explained.

Taylro was understood to have delivered a personal message to the Pontiff frmo President Truman.

Church informants said an important attempt will be made to weld the western nations into a moral front in an attempt to reconcile differences with the Soviet Union.

Taylor and the Pope are expected to confer at least once weekly for the next month or six weeks on determining the extent to which Germany will be permitted to return as a cooperative unit under the Marshall Plan; the role of the church in getting America's peace aims into proper focus in Latin America and the problem of displaced persons.

Costa Ricans Reaffirm Loyalty

San Jose, Costa Rica, Aug. 26 (U.P.)—All Costa Rican army chiefs today reaffirmed their loyalty to War Minister Gen. Rene Picardo following an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate him Sunday night.

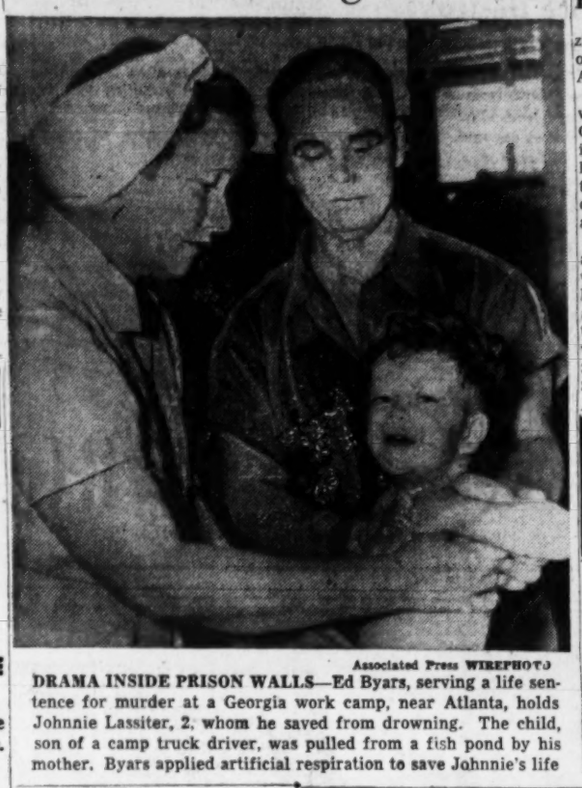
According to details disclosed today for the first time, Col. Cartin Segundo, commander of the Bella Vista army barracks, attempted to kill General Picardo—a brother of President Teodoro Picardo—facing him with a sub-machinegun. The weapon stuck before a single shot was fired.

Colonel Cartin was disarmed by other officers and is now under arrest pending a court-martial.

Should've Kept Pants On

Seattle (U.P.)—An obliging thief left an unmistakable clue in a house-ransacking here. Making off with a supply of cigarettes, some odd silver and a pair of trousers from the home of W. C. Barnett, the marauder left his own trousers. In the rear pocket police found the thief's wallet, containing the owner's name.

Lifer Saves a Young Life



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DRAMA INSIDE PRISON WALLS—Ed Byars, serving a life sentence for murder at a Georgia work camp, near Atlanta, holds Johnnie Lassiter, 2, whom he saved from drowning. The child, son of a camp truck driver, was pulled from a fish pond by his mother. Byars applied artificial respiration to save Johnnie's life

Men Stockholders Elbowed by Women

Chicago (U.P.)—Commerce Magazine says women stockholders now outnumber men in many important American corporations.

Last year, for the first time, women holding shares of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana showed numerical superiority over male stockholders. Similar changes have taken place in the stockholder lists of such companies as Swift & Co. and International Harvester.

The magazine says two factors are responsible for the increase in women stockholders—first, women live longer then men, on the average, and therefore inherit securities; and second, there are more women working now than ever before and they are investing surplus funds in stocks and bonds.

Couple Adopts Girls, Then 2 More Arrive

Marysville, Ohio (U.P.)—Mrs. Charles Spitler now has four small daughters to keep her busy. Six years ago she and her husband feared they would never have any children of their own.

They adopted two girls. Joanne is now 12, Judy is 8. Since then they have become the parents of two daughters.

Panty-Clad Girls Break Out of 'Mediation' Cell

Tecumseh, Okla., Aug. 26 (AP).—Seven girls, clad only in panties and brassieres broke out of a steel-barred "meditation" cell at Girls Town here today and fled into rugged country nearby.

Girls Town is a State correctional institution.

Mrs. Merle Fuller, superintendent, said the girls were confined in the cell to "meditate" infractions of the rules.

"I don't see how they got out," she added, "and if you could see the door they managed to break the lock on and get through, you would be wondering too.

"They didn't have any shoes on, and they probably are hiding in canyons near the institution," she added.

Six were captured by nightfall.

WE BORROWED YOUR SIGN

When the price of materials and supplies and labor costs go 'way up—as they have for the railroads since 1939—increased freight and passenger rates sufficient to meet increased costs and give stockholders a fair return, are vital.

Employes get more to help meet increased prices—
Those who supply materials ask for more and get it—
The tax collector gets more—
Only the stockholders are squeezed.

Railroad employes should be concerned about that. Men and women who work for the railroads have good jobs under good working conditions because stockholders, big and little, supply the money which creates jobs. And when stockholders are treated unfairly, employes are likely to suffer.

Railroad employes, in their own interests, cannot be indifferent to the interests of stockholders. Inadequate freight rates work to the disadvantage of both and provide nothing for progress in transportation.

It's to the best interest of the public at large, the shippers we serve, and the employes, that the railroads should have sufficient revenues to enable them, under honest and economical and efficient management, to provide an adequate and efficient railway transportation service. That means they must have just and reasonable rates—and that is all they ask.

WHILE DIVIDENDS DECREASE PAYMENTS FOR WAGES MORE THAN DOUBLE

TEN YEARS AT A GLANCE—While the stockholders' share of Pennsylvania Railroad income has declined, as the chart shows, payments for wages, including payroll taxes for the benefit of employes, have more than doubled since 1936.

Customs Holds Honduras Ship At Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—While customs officials reported they found no cargo of arms aboard, they denied clearance papers today to a converted infantry landing ship of Honduran registry and placed it under guard at a shipyard here.

The ship search was made yesterday, officials reported. The State Department in Washington said the ship detention was in line with its policy of preventing use of United States soil as a possible base of operations to promote civil strife in other countries.

Customs officials reported they refused clearance for the ship to a man named "Rubien" because he lacked an export license from the State Department. They said the license was required of all ships of a military nature.

Capt. Dowell Sherwood, Puerto Rican skipper of the 160-foot vessel, said he understood it was bought Saturday by Howard Rubien of New York.

Workers at the Willis-Spedden Shipyard, Inc., reported they were preparing to weld the ship's doors and "lock it up" for an indefinite period.

The converted war vessel put into the shipyard four weeks ago for minor repairs.

Berlin Schools Skip History Course Again

Berlin, Aug. 26 (AP).—For the third straight year no history courses will be taught in the schools of quadripartite-occupied Berlin because the Western Allies and the Russians are in an ideological deadlock over what the courses should contain.

"The Russians want to teach a definitely Marxist version of history and we cannot and will not agree to that," said Paul F. Shafer, chief of the education branch of the American Military Government for Berlin.

British May Abandon Tudor II After Crash

London, Aug. 26.—The Tudor II, air liner, white hope of Great Britain's civil aviation, was just about written off today with a coroner's verdict of "misadventure."

The verdict was handed down at an inquest into the crash of the big air liner on Saturday which cost the lives of four men, including the designer. Unless dictated by plain governmental stubborness, the Tudor air liner will never fly on Britain's air routes.

Bloom

Representative Sol Bloom, his pince nez askew, got air sick riding up and down in an elevator in the Hotel Quitandinha. He couldn't say seven in Portugese. His room is on the seventh floor.

Another American could, alas, say only this:

"The firemen extinguished the fire with the fire extinguisher." It didn't get him much of anywhere.

One ordered his suit sponged with damp bread instead of a damp cloth, and the puzzled valet complied. Another ordered hair with his salad.

A pert secretary awoke one morning to find two bellboys standing at attention at the foot of her bed. She doesn't know yet whether it was something she said wrong.

Following the old Spanish custom of using the middle name, Americans call for their mail now by their first name, it being in the middle when you include a title, such as Senator.

and a 300-mile sea belt encircling both continents and taking in strategic island possessions of the American nations.

Under the United States proposal "armed attack by any state against an American nation will be considered an attack against all American states, and each one of the American states assumes the obligation to aid in facing such attack, exercising the individual or collective right to self-defense recognized by Article 51 of the United Nations Charter.

Hemisphere measures of "legitimate defense" would be applied "until such time as the Security Council of the United Nations takes the necessary measures to maintain internal security and peace," the agreement added.

The agreement stipulated that "if the inviolability or integrity of territorial sovereignty or political independence of any American state should be affected by aggression other than armed attack, or by extracontinental or intracontinental conflict, or by any other action or situation which could endanger peace of the Americas, the contracting parties will meet in consultation immediately to reach accord on measures to be taken to aid the attacked for the common defense and maintenance of the peace and security of the continent."

Luray, Va., Bells Ring to Concerts Of Carilloneurs

Luray, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—The great bells of the Luray carillon rang out over this Shenandoah Valley town today as scores of the country's leading carilloneurs gathered here for the second day of recitals.

Stopping only for a brief luncheon, the Congress of Carilloneurs settled down for a full day of concerts at 10 a. m.

Working at the huge keyboard were players from throughout the northern hemisphere.

Tomorrow the congress will hear recitals by Hilton Rufty of the War Memorial Park at Richmond, Ernest Parsons of Morristown, N. J., Herman Dreher of Ontario, and Emil Vandette of Eglise de St. Jeane Baptist of Ottawa. The final concert of the three-day get-together will be given tomorrow by Percival Price of the University of Michigan.

Ruark, Bound For Leghorn, Meets Trouble

Rome, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Columnist Robert Ruark, en route from Paris to Leghorn to confer with Army officials investigating Lieut. Gen. C. H. Lee's Mediterranean command, was detained 45 minutes today by Italian security police because his papers weren't in order.

Ruark's release was obtained by U. S. Army authorities, but the Italian alien control office said it was about to let him go, anyway.

"It was all my own fault," the Scripps-Howard writer said. "I had an effectvie Italian visa, but I didn't know I needed a re-entry permit also. I was getting the misunderstanding untangled when an Army agent, whose aid I did not request, arrived. Ten minutes later I was released."

Ruark said he would leave for Leghorn on an Army transport.

He said, "Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, who's inspecting General Lee's command, asked for a conference with me."

Ruark's columns recently charged that Lee mismanged his command, living "like a king," while enlisted men were mistreated.

Fire Insurance Study Opens at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—The first meeting of a Virginia Advisory Legislative Council committee to make a study of fire insurance contracts in the State was held today in the Capitol.

A Senate joint resolution that ordered the study stated that fire insurance contracts used in the State "are long and complicated, and so involved as to be confusing and often misleading.

National Parks Reported Needing Repairs Badly

Record numbers of sightseers visiting national parks in Virginia and elsewhere are putting up with park facilities badly in need of repair.

National Park Service officials said today there have been some complains—mostly over food, accommodations and prices.

Prospects for continuation of the record crowds are good, they said, but not the prospects of meeting the repair needs.

The $735,000 appropriated for reconstruction and repair—as compared to the budget of $1,500,000—must be "spread very thin" among the 170 areas in the national park system, they said. These repair needs have been accumulating for about seven years.

Virginia National Guard Sets Recruiting Drive

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Plans for a National Guard recruiting compaign were being discussed here today by regimental and battalion commanders of the Virginia National Guard.

The campaign will be September 16 to November 16. It is hoped to double the Virginia guard during the drive. In the past ten months it has recruited to a strength of approximately 2000.

Fire Destroys Virginia Sawmill

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin which burned from about 11:30 p. m. until almost daylight today destroyed the Miller and Hawskins sawmill near Montross with a loss unofficially estimated at $10,000.

The blaze, which was fought by firemen from Callao, Kilmarnock, King George, Colonial Beach and Tappahannock, was prevented from spreading by nearby lumber stockpiles, planing mill and the firm's offices. Owners of the sawmill are A. J. Hawkins and L. R. Miller.

Longshoremen File Suit

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Counsel for some 3000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) today filed in Federal Court an action against about 60 stevedoring and steamship companies for recovery of an estimated $3,000,000 in overtime pay.

Suppressed Report

While Mr. Frank Cohen's devious maneuvers to obtain Passamaquoddy village as a training center for displaced persons make fascinating reading, there is an equally piquant study in why nothing came of the investigations that touched on his operations and the lobbyists he employed. The most prominent of these probes, of course, was that made by the Securities and Exchange Commission in 1942-1943 at the explicit request of President Roosevelt. Since this was in the nature of an extracurricular job, perhaps the SEC's usual responsibility to report its findings publicly did not apply. Nor is it possible to know with certainty what were President Roosevelt's reasons for suppressing the report. It is possible that he felt that publication at that time would have damaged the war effort.

Nevertheless, the strong implication remains that the report was hushed up because it involved many high Democratic politicos. The late Representative Matthew J. Merritt, for example, appears to have played a reprehensible part as an errand boy in bringing pressure on the War Department for Mr. Cohen. Frank McHale, Democratic national committeeman, and former Congressman Charles West also reportedly were on the Cohen payroll. Perhaps the most insidious of the pressures was that allegedly brought upon the representative of the British Purchasing Commission. The British official, Mr. Michael V. Dewar, testified, according to the SEC report, that he was led to believe that if he gave Mr. Cohen's Empire Ordnance Corp. a contract it would help the British obtain loans from the RFC. He also was given to understand, the report states, that if Mr. Cohen obtained the contract he would make a substantial contribution to the Democratic campaign fund.

Altogether the situation is one that calls for a great deal of explaining. We think that Congress will be fully justified in demanding access to the SEC report and in calling for a full-fledged investigation of the facts around the suppression as well as of Mr. Cohen's current promotion. As for Senator Brewster's part in fronting for Mr. Cohen now, either he is guilty of incredible naivete or he chose callously to ignore what he knew of Mr. Cohen's past when he indorsed his scheme so heartily. In either event, it seems to us, Mr. Brewster will have to do a lot of talking to remove himself from the arena.

Battle Of The Skirts

A burning question of the moment is whether women look better in skirts that just cover knees or in skirts that stop halfway between knee and ankle. It all depends, we suppose, upon the shape of the leg and the age of the wearer. The aspect of the question that concerns us is that most women have little choice in the matter. Each year the decisions are made for them by fashion designers, abetted by clothing manufacturers whose chief purpose in life appears to be to increase demands for women's clothing by introducing new styles that make the wearer of old models feel ill-dressed.

This practice of hastening obsolescence by means of superficial style changes is not confined to women's clothing. On the contrary, it is a fairly widespread American practice. And in prewar days the practice resulted in the replacement of all sorts of consumer articles, such as household furnishings and automobiles, long before they were worn out by new possessions which, judged by strictly utilitarian standards, were little if any better. However, the women's clothing industry, in our opinion, rates number one in the list of industries that have been accustomed to exploit for their own advantage the consumer's hankering for novelty. Wartime labor and material shortages temporarily put a stop to this waste, making it possible for women to wear their dresses until they were shabby, in the comfortable assurance that they would not attract unfavorable attention. Now all that will be changed, if the fashion designers succeed in reestablishing their arbitrary power to decide what women shall wear.

Change, we know, is the spice of life, but it is our hope that this time a good many women will have the fortitude to defy the decrees of fashion by continuing to wear the short-skirted, comfortable garments that have introduced a certain amount of standardization into an industry where it was conspicuously lacking. A buyers' revolt of this kind would be a salutary rebuke as well as a warning to those impetuous innovators who have dared to return to prewar wasteful methods of consumer exploitation at a time when millions of human beings in other countries are clothed in rags and more fortunate millions in the United States are groaning under the pressure of high living costs. This is a time to husband our resources in materials; as Secretary Harriman has observed, the world economic crisis puts upon us all the need to "defer our cravings."

Our interest in skirt lengths is not derived from any concern about the appearance of American women, because whatever is generally accepted soon looks all right to the average man or woman. What we should like to know is how much extra cloth will be required to fashion one of the longer-skirted garments, how many more such garments will be bought because short skirts are condemned as outmoded, and how much more will be added to the clothing budget of innumerable families because of the fashion revolution. With living costs at record heights, these are questions of vital concern to male heads of families and also to all industries supplying the essentials of life to family groups. For rising clothing costs will entail reduction in outlays for all sorts of consumer articles that may be much more essential to family health and comfort. Finally, how can we expect the ill-clothed and the undernourished millions of other countries to appreciate the advantages of the free enterprise system if the private industries that are the exemplars of that system prove themselves unworthy guardians of the trust reposed in them?

Those are the really important questions raised by the attempt of the fashion designers and their allies, the clothing manufacturers, to expand the market for their wares by resort to ill-timed, antisocial sales policies that add to the economic burdens of American families and are sure to attract deserved criticism from abroad.

Duty To Greece

Greek politicians are fiddling while the crisis involving the survival or destruction of their country assumes more serious proportions. Every consideration of the public welfare within Greece and of international stability in the Near East of which Greece is a part calls for a united front in carrying out the reconstruction program. It is a time for greatness on the part of Greek statesmen, if there ever was one. Yet the break in cabinet at Athens has brought to the fore selfish bickering and political maneuvering which threaten to defeat the one undertaking which a vast majority of the Greek people are most interested in.

Premier-designate Tsaldaris is reported to have told Ambassador MacVeagh that he would comply with "whatever the American Government wishes." But it is not clear whether this would include supplanting himself as head of the new cabinet. Themistocles Sophoulis, aged leader of the Liberal Party, appears to be holding out for the premiership against all offers of compromise. Other reports say that Mr. Tsaldaris is talking of forming a narrow Right-wing regime, excluding the Liberals. Such an outcome would be a calamity from both the Greek and American points of view. In our opinion it could mean only a stiffening of resistance and prolongation of the guerilla warfare. Indeed, it would foreshadow failure of the American program to help Greece maintain her political independence and regain economic health. That is another way of saying it would be intolerable.

We hope that Dwight P. Griswold, administrator of the American aid program, is making this unmistakingly plain to the Greek leaders. They should be told in very pointed language that the United States has no intention of upholding a government that a majority of the people would not trust; that we will not permit the spending of American dollars to perpetuate a lavish display of wealth in Athens while thousands are starving in the ruined towns and villages of Greece. The unvarnished truth is that Greece, under the regime dominated by Mr. Tsaldaris, has not yet attempted to help herself. She has not tapped the sources of wealth in the capital that might be drawn upon to ease the suffering of the masses. She has not turned the inflow of refrigerators, bathing suits and nylons into food, essential clothing and machinery for reconstruction. She has not thrown out of office incompetent hangers-on in favor of capable, well-trained and efficient public servants. Most serious of all, she has made little effort to stop the drift of hopeless people into the ranks of the guerillas by any resolute move to restore civil rights or to improve the pitiful conditions under which they live.

A less liberal regime than that which fell last week could only add to the cynical weariness of the masses and probably lead to more repressive measures in a desperate attempt to suppress guerilla warfare. This conclusion seems to be drawn by every competent and objective observer of the Greek scene. What is needed is not more stern repression but shirt-sleeve work by able and sincere men who can get Greece's economic and political institutions into operation once more. And this, of course, calls for drastic action. It implies an attack on the problem on a wholly different level than the politicos in Athens are accustomed to.

There is a widespread belief in informed circles in this country that the best way would be to call a national figure such as Gen. Nicholas Plastiras to the premiership. However, it is not a question of men so much as it is a question of methods and policy. The government of Greece is in desperate need of regeneration. The issue that should be foremost in the minds of every patriot at this critical time ought to be: Who is best qualified to give the nation the leadership that it must have to survive as an independent entity. And the answer should be stripped of all self-deception, all partisan pretense and class prejudice. If the American authorities have not made this absolutely clear to the men of Athens who are fumbling with the fate of their country, they have failed to carry out an essential corollary of the policy which the Greeks and ourselves have undertaken as partners.

Knuckling Down

Coal remains the crux of Britain's economic problem. A drastic increase in the production of British mines is the indispensable key to revival of British industry and expansion of British exports. It would be no overstatement, indeed, to characterize British coal as basic to European reconstruction in general—even more important perhaps than the coal of Germany's Ruhr. Time was when Britain was the world's largest coal exporter. It must again produce enough to fuel not only its own industries but, in part, as well, those of the continent.

So drastic an increase in production is scarcely to be achieved through comfortable measures. A six-day work week for British coal miners is not an agreeable prospect; but is is an inescapable one. The mine workers' offer to suspend the five-day week in the coal mines is, therefore, a simple recognition of reality. There is nothing realistic, however, in the proposed limitation of the suspension to a nine-month period. The miners might as well face the facts candidly. Short of a miracle, they will have to be putting in six days of work a week for at least three years to come.

That the leadership and a majority of the membership of the National Union of Mineworkers appreciate the urgency of the situation was made clear by a resolution passed unanimously at a special delegate conference in London on Friday. It called upon the miners to support the government's measures to overcome the crisis, recognizing that "a failure to increase coal production will seriously retard the efforts of the government and thus contribute to a substantial lowering of the standards of living of the British people." Significantly, this resolution continued with an assertion that the conference "deplores the action of a minority within the industry in continuing those practices which are contrary to the spirit of the five-day week agreement, and reaffirms the determination of the membership of the union in relation to the reassessment of tasks; the introduction of measures for dealing with habitual absentees; and the cessation of all restrictive practices."

The minority referred to, of course, is a Communist minority. It appears to be full of zeal for all the prerogatives of featherbedding at a time when full speed ahead is the only salvation for industry and nation alike. Britain cannot now afford absenteeism or artificial restrictions upon output any more than she can afford a leisurely workweek. The test of labor statesmanship will be its capacity to achieve full production, in coal above all else, under a government of it own choosing and in a time of peace.

Sex Crimes

Washington's first concern in preparing a more comprehensive sex crime law should be protection for the people of the community. We are in full accord with the movement to draw up a new statute making perversion and allied offenses felonies punishable by stiff sentences. Forty-seven States now have such laws, whereas, aside from an obscure common law provision on sodomy under which convictions are difficult to obtain, the District has nothing more effective than a misdemeanor count with which to control the general run of sex crimes. The result is that Washington has become more or less a haven for sexual perverts and degenerates. The helplessness under which enforcement officials operate is illustrated by the fact that repeated convictions for indecent exposure bring nothing more than a $250 fine.

But while protection should be the community's first thought, it should not be the only concern. Unquestionably acts of perversion involving innocent persons, especially children, are atrocious crimes against society, crimes with which society must cope. At the same time, in any broad approach to the situation, it is imperative to recognize that some persons, through inheritance or environment, become perverts through no fault of their own. They are not willing criminals in the same sense as burglars or gangsters. Thus the problem is medical as much as criminal, and no law that neglects medical treatment is adequate for the purpose.

Dr. Winfred G. Overholser's suggestion that sex offenders be committed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital is on the right track. We think such commitments should be discretionary with the judge following psychiatric examination of persons charged with sex crimes. Sentences might well be indeterminate, with release conditioned upon response to medical care. Likewise paroles could be granted with the proviso that the offender report regularly for psychiatric guidance and treatment.

Some cases, of course, cannot be cured. They are the confirmed perverts who lack the will or desire to change. There is no reason why such persons should be turned loose to prey upon others. At the same time, however, it has been demonstrated that competent treatment and reorientation of interests enables some sex offenders to resume their places in society without danger. The new sex crime law should be designed as far as possible to further this. Moreover, in our opinion the law should make treatment facilities available without stigma to those unfortunates who recognize their disability and voluntarily seek to correct it.

Steel Racketeers

Current export control policies of the Office of International Trade, while being administered with all good intentions, are creating export racketeers in steel. The OIT is issuing licenses for only token shipments to most countries. Curiously enough, however, some countries are getting shipments far beyond the quotas established for licensing.

Consider the big steal in steel shipments. This company has applied for licenses without much result. We were put on the "waiting list" for the iron pot at the rainbow's end. We were told that our firm is a "newcomer," and besides the entire world quota for, say, reinforcing bars, is some 3000 tons. Meanwhile, a member of this firm, while on a recent visit to Cuba, located one transaction where twice that amount was being bought and shipped.

In another case we brought back from Cuba a photostat of an export license individually in excess of the total quota. This was presented to the OIT for its examination and it was ascertained that the license was without question a forgery. In discussing this license we advised an official of the OIT what we knew of the situation ourselves. We were told that there was unfortunately but little that the OIT could do.

Understaffed and underbudgeted, this section of the Department of Commerce is in no wise equipped to investigate and prosecute the export freebooters, who are somehow managing to ship steel dishonestly. As the steel shortage has become more severe and the foreign demand more vehement these export racketeers eagerly take the chances which permit them to make killings in foreign markets. Exporters who have some integrity lose good customers abroad, the OIT shuffles papers and we are left waiting for that iron pot.

Two alternatives arise in this situation—either the OIT should be given sufficient personnel and direction to clean up this mess or it should permit shipment of steel under general licenses. Unless one of these two things happens, steel will continue to be shipped in as substantial quantities as before without benefit of legitimate and effective control.

Water-Cut States

I have read with interest the descriptions of and claims made for various States as they have appeared in advertising space of The Washington Post. This method of acquainting readers with outstanding accomplishments, natural resources and other topics of interest is novel and the Hecht Co. deserves commendation for the innovation.

Michigan was recently given the opportunity to present a border to border write-up. Among other things the statement was made that Michigan is the only State entirely cut in two by water.

It seems that several other States might make similar claims. To mention a few, Maryland is entirely cut in two by the Susquehanna River and Chesapeake Bay waterway and the Missouri River runs entirely across the State of Missouri; the Connecticut River bisects Massachusetts.

Since I am a native New Yorker, I would like to point out that Long Island, a very important part of New York State, is entirely cut off the mainland by water, and also the barge canal system from Buffalo to Albany to New York City bisects the State, to say nothing of the fact that Manhattan is entirely surrounded by water.

Taber's Work

The cartoon entitled "Government by Blackjack," in your issue of July 17 has just come to my attention. It seems to me most unfortunate that a paper of the standing of The Washington Post should publish so scurrilous a cartoon. I hope it slipped into your columns by oversight.

Surely Mr. Taber, in the very difficult position which he fills, is thoroughly justified in questioning every appropriation, for his job in its very nature, is to check these matters. Personally I think that he is doing a most excellent piece of work but, whether we agree with him and accept his judgments is aside from the point.

By properly constituted authority he has been appointed to watch over appropriations and he should be supported and respected for doing his task courageously and with integrity. Do you not honestly think it is poor taste and not quite in the spirit of fair play to misrepresent his performance of duty by calling it "Government by Blackjack?"

As an old newspaperman I hate to see the press abuse its freedom by malicious and abusive treatment of those with whom it fails to agree. GILBERT M. TUCKER.

Legal Aid

Furley Gayle, laborer of Arlington, probably would not have resorted to the ax as a means of freeing himself from his troubles had he known of the services available to him at the Arlington County Legal Aid Bureau, 2054 14th st. N., or at the Arlington Community Chest, 3159 Wilson blvd., in Arlington.

The bureau, which operates for the benefit of persons who do not have money enough to employ a lawyer, could without charge have assisted Gayle in postponing or extending payments of the grocery bill, if that debt of $100 worried him, and the chest could very likely have had the family situation investigated through one of the local social agencies and perhaps have had worked out a program of financial relief for him.

This tragedy that resulted in serious injury to several children, including the death of one child, points to the desirability of a good public relations service as a part of social work activities that would frequently bring to the attention of the local community the various social welfare facilities available to persons who very much need to make use of them.

Theodore G. Bilbo

In your August 22 "eulogy" on Bilbo, you seem to have sold democracy a little short in stating that "under no other system could such a charlatan have emerged from obscurity." Certainly Hitler and Mussolini and their henchmen are evidence that other systems can bring obscure charlatans greater prominence than Bilbo ever enjoyed.

Although an unenlightened democracy has the weakness of allowing Bilbos to emerge from obscurity, probably it was also our democracy—imperfect as it may be—which kept Bilbo from gaining the power of Hitler and Mussolini.

"Our Fair City"

It was interesting, in Robert S. Allen's Washington Merry - Go - Round guest column on August 21, to find him blurbing Our Fair City, a recently published book edited and assembled by himself, as a currently "best-selling expose of municipal misrule." And in a previous Allen guest column it was also interesting to see three hometown Steffenses who contributed articles on their communities to Our Fair City cavalierly awarded "the brass ring" for distinctive journalistic achievement, temporarily at "guest" Allen's disposal.

Speculation is entertaining as to what Colonel Allen's monumental sensitiveness to minor or major violations of professional or any other kind of ethics in others, would make of a rival journalist's pecadillo of using news space to push the sales of his book.

U. S. and China

I have, within the past few days, received a letter from a man for whom I was indirectly responsible in getting him a job with UNRRA in China about two years ago. In his letter he makes some comments to which I should think there would be no objection in my quoting, and which may prove of value in enlightening the people in this country.

I refer particularly to what he says about the adverse feeling of the people in China toward this country, and of which I at least have been unaware. I was under the impression that the people in this country had reason to believe that the Chinese people were friendly to us. He writes in part as follows:

"I do not desire to remain in China. It is a very difficult country to live in. The handicaps under which one must operate in this country are numerous. Transportation facilities are very poor. It requires 33 to 35 hours to cover 600 miles on the best passenger trains in China. There are practically no paved highways; the majority are dirt roads. When considering this fact, the 228,000 long tons of supplies delivered from the few points of entry to the interior is an accomplishment in itself.

"You have probably read in the local newspapers that civil war in China is interfering with the UNRRA program. The Chinese people as a whole are becoming very anti-American. This is due to communistic influence."

Railroad Accidents

The Washington Post of August 20 carried a story in which it was stated that there had been a decided increase in the number of railroad accidents within the past few years. Statistics were requested to prove the statement. Like many of the statements coming out of the bureaus here in Washington, this one, too, suffers from a fictitious base.

For reporting purposes, the ICC has defined a reportable wreck as any dearrangement involving a fatality or one in which the total cost of labor, material and clearing exceeds $150.

With the large increase in the cost of labor and materials within the past few years, it may be readily seen that many wrecks are reported today which would not have been a few years ago. As long as the above ruling stands, the number of railroad wrecks in this country is at the mercy of the economic elements, as well as the regular hazards of operation.

For comparison purposes, railroad safety figures should be based on freight ton miles carried or, as other transportation media use, passenger fatalities per million passenger miles.

Calling Washington

Divided Germany

BERLIN.—Here in the ruins of Hitler's Reich, the United States seems a long way off. It seems very remote to the Americans who are struggling to administer a part of divided Germany.

Back home in America the problem of Germany can be discussed from any one of a number of viewpoints. It is like the fable out of India about the blind men and the elephant. You judge it from the perspective of your own set of ideas, prejudices, emotions.

That is a luxury enjoyed by the stay-at-homes. The Americans, military and civilian, who are actually coping with 40 million Germans are face to face with a grim reality.

The stay-at-homes ignore the reality or they conveniently forget it. Therefore, it might be well at the outset to restate that reality here.

As a result of the Potsdam Big Four meetings two years ago, Germany was cut up into several parts. Poland was given a chunk of territory in the East, including the Silesian coal mines. The balance was divided into four zones, one each for the Soviet Union, the British, the United States and France.

WITH THE deepening split between Russia and the West, these zones have been increasingly walled off as separate little worlds. An important step has just been taken in uniting the economies of the British and the United States zones. This will bring definite benefits. But its effect is necessarily limited by the geography of truncated Germany.

The supremely important fact is this: In the part of Germany that went to Poland and in the Russian zone is the great food-producing area. The United States and Britain in their zones got scenery in Bavaria and industry in the Ruhr and the north—but no food. France got some industry in the Saar.

You can imagine how this would work if you cut the United States into similar pieces. In one zone would be the Northeast with its vast industry. In another zone would be the great breakbasket of the Middle West and the South. The Pacific West, with its scenery and its developing industry, would be in still another zone. Wall these off so that there can be no trade between them and you get and idea of what Germany today is like.

In the combined British and American zones are approximately 40 million Germans. To keep them alive on a low diet will cost 625 million dollars this year for supplies brought in chiefly from the United States.

THOSE SUPPLIES have to be brought in because the industrial products of the Ruhr cannot be exchanged for the food of eastern Germany. That is the root trouble of the British and the Americans. It is the argument they use in urging that the level of steel production in the Ruhr be raised from five or six million tons to 10 million tons.

It is why American and British administrators argue the necessity for exports from their zones. With some exports, the 40 million Germans might be able to begin to pay for the food that has to be brought in to keep off starvation.

The crux of it is right here—who pays the bill? Even though they are a long way from home our administrators know that the American taxpayer will not go on indefinitely paying half (or more than half) of 625 million dollars a year to keep 40 million Germans alive.

The matter of pay is becoming more and more acute. The British are making it plain that they will not be able to go on much longer meeting their share of the bill. That means the United States would be expected to shoulder the entire 625 million dollars if things continue as they are.

The easy alternative, of course, is to pull out. That would mean sooner or later seeing all of Germany go Communist. Hunger would produce complete breakdown—and communism is always the heir to collapse.

This is an oversimplification of the German dilemma. In its complications it reaches into every phase of European politics. But in essence, those 40 million Germans with no sufficient source of food are the reality that night and day sits on the shoulders of the American administrators. Not all the theories in the world can alter that reality. You cannot, as one European put it, repeal history, and these 40 million human beings are part of the long and tortured history of this tragic continent.

Big Stick

There was a President named Teddy Roosevelt who said, "Speak softly and carry a big stick." He stopped a war, and kept us out of a war, in his time. American civilians, and very especially Americans in their country's uniform, were treated with circumspection by foreign officialdom.

Today, it looks as though our President's Department of State feels that the seizure of three Americans, who were in uniform and on proper official duties, is not important enough to "upset" the "delicate" state of affairs between the two nations involved.

Maybe our State Department could exert more leadership, and get its diplomacy respected, if it took a leaf from Teddy's book. When any nation can get away with such cavalier treatment of Americans in uniform, receiving no more than "sharp notes," maybe that goes a long way toward explaining why our diplomats don't get anywhere.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

America Must Lead

NOW THAT the British dollar crisis has temporarily subsided, one big question remains to be answered. The few weeks in which pounds could be converted into dollars were almost incalculably costly. The run on the British Treasury cost our taxpayers between 800 million and one billion American dollars, siphoned off from our loan to Britain to pay for mink coats for Argentine millionairesses and limousines for Egyptian pashas. The cost to the British people will be an appalling cut in their standard of life. The cost to Britain and America together will be a severe weakening of the Anglo-American political partnership, which our loan to Britain was intended to strengthen.

All this was utterly unnecessary. All that was needed was to suspend the convertibility clause in the Anglo-American loan agreement, before the clause took effect on July 15. Why on earth was this not done? The answer is curious in itself, and points a vital moral.

The dangers of the convertibility clause in the loan agreement were of course foreseen, on both sides of the Atlantic, long prior to July 15.

They were not fully realized, to be sure, by the stuffy, doctrinaire Chancellor of the British Exchequer, Hugh Dalton. Dalton was complacently convinced that the pound, the traditional medium of internal exchange, could hold its own with the upstart dollar. He so advised the British cabinet. The cabinet, occupied with other things, took him at his word. But among the younger and more realistic experts in both the British Treasury and the Foreign Office there were many who saw the storm signals on the horizon. The same pattern held in Washington.

AS LONG ago as last January, the British actually felt out our Treasury's attitude on the convertibility clause. But they did not lay the facts squarely on the table, and ask for the help they really needed. Instead, they tried an indirect approach. They were having some trouble making arrangements for sterling-dollar convertibility with the Chinese and certain other countries. They asked for an interpretation of the loan agreement which would remove this highly technical difficulty.

The first reaction of Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is to say "No" to any proposal. He fairly snapped at the British representatives who made the overture. The British were crestfallen. Snyder had spoken. Therefore, they wearily and incorrectly supposed, the American Government had spoken. In reaching this conclusion, however, they omitted two major facts.

First, their approach was indirect. Thus the real problem, which was the danger of convertibility as a whole, was not discussed at all. Second, there were plenty of leading American officials who already saw this danger. Among these were Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, his successor, Robert A. Lovett, Undersecretary of State Will Clayton and Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman. These men together could have won the day for suspension of convertibility. The only trouble was that they were waiting for the British to take the initiative. As in some silly Victorian novel, each side waited for the other to speak first.

Even at the eleventh hour, when Undersecretary Clayton went to London this spring, this mutual skittishness persisted. Before Clayton's trip, it was known that he would be prepared to negotiate, if the British strongly urged revision of the loan agreement.

INSTEAD THE British merely spread before Clayton a set of figures. These figures made it entirely clear that the drain on the British dollar position after convertibility would prove intolerable. Clayton, waiting for the British to make a positive request for aid, said nothing. And the British, hamstrung by Dalton's nostalgic complacency on the one hand, and by their fear of another American rebuff on the other, took Clayton's silence for a rebuff.

Thus, idiotically, the disaster was allowed to happen. As after every disaster, all the participants are busily looking for the goat. Some of the less intelligent British are talking about Uncle Shylock again.

Among American officials there is also a tendency to curse the British for their lack of foresight, their refusal to face the facts of their situation. This is the old error. Secretary of State George C. Marshall used to warn against as Chief of Staff, and still warns against at the State Department. It is the error of "fighting the problem."

"Fighting the problem" means, very simply, complaining against the conditions of the problem to be solved, instead of going to work to solve it. It is "fighting the problem" to complain that the British failed to see the seriousness of their own situation, and did not take the initiative in asking us to help. Any reasonably competent psychologist, realizing the desperate character of the British plight, would have expected some timidity and fumbling. American officials could also see the dangers ahead. It was up to them to encourage the British to act, by encouraging them to come to Washington for help. It was up to the more self-confident Americans, in short, to take the lead.

For us in the United States, this is the real moral of the British crisis. Far more in other capitals than in London, insecurity and economic deterioration have produced a sort of world-wide paralysis of political will. Strength is in Washington. This country is the only leader. And the leader must lead.

Pacific Trusteeship

By Roscoe Drummond

The RFC's Scheme Wins

Roscoe Drummond, chief of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor, is a guest columnist for Ernest Lindley.

THE ADMINISTRATION is beginning America's first experience as a United Nations trustee under highly unfavorable circumstances.

The unfavorable circumstances are that the Truman Administration is deeply divided under the surface over how the newly acquired Pacific islands should be administered, that the Navy has been given total guardianship over the civilian population against its own wishes and that President Truman's own view of what should be done was not able to prevail.

With knowledge that they are accurate, the essential facts can be stated as follows:

The Navy does not want the assignment which has been imposed upon it and has fought it from the beginning. It has been reported that the Navy won for itself a great victory when it was given total administration of the trustee islands. The opposite is much nearer the truth. It sought from the start to man and to develop the limited strategic defenses but it did not wish to handle the civil affairs of the 55,000 natives of the 1700 tiny islands embraced in the new trust territory.

President Truman strongly pressed for placing a civilian agency in charge of the non-military phases of the islands, and it must be said that powerful opposition within the Administration rather than powerful arguments defeated Mr. Truman's own desires. The evidence is that the President did not change his mind but that he did change his position.

High Government officials, including Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal, favored civilian administration — but they were vetoed. Mr. Truman was vetoed; Mr. Forrestal was vetoed—both by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

IT APPEARED that the Pacific islands did not look like a good "banker's risk," and the RFC would have none of it. As a result the new wards of the American Government—the Polynesian and Micronesian peoples so lately liberated from the war lords of Japan—are under military rather than civilian control.

Though Congress approved its continuance, the RFC was determined to liquidate the United States Commercial Co. which, after serving as a Government purchasing agency under the Foreign Economic Administration during the war, was placed under the RFC when the FEA was dissolved. Since 1943 the United States Commercial Co. has been serving the former Japanese islands at the request of the Navy, and it was this already experienced Government commercial company which President Truman and Secretary Forrestal wanted to have expanded on a peacetime basis to handle the civilian affairs of the American-held islands.

On February 1 of last year President Truman specifically asked in a letter to RFC Chairman Charles B. Henderson to ready the Commercial Co. for its new assignment. Mr. Henderson marshalled all the reasons against it.

On August 26, 1946, Secretary Forrestal devoted 3½ pages to supporting the President's view that the USCC should remain in charge of the civilian side of the island affairs. Mr. Truman again agreed, and replied to Mr. Henderson's memorandum by saying that he felt the "disadvantages" of the proposed transfer to the Navy outweighed any economies which might be effected.

"I do not feel, therefore, that the activities of the USCC in the Pacific area should be transferred to the Navy at this time," Mr. Truman said.

WHEN JOHN D. GOODHOE became RFC chairman he continued Mr. Henderson's campaign to outmaneuver the President in his desire to keep the USCC at its established work in the Pacific islands. He worked through the Bureau of the Budget and on May 16 of this year emphasized to James E. Webb that the RFC had been "trying to get rid" of the Pacific Ocean program for some time.

It succeeded, and the activities which the President and the Secretary of the Navy thought should not be transferred to the Navy were so transferred on June 12, 1947. The agreement bears Mr. Forrestal's name but it does not bear his approval.

Behind this inter-Government conflict is a visible reluctance to face the responsibilities which this new United Nations trusteeship, which the American Government earnestly sought, imposes.

There is little doubt that the new islands will be an economic liability, an investment in national defense. Government officials estimate that if managed efficiently the islands should be run at no more than an annual loss of $750,000 a year and should require a working capital of two million dollars.

Because of the debate over where this loss should be allocated, the population of the new trust territory is going under military rather than civilian tutelage, and the Navy is accepting an extraneous assignment which it does not relish. The personnel and the experience of the Commercial Co. are being wasted, and America's first experiment as a United Nations trustee is getting off on the wrong foot.

Hannegan Sees Truman; Silent On Quitting

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan conferred with President Truman for an hour yesterday on his expected resignation as Democratic National chairman, but declined flatly to announce a decision.

"I had a private and personal conversation with the President," he told reporters. "That's all I've got to say."

Democratic headquarters had voiced doubt in advance that any formal announcement would result at this time from the conference.

Indications still were that Hannegan would step down from the political post sometime next month because of continued ill health and the Democratic National Committee at that time would elect a successor previously handpicked by the President.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is believed the President's personal preference for the post.

It was pointed out, however, that this posed two other problems, as yet unresolved: (1) Who would succeed Anderson as Secretary of Agriculture and (2) does Anderson, in poor health himself, feel physically up to the heavy 1948 campaign assignment?

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) told newsmen he was confident Anderson "would be a good soldier" and accept the assignment if he was asked.

Hatch, a White House intimate who like Anderson hails from New Mexico, said he saw "difficulties," however, in finding a new Secretary of Agriculture. He said he did not believe Anderson personally sought the shift.

Doubt was voiced in other high Democratic quarters that yesterday's White House conference entirely foreclosed another choice.

Top-ranking alternate, if Anderson is not tapped, include Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee; Leslie Biffle, Senate liaison with the President; Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) and former Representative Joseph E. Casey (D., Mass.).

Hannegan, who last spring underwent surgery to relieve hypertension, recently told newsmen he wanted a complete physical check-up by Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the President's physician, before deciding definitely to retain only his Cabinet post.

He said yesterday he had not seen Graham since his return from a Hawaiian vacation but "I expect to see him every two or three days while I am here."

Democratic headquarters said yesterday it had not yet received "orders" to call a meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Since the committee must formally pass on any shift in the chairmanship, the next meeting call may provide the real tip-off on a final White House decision.

Mississippians Scramble for Bilbo's Seat

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Potential candidates for the vacant Senate seat of Theodore (The Man) Bilbo yesterday were elbowing for room in an unprecedented pre-election scramble.

Nearly everyone prominently or remotely identified with Mississippi politics in the last quarter century was on the sprawling "mentioned" list. More than that, they were on th ground taking soundings.

One man was beginning to emerge on top of the heap—that of Representative William M. Colmer of Pascagoula. Colmer has been a member of the House for 15 years and works with the small group around Sam Rayburn that actually sets House minority policy.

Colmen captained the first House postwar investigation, that carried its inquires to an audience with Stalin, and served on the House Rules Committee until his transfer this session to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

He has not yet formally announced for the seat but reports that he was interested preceded Bilbo's death. In fact, he stepped down from a post on the Herter Foreign Economic Committee, about to tour Europe, in order to return to Mississippi.

He was fishing in the Gulf wth Gov. Fielding L. Wright when Bilbo's death was announced. Wright, who controls the winning organization machine, is officially taking no position in the race but is regarded as friendly to Colmer.

Two days ago the Jackson Daily News, largest newspaper in Mississippi, formally announced for Colmer. He also has the backstage support of Former Gov. Hugh White, until recently regarded as a possible candidate himself.

Viewed here as second man on the inside track was a 31-year-old Marine veteran of World War II—Paul B. Johnson, jr. Johnson polled 112,000 votes against Wright in Mississippi's first primary in an unsuccessful effort to displace Wright as Governor. Son of the late Governor Johnson, a stem-winder on the stump, Johnson is said to have inherited his father's flair for Southern oratory.

Except for Forrest Jackson, Bilbo's attorney, and A. B. Friend, The Man's former campaign manager—neither rated a chance—none of those on the "mentioned" list were ever allied with Bilbo.

Informed observers here said the only danger of the current race developing into a "white supremacy" campaign of the Bilbo type was the unexpected entry of John E. Rankin.

Decision of Governor Wright to allow the seat to remain vacant until the State's general election November 4 presaged a wide open race with anyone able to get 50 names on a petition eligible for the scuffle.

There will be no primary or run-off. Under the unusual arrangement, top man takes all when the votes are counted. The normal setup is a first and second primary, with the lead man forced into a run-off if he falls shy of a majority of all votes cast.

Regardless of the outcome, Senate Democrats appeared assured of the first full working minority of 45 Senate votes since the new Congress assembled. With Bilbo unseated, Demcorats controlled only 44 votes through the first session. Republicans weathered many a close test by a one- or two-vote margin. The net Democratic gain of one seta will make Republican hair's breath control of the Senate even more wobbly.

Besides Colmer and Johnson, here's a partial list of Mississippians who have either already announced for the seat or are flirting with the possibility:

Paul Spearman, Washington attorney; Tom Q. Ellis, runner-up against Bilbo in the last election; Judge John Stennis of De Kalb; Dennis Murphree, former Lieutenant Governor and Governor; James, Walker, secretary to Representative John Bell Williams; Walter Siller, speaker of the Mississippi House; Representative William M. Whittington, Carroll Gartin of Laurel and Charles Cameron of Meridian.

Wages Far Apart

Shippers Cite Low Costs of Competitors

The National Federation of American Shipping declared yesterday that American vessels cannot compete with foreign ships "where the deciding factor is a freight rate or passenger fare based upon cost."

It said so in a letter to a five-man advisory committee appointed by President Truman to make recommendations, probably this fall, on a future program for the Nation's merchant marine.

The federation, which claims to represent 90 per cent of American deep-water passenger and cargo lines, disagreed on several points with the merchant marine program of the CIO Maritime Committee.

The federation cited wage scales in replying to this CIO statement:

"American shipowners excuse their failure to expand the American merchant fleet by pleading inability to compete." The CIO added: "The facts do not support this contention" and that only shipboard labor costs favor the foreign operator.

The federation recited that the monthly "take home" wages of seamen on American and competitive foreign vessels are: American $290, British $104, Dutch $80, Danish $90, French $92, Swedish $115 and Norwegian $108.

Firm Sues AFL Union, Official For $485,000

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—A union was sued today for alleged violation of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The W. J. Dillner Transfer Co., claiming damages suffered in unjustified and illegal strikes, asked the Federal court for a total of $485,000 damages from AFL general teamsters local 249 and an international union official.

The trucking firm asked $20,000 damages for a strike over the discharge of an employe, begun since the passage of the labor law. Other portions of the suit were based on alleged violation of the War Labor Disputes Act, the anti-trust law, and the civil rights amendment.

A suit for $180,000 trebel damages was filed against Albert O. Dietrich, international union officer, charging him with conspiracy to deprive the company of business during the so-called "Pittsburgh beer war"—a jurisdictional battle between the union and the CIO United Brewery Workers.

Other complaints charged that the company lost $60,000 business during the beer war and $75,000 during the recent general freight strike. The company claimed that in six disputes between 1946 and 1947 it suffered $100,000 damages.

The company asked $50,000 damages under the War Labor Disputes Act, claiming that the teamsters interferred in 1944 with the hauling of "secret machines and materials" from Pittsburgh to Tennessee.

Snobbery Charge by Farley Answered by Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said today she had been "deeply grieved" by James A. Farley's recent articles about the late President and denied having said the former Postmaster General was not her husband's "social equal."

Mrs. Roosevelt wrote of the Farley Collier's series:

"I am deeply grieved to find that Mr. Farley was not the person I thought him; or perhaps it would be better to say that I am grieved to find that Mr. Farley allowed himself to be made the kind of personality that Mr. Trohan of the Chicago Tribune, would inevitably make him."

Should Read Book

(Walter Trohan of the Chicago Tribune Washington staff, said, "Mrs. Roosevelt should have waited, I think, until she could read the whole book. . . . I am not making anybody any kind of person. At Farley's order I am trying to gather his material together. . . . He has okayed every word of the book which comes from the words he dictated at the moment. If she objects, as I assume she does, to the delineation of her husband, that comes from his (Mr. Roosevelt's) own words which were taken by Farley at his conferences with the President.")

Farley had written in the magazine that his relationship with Mr. Roosevelt was "basically political and seldom social." He wrote: "Mrs. Roosevelt once said, 'Franklin finds it hard to relax with people who aren't his social equal.' I took this remark to explain my being out of the infield."

Denies Such Thoughts

To this, the former First Lady responded:

"I am quite sure the remark could never have been made by me, since I never have had such thoughts. It never occurred to me that Mr. and Mrs. Farley felt themselves in any group different from that which we were in.

"Unwittingly in some way, I, who was responsible for purely society matters in the White House, seem to have hurt both Mr. and Mrs. Farley. For that I am deeply sorry, but I feel I never treated them any differently from any other member of the Cabinet.

"I have always liked and admired Mr. Farley and his special gifts and capacities. I still hope that when Mr. Trohan is through creating the Jim Farley of these articles I can find again the real Jim Farley whom one could not help liking and admiring."

Homeless, Explain Pair Who Abandoned Boys

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The parents of three small boys who were abandoned in a pew of the Holy were found by police today at a West Side restaurant where the mother worked as a waitress.

Frank Gillespie, 26, and his wife, Geraldine, said they did not think they had done anything wrong in leaving the children because they had not been able to find a place to live.

"We want our children back," Gillespie said. "We can take care of them, if we find a place to live."

Ford Announces Increases

Detroit, Aug. 26 (AP).—The round of increases in new automobile prices was almost complete today as Ford, which boosted listings on most of its cars and trucks last Sunday, advanced the tags on its Lincoln and Mercury models and the remainder of its Ford line.

Increases on the Lincoln models ranged from $148 to $200; on the Mercury line from $86 to $226, and on the Ford station wagons and convertibles, not included in the increases earlier this week, the advance ranged from $199 to $229.

The Ford action left only Studebaker with its passenger car prices unchanged. Trade sources generally expect Studebaker to announce advances soon.

The price hikes generally have added from $45 to more than $225 to the price of a new car.

The Ford increases announced last Sunday ranged, on units now in production, from $62 to $90. There were some lesser increases, but they applied to models not currently being assembled. Today's Ford increases included a $225 advance on an eight-cylinder de luxe station wagon.

The President's Calling List . . .

11 a. m.—Col. J. Monroe Johnson of Interstate Commerce Commission, with Col. Louis Johnson.

Union's Oath Plan Rejected

highly skilled workers who make the patterns for the molds into which materials are poured, including metals, plastics or glass. Lynch says there are only 15,500 members of the craft in this country and Canada, 14,000 of whom are affiliated with the union.

In another communication to Denham, Lynch asked the general counsel to note "that our affidavit sets forth that the deponent is not a member of, or in sympathy with (communism) (nazism) (fascism) or (any form of dictatorship regardless of name or color of shirt selected for purpose of identification)."

Lynch said the type of "buckshot affidavit" required by Denham with the force of government "is a totalitarian technique which can be employed to destroy basic freedoms through fear."

Lynch asked Denham to identify specifically the organizations and activities which union leaders must shun if they wish to use the facilities of the board under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Lynch said the language of the Denham affidavit was lifted from the act, but it was all wrong. He is opposed to all types of dictatorship, he said.

"It took Ireland 700 years to get rid of a king," he said, "and I'd be a poor son of Erin if I submitted to a dictator now."

Flights at 9-Mile Altitude Seen Near

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 26.—Military flight at altitudes from 40,000 to 50,000 feet—more than 9 miles above sea level—was predicted "for the near future" today by N. D. Showalter of the Boeing Aircraft Co. at a Boeing-sponsored symposium on high-altitude flight. He said 5-mile altitudes are at present "practical levels" for regular commercial air travel.

Military craft operated at altitudes ranging from 30,000 to 38,000 feet during the war.

Gen. Eisenhower Disturbed And Amused by 'Candidacy'

cline any nomination for me in language strong but courteous."

Two days later Delegate Henderson telegraphed Sherman that his was the only name the convention could agree on, and he begged him to "put aside your prejudices and accept the Presidency."

Feared Religious Issue

It was then that Sherman, according to the story of his son, Tom, slammed the door with his celebrated telegram saying he would not accept if nominated and would not serve if elected.

A strong "factor" in Sherman's refusal to run, according to his biographers, was fear that the religious issue would be raised. His wife was a Catholic and so were the children. The daughters went to Georgetown isitation Convent here, and Tom, the son, atteVndVeVdV Georgetown College and later entered the priesthood.

General Eisenhower, like General Sherman, began to be talked about in connection with the presidency while he was actually commanding troops in war.

Gave Three Reasons

However, the first real effort to get Ike to throw his hat in the ring was made here in Washington more than a year ago. Behind the effort were Midwestern Republicans with considerable influence in the GOP.

General Ike gave three reasons at that time for shunning politics:

1. From West Point on, his whole training had been in the military field. This had given him a soldier's viewpoint, and had put him out of touch with the thinking of the great mass of Americans. He doubted whether any military man, having such a background, was good presidential timber.

2. In view of his soldier's loyalty to the commander in chief, he could never bring himself to run against President Truman.

3. In every man's career there is a climax, a pinnacle. For him it came when the German surrendered to him at Rheims in May, 1945. Anything after that, he left, would be an anticlimax, much as he respected the great office of President.

Sought to Clear Doubt

Argument No. 2 was eliminated in June when General Eisenhower announced that he would retire as Chief of Staff early next year to become president of Columbia University in New York.

That announcement gave momentum to the Eisenhower-for-President boom, and "Draft Ike" buttons are now appearing all over the land.

Ike, after accepting the Columbia job, anticipated reporters' questions about politics and sought to "clear up any doubt" by this statement:

"My interest in politics in the future will be no greater, so far as I am personally concerned, than it has been in the past. I am taking a job that is, as far as I am concerned, removed from politics—personal politics."

Amused and Disturbed

General Ike feels that he has said enough on the subject.

Meantime, he is alternately amused and disturbed by the "boom." The fact that many people refuse to take him seriously when he says he is not interested in politics, causes him to muse over human nature and chuckle about it. And other times he worries lest the political talk handicap him in his efforts to persuade Congress to keep the Army strong.

General Eisenhower, now 56, will be available for the Presidency, from the standpoint of age, for at least the next two campaigns—'48 and '52.

If he does not go to the White House this time, the Nation can expect to hear from him as president of Columbia University. He has some very decided views about a strong America—strong, that is, not only militarily, but economically and morally.

Some who know Ike believe that is the role he would like best, rallying the Nation t fulfill its greatness—and doing it without the handicap of a political label.

But the political sophisticates are not so sure. They are going to continue looking upon Ike as a presidetial "possibility" until they have heard a louder "no" than has come from his yet.

Plane Design Night Courses

Registrations being received point to the largest fall enrollment the Columbia Technical Institute has had in its 37 years. Enrollments are equally divided between private students and veterans.

The classes of the engineering department will assemble September 18 and 19. The drafting, blueprint reading and estimating and commercial art courses may be started at any time.

In addition to the school's two-year day and four-year evening courses in mechanical, civil, architectural, electrical and aeronautical engineering, nine-month evening courses are offered in airplane design, airplane stress analysis, air conditioning, radio communications, building design, basic electrical, surveying, landscape architecture, machine design, television and electronics and combustion engines.

A composite drafting course is offered in day or evening classes. There are also courses in mechanical, aircraft, architectural, electrical, machine, landscape, Patent Office and topographic drafting, special lettering and sheet metal pattern.

Specialized courses in cartooning, architectural and landscape rendering and interior decorating design are scheduled for courses in day and evening classes.

The school has completed the construction and furnishing of a new shop and laboratory building.

Eisenhower Wins Support

ulation where the Republicans are most in need of votes.

The attitudes by occupation groups toward General Eisenhowers candidacy is shown in the following:

	Yes	No	Undec.
Farmers	24%	54%	22%
Prof. and bus.	25	64	11
White collar	31	54	15
Manual workers	44	37	19

The substantial support in the manual worker group may stem in part from the enthusiastic reception which General Eisenhower won from the CIO when he addressed the union convention early this year. In fact, that speech was in large responsible for starting speculation about the General for 1948.

Compton Runs Afoul Of Law of Averages

Walter Compton ran afoul of the law of averages recently on his "Quiz of Two Cities" show over WOL. Picking a lady contestant at random, Compton found himself asking her a quiz question she herself had submitted for the show some time previously.

The contestant was no end relieved when Compton switched to another question, as she had forgotten the answer to her own question.

Only 'In Diaper Stage'

Visual Education Seen Lagging

ALL HOLLYWOOD, supported by umpty million fans, would rise in protest at the suggestion that the movies are not a mature medium of popular enlightenment. Through the films the outraged defense would probably run, the Nation—nay, the world—has been taught all about everything from the up-sweep hair-do and psychoanalysis to delirium tremens and, recently, the atom bomb. Yet teachers will tell you that visual education in the American school is still in the diaper stage.

"We know in a general way that films can be exceedingly useful in the classroom," says Floyde E. Brooker, visual education chief of the United States Office of Education, in a report appearing in the current "School Life." "Beyond this fact, there are few, if any, categorical answers to the many visual education questions raised by teachers."

Because films are used in schools not built for them, and because the strips themselves are produced along questionably traditional lines, they have not been employed effectively in the classrooms of the most movie-minded country in the world.

What have been the obstacles?

The routine pitfalls are obvious and can be overcome with a minimum of effort. Classrooms have not been constructed with facilities to keep out the sunshine; schedules have been designed without consideration of the screen as a part-time teacher; the 16-mm projector has not been perfected for this specialized use; and school administrations have been slow in moving with the times.

But the real difficulties, says Brooker, are more fundamental. Developed in the theater, the film smacks of glamour and ballyhoo. It is "meant for" an audience which, immoblized in seats of plush and chromium, expects to have its mind tickled with uncomplicated entertainment or its tears jerked by delicious emotions. All these traditions are essentially non-educational.

Can't Be Just a Show

"STUDENTS and teachers know this tradition well;" says Brooker, "they are part of it." As long as the film remains merely "a show," unrelated to the student's experience and his classroom work, its value is negligible. Learning cannot be a "passive process. Its basic requirement is active participation.

Even the distribution of education films follows the theatrical tradition. Pictures must be "booked" long in advance, then are available for a limited period. Teachers, therefore, find it impossible to integrate film and instruction into a wholesome unit of education.

Beyond that, the pictures themselves are found ineffective. The sound track is permitted to dominate the image in the out-dated, verbal tradition. The meat of the effective educational film must be in the pictures, not in the commentary.

"We are so accustomed to using pictures as illustrations in support of a verbal text, or to break up the monotony of solid pages of type, that we have but limited understanding of how to use pictures actually to communicate ideas," continues the report. "We have not yet learned to 'read' pictures."

The fact that it is impossible to show just a cat—as in the spoken or written word—without any definite characteristics, makes the reading of pictures far more effective, but also more complicated. Inevitably, the cat of the film will be a specific one in breed, marking, temper and appeal.

The most flagrant shortcoming of the film in schools has been its similarity to the lettuce on a ham sandwich—all right, if available; but certainly not essential. If educational pictures are to become effective, they must stand on their own merit, capable of independent use—like the slice of bread.

As a rule, the showing of a film in class has all the elements of a surprise party. The youngsters know that they are going to have some fun and "entertainment"; the teacher hopes—just as the "surprise host"—that everything is going to run smoothly; and when it's all over, everybody settles down to the grim business of orthodox learning and teaching again as if nothing had happened.

Three Requirements

IN ORDER TO MAKE the film more than such fancy lace embellishment, Brooker recommends three specific requirements for the teacher:

1. To know the educational purpose and the actual contents of the film.

2. To prepare additional material and assignments in support of the film and to fit the film into the immediate situation; and

3. To check in advance all the mechanical aspects connected with the film's presentation.

In many instances a film will best be shown several times—once to appear in its over-all effect, and subsequently to permit the study of various specific aspects which it contains. Between each showing, there should be guided discussion of the contents.

This guiding rule, however, should not be permitted to become dogmatic. A highly emotional film on highway safety, for instance, may best be left to stand on its own gruesome message. Thrashing it out on the floor might lead to an anticlimax which would offset the emotional impression made by the picture itself.

In visual education—as in all effective teaching—the final decision on methods of presentation must rest with the individual teacher. There are no hard and fast rules. The immediate problem is for the educator to familiarize himself with a completely new medium and to free himself of useless traditions.

"Films are not self-teaching devices any more than automobiles drive themselves," says Brooker. "The importance of automobiles is not that they move, but that they move in given directions which are determined by the driver. The same is true of films."

The value of the film is not primarily to make the teacher's job easier, but to make teaching more effective. Driving an automobile (one is tempted to carry the report's analogy further) was not a simplification over the handling of a horse and buggy. The gain was in the improved mode of transportation. The driver, incidentally, could no longer rely on a brisk "giddap!" or "whoa!". This will be a lesson which teachers and school boards must keep in mind when using the screen.

When they have learned that lesson, visual education will have come of age. —F. H.

Defense Caves Deep Secret If They Exist

By The Associated Press

If there are any "atomic war" defense caverns under construction in the New Mexico desert, the armed forces made it clear yesterday that they intend to keep all details a supersecret.

The War and Navy Departments, pressed for information on published reports of huge caves being dug in a remote mesa between Albuquerque and the Sandia Base in New Mexico, would admit only what was admitted a month ago:

"The principal field installation of the AFSWP is Sandia Base."

AFSWP stands for "Armed Forces Special Weapons Project." A joint Army-Navy project charged with the development of atomic weapons, it is commanded by Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime head of the famed Manhattan Project which developed the five atomic bombs exploded up to now.

To make it perfectly plain that nothing more should be expected from official quarters, today's brief statement added:

"Constructions and operations at this (Sandia) base ball in the category of restricted data under the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 and are also classified military information. Therefore, amplification . . . is considered undesirable."

Vote on Merger With Mt. Rainier Won't Be Held

A referendum in which residents of Avondale, Avondale Terrace and North Woodridge would have voted next Tuesday to merge with the town of Mount Rainier, will not be held despite authorization by Maryland's General Assembly.

Legal notices announcing the referendum were not posted by the deadline last Saturday. Moreover, an Assembly-authorized committee, composed of Joseph J. Anselmo, William Mosher, Louis Mayola, and Mrs. Marion Cord, had taken no action to conduct it.

In June, residents of the three communities, plus those of Chillum and Green Meadows, voted about 2-to-1 against forming a new town of Springdale.

No further action on annexation or consolidation can be taken without authority of the Assembly.

Resources Post Offered Bus Magnate

By The Associated Press

Arthur M. Hill, Charleston, W. Va., bus line executive, yesterday was offered the post of chairman of the National Security Resources Board under the unified armed forces, under Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

Hill

Hill called at the White House for a conference with President Truman, Forrestal and Secretary of War Royall.

Hill, 55, is chairman of the board of the Atlantic Greyhound Corp., operating a busline along the Eastern seaboard. He was wartime chairman of the Navy's public works committee, director of the transportation branch in the secretary's office, and chairman of a Navy rubber survey committee.

U. S., States Urged to Use Army Trucks In Preparedness

By International News Service

A veteran Army transportation expert urged yesterday that Federal and State governments use military vehicles instead of commercial types, to equip the United States with an up-to-date motor fleet ready for instant use.

Col. C. Elford Smith, chief of the automotive division of the development and proof services at Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds, outlined the plan in Ordnance Magazine, published by the Army Ordnance Association.

Smith pointed out that in the event of war the Army would need thousands of modern military transport vehicles at once. But, he added, the automotive industry, busy filling the demand for passenger cars, would take months to get into production.

He acknowledged that the industry cannot afford to make military models in peacetime. The colonel went on:

"The answer is to have Federal agencies, State highway departments and private contractors on Federal projects use military-type vehicles instead of commercial vehicles, the difference in cost of building and operating them to be subsidized with War Department funds."

Smith said this form of military subsidy is not new.

A World-Famous Whiskey Name

Meets Today's Demand

for Mildness and Economy

MILLIONS of people have known the name of Mount Vernon for generations. In fact, it is one of the few whiskies which have won a world-wide reputation for quality.

But millions of people today are looking for a fine whiskey with a lighter, milder taste than the old-time Mount Vernon.

So we have called upon the skill of our expert blenders to produce such a whiskey—a whiskey that is delicate in flavor—light on the palate—blended to meet the widest popular taste.

This is the new Mount Vernon. It will, we predict, please more people than Mount Vernon has ever pleased before.

And to make this new version of one of the world's most famous whiskies doubly appealing, it is offered at the lowest price ever put on this distinguished brand.

We invite you to try its fine flavor—compare its mildness. We are confident that you will pronounce this new Mount Vernon fully worthy of its name.

U. N. Orders Cease-Fire Again in Java

Lake Success, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Security Council ordered the Netherlands and the Indonesian Republic again today to cease fire in Indonesia and clear the way for settling their dispute.

The Indonesians promptly said this was a "good thing." The Dutch said the cease-fire order could not be observed if the republic continued to "incite the Indonesians to murder the Dutch and burn houses."

It was, in effect, the second cease-fire directive handed down by the United Nations in 26 days. It was approved by 10 nations, with Britain abstaining.

The action ended the first phase of the Indonesian case here.

The delegates set it aside temporarily to see how well the consular observer team it had approved yesterday would supervise a truce.

The Council refused to approve a Belgian demand that it go to the International Court of Justice for a ruling whether it has jurisdiction in the Indonesian conflict.

The Council approved yesterday a resolution calling on the career consuls of six Council nations stationed now in Batavia to check on developments.

The Council also decided that, if asked, it would set up a Council committee of three, one to be named by each contestant and the third by the two countries so designated to help settle the despute.

Sutan Sjahrir, former Premier of the Indonesian Republic, told the Council today his government accepted the offer and would announce its selection after consultations with Jogjakarta.

Dr. Eelco N. van Kleffens said that the matter was being considered by his government in The Hague.

Untied Nations' activities:

1. Indonesia—The Security Council again ordered the Netherlands and Indonesian governments to stop fighting in Java.

2. Egypt—The Egyptian case was debater without action.

3. Veto—The Council will debate the veto problem tomorrow.

4. Assembly—The name of Iran was drawn from a hat to start off alphabetical seating of delegates to the forthcoming assemly session. Iran will be the pivotal country and occupy the first place on the left facing the rostrum.

5. Food—Austria, Finland, and Siam were admitted to the food and agriculture organization at Geneva.

can be used for the benefit of units of the Guard."

The ruling, he added, was given "about eight or ten months ago."

But the District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West is takink a stand with Auditor Pilkerson.

"As a general rule," West said, money derived from District buildings is put into the District's general fund.

"I've never looked into it, however," he added. "There might be some other legal angle. Whether there is an exception to the law for the National Guard I don't know."

Calls It 'Extra-Legal'

Terming it "extra-legal" to assign armory-produced funds directly to any guard unit, Pikerton declared he would turn the matter over to west if the guard tried to keep such funds.

West indicated he would rule on the matter if requested to do so by Pilkerton.

Meanwhile, General Cox has large plans for future—and apparently forthcoming—use of the mammoth drill hall by outside organizations.

"We have millions of dollars of property we're putting in that armory—we have to control it!" the general said.

Already announced is use of the hall by the Homebuilders Association of Metropolitan Washington for a "home show" in October, and the George Washington University homecoming dance November 1.

Beyond that, he said, local high schools will have use of the armory for basketball games during January and February. He also mentioned a rodeo to be held sometime in the future if it can be worked out.

Would Scale Amounts

General Cox said amount of rent to be charged for use of the armory would be determined "on the organization's ability to pay," and scaled accordingly.

"In any event," he said, "the charge will not be less than 15 per cent of the gross take.

"And at every armory function the ushers, who are also members of the National Guard, are likely to suggest to male patrons that they '. . . come down here and join us'."

The close cooperation, meantime, between the guard and George Washington University is continuing.

General Cox disclosed yesterday that the armory's facilities are to be offered the university's football team.

"We'll accept a little recruiting at the same time," he said.

Mission Asks Chinese Agricultural Aid

By the United Press

A "sound and comprehensive" agricultural program would go far in solving China's internal problems, a mission of American and Chinese farm experts reported last night. The report recommended increased emphasis on construction of chemical fertilizer plants, irrigation developments, improvement of plant and animal strains and the production of more fruits, vegetables and animals to step up nutritional standards.

It proposed adjustment of the currency rate, lower transportation and credit costs and the export of such commodities as tung oil, silk, tea and carpet wool.

Merger of the Farmers Bank of China and the Central Cooperative Bank into a single agricultural bank also was suggested.

IT'S OUR WAY OF MAKING FRIENDS

Dutch and Foreign Diplomats Dissatisfied With U. N. Action

Batavia, Java, Aug. 26, (AP).—Dutch and foreign diplomatic sources expressed dissatisfaction today over Unitetd Nations action to end the undeclared war in Indonesia. It was apparent the Dutch felt that only capture of Jogjarkarta, Republican capital, and creation of a new Indonesian government would solve the problem.

The Netherlands today took another step towards formation of a projected United States of Indonesia by establishing the self-governing Territory of East Borneo.

West Borneo and East Indonesia already have been set up as self-governing territories by the Dutch.

Acting Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. van Mook flew to Samarinda to install the first federal council of the new territory which embraces the rich oil-producing regions of Balikpapan and Tarakan.

An indication the Dutch plan to split former territory of the Indonesian republic was given in the speech of van Mook.

A Netherlands army communique said Indonesian forces had been driven back with severe losses in continuing fighting south and west of Salatiga, 38 miles north of Jogjakarta, and the closest Dutch approach to the Indonesian capital.

The U. N. Security Council yestetrday approved a resolution that the council tender its good offices to the Dutch and Indonesians and set up a committee of three council members if they accept, and a second calling for career consuls at Batavia to supervise the cease fire order of August 5.

Of the first proposal, a Dutch official said flatly it come "too close to 'recognition of the republic."

United States Consul General Walter Foote said he had no official instructions from Washington, but pointed out there are only seven career consuls in Batavia over a distance equal to that from New York to Denver.

The Dutch reported 14 other scattered engagements in Java and Sumatra.

U. S. Army Lifts Ban On Marriages in Italy

Rome, Aug. 26.—American soldiers with pregnant Italian fiancees heard with relief today that the United States Army had revoked its ban against marriages in Italy.

When the marriage ban was issued Col. A. L. Hamblen of Washington, commanding officer of the 1000 American soldiers in the Rome area, made exception to the pregnancies. When they continued to come in he decided that soldiers were using pregnancy deliberately.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Young Ready to Battle For New York Central

Editor's Note:—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round publishes an exclusive interview with Robert R. Young, crusading anti-Wall Street railroad magnate.)

Robert R. Young, crusading railroad tycoon, today served notice on Wall Street banking interests that he is prepared to wage a no-quarter battle in the stock market to gain control of the New York Central Railroad system.

Young

In an exclusive interview with the Washington Merry-Go-Round, the slight, 50-year-old Texan declared his plans are all set to stage such a fight in the event the Interstate Commerce Commission refuses to allow him to retain his New York Central directorship because he holds only 6 per cent of the railroad's stock.

"When the Morgan banks 'invited' me to join the New York Central's board," Young said, "they apparently figured they would be powerful enough behind the scenes to have the ICC subsequently block me. I don't think the ICC will do that. But if it does, then I'm all set for these Wall Street bankers.

"I will resign from the chairmanship of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Allegheny Corp. (top holding company of Young's railroad empire) and fight it out in the open market. It will not be difficult for me to buy 50,000 shares of New York Central stock and to get the stockholders behind me. Wall Street fought me once on competitive bidding, and lost. And they'll lose again this time.

"As a result of that other fight, Morgan and Stanley, the investment banking unit of J. P. Morgan, dropped from first to tenth place in the investment banking field. If they fight me for control of the New York Central, they will know I will come into power with a chip on my shoulder and take deposits away from the banks that are balking me. And they know me well enough to know that I don't make idle threats."

Hearings Start Sept. 15

ICC hearings on the momentous New York Central issue get underway here September 15. At stake in the fight is more than control of New York Central, in itself one of the greatest prizes in United States railroad history.

Also involved in the battle are two other major issues: Control of the giant Pullman Co. and the powerful Association of American Railroads.

Young sought to buy the Pullman Co. but lost his fight in an adverse Supreme Court decision. The A. A. R. dominated by the major railroads, has vigorously opposed him and derided his revolutionary modernization proposals.

If Young succeeds in gaining control of New York Central, the way will be open for him to consolidate it with his far-reaching C. & O. system. This will place him in a strong position to resume his efforts to obtain the Pullman Co., and to exert a deciding influence in the A. A. R. He makes no bones of his determination to do both.

"By winning control of the New York Central," he declared, "we can set aside the Supreme Court ruling in which we lost out on buynig the Pullman Co. The New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroad actually control the Pullman Co. Mellon interests have large holdings in the Pennsylvania and Pullman, and when they bid for it, they were actually doing business with themselves.

"If we gain control of the A. A. R., we will increase its activities along constructive lines and eliminate obstructive and destructive features. On the positive side, the A. A. R. would go more extensively into research and development work. It should have a proving ground for new developments, like General Motors' experimental work in the automotive field.

"The railroads must promote travel by rail, and go more deeply into competitive factors. They must show the public clearly that while one form of transportion (aviation) is being subsidized), another and even more important transportation facility (railroads) is being overtaxed."

Task for Entire Industry

Young stressed that no one single railroad can carry the whole burden of rail experimentation and modernization. He held it was a task that must be undertaken by the entire industry.

"All the railroads must get behind this job," he asserted. "The A. A. R. isn't doing that now. Travel by rail should be sold as aggressively as cigarettes and Coca Cola. And the new trains should be fast and lightweight. Group development of such lightweight trains would come a great deal faster than individual efforts, such as we are making on the Chesapeake & Ohio. Also, the cost of modern sleeping-car equipment would be a lot less.

"There are now 45,000 obsolete passenger cars in service. It would cost four billion dollars to replace them. Orders for their replacement should be going out right now, because the replacement of this ancient equipment with modern cars would create a demand for rail travel that within a few years would actually be spending six billion dollars for modernized equipment."

Young spoke very scathingly of Wall Street investment bankers and what he described as their "rackets."

"In the days before competitive bidding on bond issues," he declared, "the sale of an issue was a cut-and-dried affair. They were sold exclusively to certain people who had a hand in floating and selling the bonds in the first place. This practice was extremely profitable to the Wall Street-investment banker-insurance monopoly.

"Another racket of the investment bankers was to pay enoromus fees to friendly law firms and to make the railroads pay these fees. I know of one Wall Street law firm that used to receive from $500,000 to one million dollars a year in such fees. The firm was actually a rubber stamp. The railroad lawyers would do the work and this firm would 'approve' it and then collect a huge fee. Competitive bidding is breaking this racket up. Discount rates are lower and no longer are bonds snapped up by favored interests before the public even knows they are on sale."

Palatial Summer Home

Young's militant support of competitive bidding stems out of his five-year battle with the Morgan interests over control of the Chesapeake & Ohio. He lost control of the road in 1938, but regained it after a protracted struggle. Young attributes his victory to competitive bidding.

Young's summer office is in his palatial home by the sea in Newport, R. I. He works in sports clothes and is as informal in speech and manner as his attire. He transacts most of his business by telephone. However, all the spectacular ads in which he has been blasting the rail industry are personally read by him before publication. He gets a big kick out of these ads.

Young's assistants are a hand-picked corps of experienced specialists in their fields. Among them are former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, former chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee; Tom Deegan, former New York Times sports writer; and Joe Borkin, former ace of the antitrust division of the Justice Department.

Italy To Ask Bank For $250,000,000 Loan

Italy will apply to the World Bank within the next few days for a reconstruction loan of 250 million dollars, Italian diplomats said yesterday.

This bid will be the first by an ex-enemy country. Italy was admitted to bank membership last fall even though not a member of the United Nations.

Harness Protests Health Insurance For Japan Nation

By The Associated Press

Representative Harness (R., Ind.) complained yesterday that a Government mission is going to Tokyo "committed in advance to a national program for socialized medicine in Japan."

He said the House subcommittee on propaganda of which he is chairman is investigating and hopes to tell the Justice Department what it finds out.

Harness said that the mission, a joint project of the Social Security Administration and the Public Health Service, is leaving about Thursday to advise Japanese authorities "on a national health program for Japan." The mission is made up chiefly of Federal employes "known to be militant advocates of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill for compulsory health insurance in the United States," Harness said. The evidence shows that this bill has been chosen "as the beginning point of the mission's health survey in Japan," he added.

Griswold Aide Named

The State Department yesterday named Eugene Herbert Clay of New York City as economic adviser to Dwight Griswold, chief of the American aid mission to Greece. He is former chief economic planning officer for General Eisenhower during the war.

Widow Claims Hitler Rigged Todt's Death

Berchtesgaden, Germany, Aug. 26 (AP).—Adolph Hitler ordered the "accidental" plane crash in 1942 which resulted in the death of Maj. Gen. Fritz Todt, Nazi minister of munitions and builder of the Siegfried Line, the engineer's widow asserted today.

Mrs. Elsbeth Todt, 64, made the claim as a German denazification court placed her on trial.

She said Hitler had been jealous of Todt's "growing popularity" with the German people and had instructed the Gestapo to do something about it. A time bomb planted in a plane exploded in flight, she said.

Charge Against Pastor Cut in Poison Death

Summerville, Ga., Aug. 26 (AP).—A murder charge against the Rev. Gordon Miller was reduced to manslaughter today, and a brother of a member of the preacher's flock who died following a rural poison-drinking religious ceremony offered bond for Miller.

Willis Davis, brother of Ernest Davis, 33, who died, after drinking strychnine to prove his faith, said he was ready to put up his home in lieu of $1500 bond.

Later, however, the bond was posted by G. W. Agnew, a farmer.

Looking at Hollywood

That British Levy Doesn't Scare Leo

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26.—Peggy Ann Garner, one of our finest actresses, ends her Twentieth Century contract on loan-out to Columbia where she's playing in "Sign of the Ram." From there she moves over to RKO to be with Cary Grant in "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House." When Mr. Blanding built his house, funnier things happened to him than were included in the book. Let's hope they'll show up in the picture.

A Retake Is Wanted

Metro wants to do another picture with Mickey Rooney and Brian Donlevy since officials got a look at "Killer McCoy," which they recently finished. . . . What studio is afraid a scandal will break out over the romance of its glamorous star and a famous sportscaster? Parties concerned are married—but not to each other. . . . Tommy Mitchell goes back to Broadway to star in "An Inspector Calls," with Rene Ray, English actress and writer who is so good in "If Winter Comes." Cedric Hardwicke will direct.

As soon as Steve Cochran finishes the Danny Kaye picture, "A Song Is Born," he'll do a New York play for Leland Hayward. Steve's biggest success on Broadway was in "The Hickory Stick," in 1936. I asked him about love, and he replied, "There ain't any. Fay is getting her divorce here, and that will keep me free for at least a year." . . . Jack Paar, Jack Benny's summer sub, wrote a book of nursery rhymes, and to prove it he's showing everybody a royalty check he received for $23.63.

The Right Way to Do It

Peter Rathvon, head of RKO, has the right idea. Instead of firing the little people from his studio to make up for the loss of the British market, he has asked his top producers to cut 33 1/3 per cent off the cost of their pictures.

Leo Spitz, chairman of the board of Universal-International, is not leaving that company. Leo helped put the Billy Goetz-J. Arthur Rank deal together. He had retired from film business, but was persuaded to return. Leo never ran away from trouble, and he knows that the English tax isn't the end of the world. I wish we had more men of his courage in this town.

The No's Have It

Frank Sinatra is disappointed. He and Gene Kelly wanted to do a remake of "San Francisco" in the parts Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy played. I asked my readers what they thought of the idea, and they replied almost unanimously: "No! A thousand times no! Let's see the old picture again. Frankie and Gene aren't the types" . . .

Paul Whiteman named one of his Aberdeen Angus calves Harry Lillis Crosby . . . Charlie Grapewin, who swore he wouldn't act again after his marriage, goes into "Enchanted Valley" for Eagle-Lion. Remember Charlie as the grandfather in "The Good Earth?"

Eastport Asks Truman to Aid Quoddy DP Plan

Eastport, Me., Aug. 26 (AP).—Eastport's City Council today appealed to President Truman for aid in its efforts to acquire abandoned Quoddy Village for a displaced persons' industrial training project.

Meeting in a special session, the council unanimously approved a petition to the President which asked that he give "earnest and prompt consideration to and action through the War Assets Administration" on the municipality's priority application to WAA.

The training project was depicted by the petition as "harmoniously attuned" to the President's own convictions regarding the displaced persons problem.

Cohen Heads Syndicate

Fear was expressed that unless prompt action by Federal agencies were taken, "cold weather and fog prevalent in this area starting in November will prevent reconditioning of housing and necessary facilities" in time for the first contingent of DPs to arrive and begin training this year.

The petition was read by City Manager Ralph T. Colwell before its adoption.

Under the proposed plan, Eastport would acquire the village, a 232 acre group of homes and industrial buildings remaining from the abandoned 37-million-dollar Passamquoddy Bay tidal power project, and turn it over for operation to a syndicate headed by Frank E. Cohen, New York and Philadelphia tractor manufacturer.

Cites "Untrue" Statements

The WAA labor policy board has been represented as having voted to "withhold approval" unless the sponsors meet certain conditions.

Eastport's petition said "many unfavorable and untrue statements have been made regarding our project" and declared "our hearts and our hands are clean in this proposition."

"We will have all of the facts and figures to support this double-hearted humanitarian project."

The petition saw the Cohen project as one that "relieves our Government from maintaining up to possibly 100,000 displaced persons in Europe" and trains them at "no cost" to Government.

'Reached Bankruptcy'

Stating "this is a city of Eastport project alone," the petition said, "We are trying to secure a permanent payroll to bring about our continued economic existence and survival."

"The city of Eastport," it said, "has made an agreement with Frank Cohen and his associates to maintain and supervise a training program. This program will be under the absolute authority and direction of the city."

Quoddy Plan Backer Charges Conspiracy by Brewster Foes

to defend himself from irresponsible statements issued from various ill-disposed and, to him, concealed sources."

Trynin said Cohen received telegrams "from various Allied military sources" attesting "the genuine contribution made by his guns and other devices." These telegrams, Trynin said, "are said to be in the possession of Senator Brewster's office and are available for anyone's inspection."

Trynin gave The Washington Post a statement dated August 25, denying that the Quoddy project would result in employment of "slave labor" or that it would result in profits for manufacturers involved in its training operations. The statement points out that wages cannot legally be paid individuals entering under transit visas or training permits. It says Cohen has proposed that trainees' wages be turned over to relief organizations which would help maintain the DPs at Quoddy and at their eventual destinations in South America.

No Profits Expected

As for profits, the statement declared it "utter stupidity" that a plant employing untrained labor a maximum of six months for training could be expected to make a profit.

The statement points out also that the cost of transporting raw materials to Quoddy for assembly, and shipping the finished products to markets would be such that "it is rediculous to imagine there could possibly be any profit." If there should be any favorable balance between cost and revenue, the statement quotes Cohen as explaining, "such difference would be paid over to the relief organizations to help carry the maintenance."

Trynin handed The Washington Post a carbon copy of a "Quoddy conference held at the office of Senator Brewster on July 31, 1947." This document reports those present as Brewster, Gen. John H. Hilldring, Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas; Herbert A. Fiest, adviser to Hilldring; Gen. Walter Wood of the International Refugee Organization; Ed Shaughnessy of the Office of Immigration; Col. W. C. Baker and Robert Fisher of the War Department, and Roy C. Haines, assistant to Brewster.

Hilldring is described as opening the conference with a request for additional information on the many facets presented by the project. The report says Brewster then explained that Cohen already had been to South America and talked with officials of several governments, and described Cohen as being "noted as an industrialist with imagination and executive ability." Brewster is described as quoting a newspaper story telling of shipment of 1000 tractors to Argentina by the Philadelphia branch of Cohen's Empire Tractor Corp., and explaining that a branch of this factory would be established in Maine.

Army Had No Food Funds

The War Department representatives are quoted as explaining that the Army was ready to bring DPs here from Europe but that funds had expired to furnish them with rations and clothing. The report then quotes Hilldring as saying the IRO would transport and feed the DPs.

Shaughnessy is quoted as explaining many difficulties envisioned by the Immigration Service, but declaring his office "even so would be glad to follow General Hilldring 100 per cent." The War Department representatives are later quoted as saying they had no funds and no fleet to undertake transportation of the DPs but they were "in complete agreement" with the project as outlined by Hilldring.

"The conference was marked by friendly and cordial interest in the entire project," the report says.

Trynin also presented extracts from a letter to Brewster from Hilldring dated August 8, 1947, which include the statement that "the Department of State has made every effort to fulfill the President's program of assisting the displaced persons in every legitimate and proper way, including resettlement. We have approached this project in this spirit . . ."

IRO Might Assist

The letter then says that Hilldring had consulted with Wood and "General Wood would have to submit the entire project to IRO for approval, but believed that the IRO might be able to assist us to the same extent as if the displaced persons were being transported directly from Germany to South America."

Trynin presented another report, by Haines, of a conference August 19 with Clark Clifford, presidential adviser. Haines reported that he explained to Clifford that Cohen was prepared to invest $250,000 in the project if necessary to recondition Quoddy Village.

He reported he told Clifford of "a very strong endorsement from (Robert P.) Patterson, Secretary of War, who declared that Mr. Cohen made a mighty valuable contribution to the war, both prior to our entrance into the war and during our part of the war."

SEC "Fishing Expedition" Cited

"At this point," the report says, "it was observed that the Securities and Exchange Commission had succeeded in obtaining a directive from President Roosevelt enabling that body to carry on an extensive and costly 'fishing expedition' and type of investigation which cost Mr. Cohen a great sum of money and interfered seriously with his many war efforts.

"It was further noted that this investigation was carried on before Mr. Cohen or any of his group had any contractual relations with any branch of the United States Government, at a time when his only work was on behalf of the British and at a time when none of the goods produced for the British . . . was paid for by the British out of Lend-Lease funds. That, therefore, the SEC investigation which embarrassed Mr. Cohen was at the outset an illegal one. This tone was concluded with the observation that the previous administration had in some instances gone all out to embarrass Mr. FrankCohen."

"Obviously," Trynin said, "Mr. Cohen's hopes and beliefs regarding the Quoddy project were based on reliable sources, and it was never his intention to 'make sensational news' or these difficult plans to aid oppressed displaced persons. The recent developments of the Hughes-Brewster fued seemed to make it opportune to discredit the well-meant project and himself, its sponsor."

U. S. Demands Third of Jap Reparations

Paris, Aug. 26.—The United States is demanding over one-third of the total of reparations Japan is to pay for Pearl Harbor and after.

Russia asks 14 per cent of the total. Most modest claimant is Canada, with one and one-half per cent. The most exacting is China, which demands 40 per cent.

This unpublished list of percentages is in the State Department's files, where it has been hidden for about three months. It was compiled on the basis of confidential statements by the 11 powers represented on the Far Eastern Commission in repl yto a United States inquiry.

However, their total adds up to more than 200 per cent.

Here are the slices which the 11 Pacific powers have demanded of the Japanese reparations pie: Australia, 28 per cent; Canada, 1.5; China, 40; France, 12; India, 18; The Netherlands, 15; New Zealand, 2; Philippines, 15; Russia, 14; Britain, 25, and the United States, 34 per cent.

Man With Nail in Skull Ponders Over Removal

Fort Logan, Colo., Aug. 26 (U.P.)—War veteran Virgil Gomez of Cerro, N. M., was in the Veterans Administration Hospital today trying to decide whether to let doctors take a two-inch nail out of his skull.

Gomez, of New Mexico's famed 200th Coast Artillery, was captured by the Japs on Bataan in the early days of the war.

Gomez believes that during a spell of sickness one of his Jap guards "hammered" the two-inch nail into his head. Doctors told him that an operation "would be very touchy" but said if they did operate it should be within the next 10 days. Gomez' wife Isabel is expecting a child in November. He doesn't want to take a chance on missing that event.

Bloodhounds Trail Tenant In Kidnaping

Centreville, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—State police using bloodhounds today led a posse beating the woods northeast of here for a 39-year-old Negro charged with kidnaping after he and a 15-year-old white girl disappeared together August 6.

The girl, daughter of a tenant farmer at Wye Mills, Md., was held for questioning at Easton. She was found "thin and in filthy condition" after apparently living in the woods for more than two weeks.

Kidnap Warrant Out

Sought was Cornelius Ellsworth Whiting, described as a native of Virginia and formerly a resident of New York City, reported seen walking along a road toward the Delaware line early today.

Whiting was named in a kidnap warrant sworn out August 7. He was another tenant on the farm where the girl's father worked.

The father reported seeing his daughter walking along a road between here and Church Hill, Md., Sunday evening. He said she ran into a cornfield.

Tied Up in Barn

A constable found the girl and a man there. He seized the girl but the man fled.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Stewart said he learned Whiting and the girl had planned to elope. He reported Whiting's wife had left him because of his attentions to the girl.

Members of the girl's family quoted her as saying Whiting first tied her in a barn on the farm at Wye Mills and later carried her into the woods.

10 Oil Firms Facing Probe

of Wilkes Barre, Pa., division manager, and his attorney, George H. Colin.

Sinclair Refining Co.—Byron Mackenzie, area manager, and Attorneys Joseph P. Walsh, V. R. Tomlinson and Richard Sowder.

Gulf Oil Co.—Sam Parks, District manager, and Attorney Archie Gray of Houston, Tex.

Sun Oil Co.—H. L. Beckwith, regional manager.

Also a witness was Harry R. Wainwright of Baltimore, executive director of the Maryland Gasoline Dealers' Association. Until recently, Wainwright held a similar position with the Retail Gasoline Dealers, Inc., the local trade association for independent gasoline dealers.

The latter organization and Standard Oil of New Jersey were specifically cited in Attorney General Clark's letter authorizing the investigation.

Wainwright told reporters after he emerged from the grand jury room that he had been asked "general" questions about prices and conditions locally.

R. A. Herrick, executive director of the Retail Gasoline Dealers, appeared before the jury Monday, and Wallace S. Linfoot, president of the organization, is expected to testify today.

Several of the witnesses who testified yesterday said they had been directed to return again today.

Meanwhile, the July grand jury which since last Wednesday has been hearing testimony relating to commissions paid brokers on real estate transactions listened yesterday to four more witnesses.

Every witness summoned to date has been questioned entirely about real estate operations. There has been no sign of a broadening of the probe to include the entire housing industry as authorized by the Attorney General.

Yesterday's witnesses before the July grand jury included G. Calvert Bowie, Washington real estate man; Joseph Laronge of Cleveland, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers and a director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; Lowell Baker of Chicago, administrative secretary of the NAREB, and H. Clifford Bangs, local realtor and former president of the Washington Real Estate Board.

Bowie, who appeared as a witness before the jury Friday, said he was recalled to repeat some of his answers.

Laronge was before the jury only about five minutes. He said he was asked to describe the corporate structure of both organizations which he represents and the names of their officers. He said he was also questioned about the rules, rates and customs committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Baker said he was asked to describe particularly the operations of this committee. He said he explained that the committee had not functioned in more than a year and had never issued a mandatory set of commission rates.

Bangs was obviously unhappy when he came from the jury room. He said the questions directed at him concerned his activities "about nine years ago."

He said the Washington Real Estate Board was investigated by a congressional committee in 1932 and given a clean bill of health.

Navy Enlistments Double June Figure

Navy enlistments during July totaled 12,611 men, more than double the figure for June, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

The total was still short of the monthly goal of 15,000, but Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, chief of naval personnel, said he believes the Navy will finish the fiscal year which began July 1 with its planned strength of slightly under 400,000.

Wanted a Horse

Md. Runaway Is Found in Los Angeles

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

RALPH G. PERRY, Jr., 12, of Spring Brook, Md., ponders his future in Juvenile Hall, Los Angeles, where he was being held yesterday, pending action by his parents for return to Maryland. He told authorities he ran away fro mhome to try to get a horse and a job as a movie cowboy. Ralph was picked up when, with only a quarter in his pocket, he wired home for money

A 12-year-old Spring Brook, Md., boy who ran away because he couldn't have a horse, was found tired and hungry in Los Angeles, Calif., yesterday.

He is Ralph G. Perry, Jr., whose fate, his parents said last night, will rest with Maryland Training School authorities, who are arranging for his return.

The lad ran away from home before, they said, and was in the training school late in 1945.

He told Los Angeles palice he "got fouled up because my Dad wouldn't give me a horse I wanted. I wanted to see the movie stars." He used $65 traveling by train from Washington, he said.

Production Rises But Lumber Price Won't Drop Much

The Commerce Department's lumber survey committee reported last night that lumber production has increased, but held out little hope for a substantial cut in prices.

Composed of industry leaders, the committee reported that prices are "gradually stabilizing" after the price index hit an all-time high in April of 273.5 per cent of the 1926 level.

But it added that increased production costs "preclude any drastic lowering of prices if the present high levels of production are to be continued.

Truman Again Names Boyd as Mines Head

President Truman yesterday named James Boyd of Colorado to an interim appointment as head of the Interior Department's Bureau of Mines.

Mr. Truman nominated Boyd for the post earlie rthis year but the Senate, pressing for adjournment, failed to confirm the appointment.

The nomination was approved by the Senate Public Lands Committee over the protests of John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers union.

Montgomery Board Breaks 2 Precedents

At a regular meeting yesterday to hear zoning petitions, the Montgomery County Commissioners shattered precedent not once but twice.

In the first variation of their procedure to date, the commissioners moved from the Rockville court house to Silver Spring to hear the petitions. In the second, they took immediate action on the applications.

Since it was elected, the present board has held all zoning hearings in Rockville and has withheld action on zoning petitions for an indefinite time after hearing applicants or opponents.

In Silver Spring police court the board approved nine rezoning petitions and denied two.

Among those approved was a request by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to rezone back to its former single-family status that portion of the Corby tract, on Rockville pike, which had been rezoned to commercial D for construction of the proposed 20-million-dollar Diplomat Hotel.

The property was reclassified in April of last year with the provise it would be returned to its original classification if construction was not started by this time. Ground has not yet been broken.

In the face of opposition from six property owners, the board disapproved an application by Gary H. Smith for reclassification from residential A to apartment house use, two lots on the west side of Sutherland rd. between Old Bladensburg rd. and Timberwood ave., Four Corners.

PETITIONS APPROVED:

Alice M. Jones, residential C to A of property at 316 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park; W. R. and M. W. Carpenter, residential C to A of property at 314 Ethan Allen ave.; M. H. and L. B. Boxie, residential C to A of property at 318 Ethan Allen ave.; W. H. and A. D. North, residential C to A of property at 312 Ethan Allen ave.; J. H. and B. A. Ellerbrock, residential C to A of property at Manchester and Geren rds., Silver Spring; L. A. and W. F. Motte, residential C to A of property adjoining the Ellerbrock house; Ben B. and Telia Lawshe, residential C to A of property at Manchester and Reading rds., Silver Spring.

DENIED was a petition by L. J. and R. B. Sheeby, 310 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, for rezoning from residential C to A. A recommendation by the planning commission that the property be rezoned residential B, since the house is occupied by two families, was approved.

Merchant Calls Maryland Use Tax Unconstitutional

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—A Baltimore merchant today questioned constitutionality of the use tax section of the Maryland retail sales tax.

Smauel Shapiro, member of a firm bearing his name, wrote Comptroller James J. Lacy that the use tax violates two provisions of the federal constitution.

Shapiro wrote that "I cannot see how a Maryland use tax or a tax by any other name can be a legal tax under the Federal Constitution where articles are brought into Maryland from points beyond the State's borders."

The State requires that purchasers declare and pay taxes on articles bought outside of Maryland. The U. S. Constitution says: "No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State," and "no State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any impost on imports or exports, except what may be necessary for executing its inspection laws . . ."

CIO Auto Workers Deny Strike Charges

Detroit, Aug. 26 (AP).—Emil Mazey, a CIO United Auto Workers regional director, and five other union members pleaded innocent today on charges growing out of a picket line clash with police Monday at the strikebound Huck Manufacturing Co.

Meanwhile, the State Labor Mediation Board arranged a meeting between union and company officials in an effort to settle the 55-day-old wage dispute.

Russia Hails Record Jump by Parachutist

Moscow, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—A new world record in parachute jumps was set by Lieut. Col. Vasili Romanyuk by his leap of 13,400 meters (43,952 feet) Soviet newspapers claimed today, hailing the jumy as the world's longest parachute "journey."

The temperature at 13,400 meters was minus 72 degrees. Reports said that Romanyuk took 21 minutes to descend.

Fay Asks Severer Penalties, Treatment for Sex Criminals

confident the Senate group would cooperate in a drive for early passage of a stricter law covering sex offenses.

Conferring with Fay on the proposal yesterday were Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital; James V. Bennett, Federal prison director; Dr. Justin K. Fuller, chief medical officer for the Federal Bureau of Prisons; Sidney Sachs, assistant United States Attorney; Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Police Women's Bureau; Lieut. William T. Murphy, head of the Police Juvenile Bureau, and Detective Sergt. Richard McCarty, head of the police sex squad.

Besides continuing to work with these officials, Fay said he planned to collaborate with the District Bar Association's new committee set up to study the problem.

This 15-member group was named by George McNeil, bar association president, to study both the problem of a stronger statute on sex crimes, and the question of broadening the scope of the District's mental health law.

William C. Sullivan, chairman of the new committee, said he planned an organization meeting next week. He said he would set up two subcommittees, one to work with Fay on the proposed stricter sex offense act, and the other to study mental health committment laws.

Fay and other members of the conference group said there was general agreement on the need for a stronger sex offenders law in the District, and that its first aim should be to protect children and the public generally from sex perverts.

Stiff Penalties for Perversion

He said the proposed general sex offenders statute would be aimed at acts of perversion, with possible maximum penalties of 5 or 10 years in jail. He said the general statute might contain a section treating indecent exposure offenses as misdemeanors, with possibly a $500 fine and a year in jail as the top penalty.

A second section of the proposed law would be particularly aimed at heavy punishment for those whose sex offenses were against children. He suggested that the penalties where children were involved might be made as severe as those covered by the more general section.

Commitment by Jury

In the section dealing with sex psychopaths, Fay suggested that the Illinois law might give the District a guide, but possibly not the final answer. He cited excerpts from the Illinois law, including these highlights:

1. It is designed to control "criminal sexual psychopathic persons." These are defined as persons who have been suffering for a year or more with a mental disorder, coupled with "criminal propensities to the commission of sex offenses," and who still are not insane, or feebleminded.

2. When criminal sexual psychopaths are charged with a sex offense, the court on petition from the prosecuting attorney can have the suspect examined by two psychiatrists. They report back to the court. If they find the suspect is a criminal sexual psychopath, the criminal charge can be laid aside, and he can get a jury trial to decide whether he should be committed to a mental institution.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Mr. Henry A. Parr 3d, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, no doubt registered a decent kind of concern for Trainer Maxie Hirsch when Assault pulled up lame at Chicago the other day, because Mr. Parr is a very decent sort of gentleman. And he could sympathize, too, with Mr. Ben Lindheimer whose Washington Park track was done out of the $100,000 Assault-Armed match race.

POVICH

Harry Parr is not the chap to trade on other persons miseries, but he could be forgiven at least a slight satisfaction at the developments. He operates the Pimlico track, you see, and in October he will stage the Pimlico Special, and he has reason to anticipate that the long-awaited Armed-Assault race will now take place at the Baltimore track.

Not only does it promise to be Armed and Assault, but Stymie, too, in the Pimlico Special. There was some grumbling when Stymie, recent conqueror of Assault and top purse winner of all time, was omitted from the match race invitation at Chicago. Without Stymie, the Assault-Armed race wouldn't decide much, and with the race-going public the rags-to-riches Stymie which once was bought for $1500, has always been the favorite steed.

IF PARR DOES bring the three of them to Pimlico for the Special, it will be some kind of a compliment to the fellow's charm. He is selling the Special to the big stables as the Nation's biggest sporting race, a throw-back to the early days of racing when horse owners raced their steeds of a "my-hoss-can-beat-yours" basis, without big purse money as the incentive.

The $25,000 purse for the Special isn't much as stake purses go these days. In fact, it's one of the smaller stakes in racing's lush times when anything less than $50,000 is not considered a rich purse. But that's the very charm of the Special. High good sportsmanship reigns as king for that day, at least, with the owners making concessions in purse money to shoot for the honor of winning the race.

There is precedent for an Armed-Assault-Stymie battle in the Special. When other tracks, offering far bigger purses failed to lure War Admiral and Seabiscuit into a match race in 1938, Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt landed it for Pimlico in the Special. Parr, as Vanderbilt's successor in the presidency of the Maryland Jockey Club, can play on the same personal equasion with the horse owners that enabled Vanderbilt to stage the race.

PARR IS NO come-lately to the horse racing scene. His uncle, Ral Parr, operated one of the big stables in the East, and young Harry was no less than president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, representing the Nation's horse tracks, a couple of years ago. Shortly after his election to the presidency of the Maryland Jockey Club, which is Pimlico, he engineered the purchase of the Laurel track from the Butler and Matt Winn interests.

He's on excellent terms with the Calumet Farm people, who have the say as to where and when Armed will race, and he is a long-time friend of Maxie Hirsch, who trains Assault. When Hirsch announced that it would be a month before Assault was ready to race again after his accident in the Washington Park workout last Saturday, that projected his return to racing into the Pimlico season.

Both Calumet and Hirsch will race their horses at Pimlico, and have expressed their intention, too, of taking stable room at Laurel, which is Parr's latest and most enthusiastic undertaking. The Laurel track for years has suffered from the refusal of many of the bigger stables to race there because of the dubious condition of the track, but on Parr's promise that it will be refurbished, the big stables will go to Laurel again.

WHAT PARR CONFESSES he is attempting to do is move in on the Washington scene with Laurel. "We want to make it Washington's race track," he said, "to give Washington fans the kind of racing at Laurel they've been denied before on account of the uncertain condition of the track. We are spending $250,000 to make it attractive, first to the horsemen, and that much more to make it popular with Washingtonians."

Parr's first problem at Laurel was to lick the track conditions, made unsafe by the seepage from the small creek at the elevation of the railroad tracks. Lack of draining facilities made it hazardous footing on both the far turn and the stretch turn. "We admit it," says Parr, "and we don't expect to bring the big horses in until the condition is remedied. A new track, complete with new gravel base, is our ultimate goal, and we'll eventually have it."

Not only the track condition, but the down-at-the-heel stable areas have kept the important stables away from Laurel, Parr points out. "We're cleaning that all up, too. You have to attract the horsemen before you can attract the fans." He's proud about the whole Laurel reconditioning program, and he positively gleamed when he said, "and 40 new manure pits, too."

Mize Hits 2 Homers As Giants Beat Cubs

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Slugging Johnny Mize of the New York Giants crashed his forty-first and forty-second home runs of the National League campaign today and picked up two singles, including the game-winning infield safety, as the Giants nipped the Chicago Cubs, 7-6.

Rain forced the postponement of the second game in the last of the second.

Mize slammed No. 41 into the right field stands in the second inning with none aboard, and collected No. 42 in the same place with two on the sacks in the third inning to tie the count at four-all.

His homers put him four games and two days ahead of Babe Ruth's 1927 record when the Bambino set his record of 60.

Andy Pafko's two-run homer gave the Cubs a lead in the first, and Bobby Sturgeon's two-run triple added another pair in the third. But Mize was carrying on a one-man campaign and his two circuit blows knotted it. The Cubs came back and held a 6-5 lead going into the last of the ninth.

Pinch-hitter Ernie Lombardi opend the final rally with a single. Lloyd Gearhart ran for him and moved up on a sacrifice when Emil Kush took over for Starter Bob Chipman. Gearhart advanced on Micky Witek's infield fly and scored on Bobby Thompson's single. Bobby Blattner, running for Witek, took third on the blow and scored the winning run when Mize scratched his fourth hit of the day, an infield single.

Daily Double Pays $7711.20

Henderson, Ky., Aug. 26 (AP). A field horse, Holy Zon, and Last Waltz, a $33.20 for $2 long shot, came through in the first and second races at Dade Park today to combine for one of the largest daily doubles in years, $7711.20.

The field horse paid $31 in the first race. Other horses grouped in the field were Donna Gray and Back Slap.

Bee Bee Learns You Can't Fight, Win Every Week

Bee Bee came home from Baltimore a beaten gladiator after a 10-round bout with Frank Lacey.

They called it an upset and maybe it was. But the fight Bee Bee had a week ago in Griffith Stadium against the lightning-fast Tommy Yarosz of Pittsburgh had a lot to do with Lacey's victory. Bee Bee lost that one, too.

The Baltimore decision against Bee Bee was unanimous.

Lacey was on the offensive during the greater part of the match, constantly beating his foe to the punch. Bee Bee rallied in the late stages, but could not overcome Lacey's early advantage.

Washington weighed 162, Lacey 155.

Voiselle Beats Cardinals, 5 to 1

Nats Cool Chisox, 4-3, In 69-Degree Temperature

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Chicago, Aug. 26.—It took a cool day (69 degrees) in August for the Nats to score one of their rare victories over the White Sox, but they warmed up to the situation in the first three innings and iced away a 4-3 triumph in the series opener.

Not until Jerry Priddy retired Don Kolloway for the game-ending out was it certain, however, that the Chisox would not come through to bump the Nats, a trick they have accomplished 13 times in 19 engagements this year.

Walter Masterson, making a mound appearance for the third time in five days had an easy 4-1 victory going into the seventh, but came out of it leading by only one thin run.

A Threat Falls Short

Even that advantage threatened to be rubbed out in the eighth, but the Sox couldn't generate quite enough steam after Rudy York led off with a single and moved into scoring position on a sacrifice.

The Nats owe their victory and Masterson's tenth to a first-inning rumpus which produced three runs, aided by some spotty Chisox defensive work.

Lefthander Eddie Lopat, who had whipped Bluege's seventh-placers the three previous times he opposed them, didn't look like he was in for trouble as Johnny Sullivan bounced out to open the inning.

But Sullivan was just a decoy, it later turned out. Buddy Lewis scratched a single off Second Baseman Kolloway's glove and Tom McBride lashed a legitimate double into left to score Lewis.

Mickey Vernon, who got three of Washington's 10 hits, dropped one into left which Ralph Hodgin misjudged and it, too, fell for a double and McBride became the second run.

Vernon wasn't content to stop at second, however. He headed for third and would have been out easily had Kolloway's relay not have hit him and bounded into the Chisox dugout. Mickey then walked across with the third Nat run.

The Nats got their final talley in the third and it proved to be the big one. Vernon got a bona fide single this trip and Stan Spence chased him to third with his second straight single. Priddy's fly to Hodgin brought Vernon in.

The Chisox were runless until the fifth when Lopat decided to do something for himself. What he did was to sock a double to center to score Mike Tresh, who had singled.

Candini Again

Lopat almost forced Masterson to retire in favor of Milo Candini in the seventh when he got his third straight hit, a single, to drive in the first of two Sox tallies.

The situation was dark indeed for the Nats at this particular moment. There were runners on first and third and nobody out.

Kolloway, who proved one of the Nats' greatest comforters, came through fo rthe Nats again, grounding into a Sullivan to Priddy to Vernon double play. It drove in a run but eliminated a bad situation at the same time.

But the inning still wasn't over and when Masterson walked Hodgin, Candini began to bear down in the bullpen. Taft Wright singled and Candini's name would have appeared in the box score had Hodgin not rounded second too brazenly. Spence retrieved Wright's single and fired to Priddy who got Hodgin in a rundown.

That proved to be all for the Sox except for that abortive overture in the eighth.

Brownell Has 137 to Pace Amateur Trials

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Bobby Brownell, as cool as the weather was torrid, yesterday qualified for the fifth time in his career for National Amateur Golf championship, turning in a one-under-par 137 to lead a select field of 24 in the annual test at Chevy Chase.

Also making the grade for the Middle Atlantic section's five places in the September 8 to 13 tourney at Del Monte, Calif., were Brownell's buddy from the host club, Ralph Bogart, with 140; Ed Johnston of the Country Club of Maryland, Baltimore, 141; Walter Hagen, jr., of Richmond's Hermitage Club, 143; and Bob Morris, Prince Georges, 149.

Morris Wins Playoff

Morris, out in 73 and well favored, slipped to 76 on the second 18 and was forced into a playoff for his place with Bernard Schriever, Bell Haven. Morris tallied a par to win on the first extra hole as Schriever topped his direv.

Schriever, 36-year-old Army colonel, thus took the first alternate berth ahead of Bill Shea of Congressional, 150; Arnold Littman of the Suburban Club, Baltimore, 150; and Eddie Ault, Indian Spring, 154.

The only qualifier who yesterday expressed a certainty of competing at Del Monte was Hagen, son of teh famous Haig. He announceed he had arranged plane reservations before starting play. In the event one or more of the first five decide not to make the trip, Schriever wa salso anxious to try his hand in California.

Trophy to Brownell

Brownell won the beautiful USGA medal with a steady round which included seven birdies. His only really bad hole was the twelfth of the morning round when he carded a six on the par four.

Morris was the only one of the qualifying quintet who has never qualified before, and neither had he tried. It was the fourth time for Bogart, Johnston's third and Hagen got into the big amateur meet last year.

Dudley Too Bossy, Says Sutherland

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, Pittsburgh Steeler coach, today gave his version of the dispute with Halfback Bill Dudley which resulted in the sale of the National Football League's leading ground gainer to the Detroit Lions.

In an exclusive interview in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, the coach declared:

"I know for a fact a few of the boys would not have returned to the squad if Bill would have rejoined us this year. When they heard the news that he had signed with the Detroit Lions, one of them remarked:

"'Well, Detroit got itself another coach.'"

The paper quoted Sutherland as adding:

"Very few people know that Dudley begged to rejoin the Steelers when he heard a deal was being made for him with Detroit. He was sorry over what happened and wanted to come back in the worst way, but I think it is better for all concerned the way things are now."

* * * *

DUDLEY, former University of Virginia star, announced at the end of last season that he was retiring from football because he was "too light to take constant punishment." Steeler officials were unable to dissuade him and several weeks ago sold him to Detroit.

However, it was learned that Dudley's refusal to play football was mainly a refusal to play football for the Steelers.

"Dudley went too far in his remarks to my assistants and when I say too far I mean just that," declared Sutherland in giving his side of the original flareup. "I heard what he said to them and I reprimanded him in front of the full squad, the same as I would with any other player.

"That night he wanted to leave the camp. There was a conference and Bill changed his mind. No more was said about it during the season and he did everything asked of him, although some of the players resented his bossy attitude."

Bankhead Belted for 8 Runs but Slams Homer

Brooklyn, Aug. 26 (AP).—Dan Bankhead, Negro righthander, made a spectacular major league debut today—but as a batter and not as a pitcher.

The 26-year-old Birmingham, Ala., native, who joined the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday after his purchase from the Memphis club of the Negro American League, was treated rather roughly during his brief relief stint against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who maltreated three Dodger hurlers for 20 hits and a 16-3 victory.

Bankhead was soundly whacked for 10 hits and eight runs in the three and a third innings he worked. Half of them went for extra bases, including three doubles, a triple and a home run. He fanned two, walked one and hit a batter.

Hits 375-Foot Homer

Bankhead, however, gave the 24,069 fans of which about one-third were Negroes—plenty to cheer about when he slammed a line drive home run against Lefty Fritz Ostermueller in his only time at bat.

It came in the second inning, with one man on base, and travelled about 375 feet, landing in the fifth row of the left field seats.

Hal Gregg started for Brooklyn and after getting tagged for four runs in the first inning and giving up a single and base on balls to start off the second, was yanked in favor of Bankhead.

Bankhead, the first Negro pitcher ever to hurl in the majors, quickly got two strikes over on lefthanded hitter Jimmy Russell, but the Pirate centerfielder then rammed a double down the left-field line to drive in a run.

Fiasco in Fifth

Before Bankhead could retire the side, he was tagged for another double and single which produced four more markers to put the Pirates out in front, 8-0.

Bankhead appeared to have overcome his nervousness and held the Pirates scoreless in the third and fourth innings, although the Pirates loaded the bases in the fourth on two singles and a hit batter.

In thise two frames, he displayed a good fast ball and fair curve, but could not fool anybody with his change of pace.

The Bucs really went to work on him in the fifth. A triple by Clyde Klutzz, a single by Ostermueller, and a long home run by Billy Cox gave the Pirates three quick runs before a man was retired.

Bucs Top Hit Total

Lankhead fanned the next batter, Russell, for the second time, but a walk and two successive singles finished him for the day. The Pirates continued the assault on Rex Barney, third Brooklyn flinger, to tie their biggest hit total of the season.

Ralph Kiner, with five straight hits and a base on balls in six times at bat, led the Pirate hitters. He drove in two runs to raise his RBI total to 100. Frank Gustine had four hits in six times at bat. Wally Westlake, Cox and Cully Rikard hit homers to give the Pirates seven in two games.

Haight Takes Vacation and Climbing Almost Takes Him

Walter Goes as High As Auto Carries Him

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

MY VACATION has gone by the boards and so has my secret yen to be a mountain climber.

Time was when I envied hardy souls pictured in knee-length shorts, Tyrolean socks, cobble shoes and feathered hats who are addicted to roaming high places(with nothing but a thin rope between them and one of W. W. Chambers' bargain funerals, providing the body is recovered.

In my dreams, I have stood triumphantly on a rocky summit and waved my hand pick in salute to admirers gathered in the canyon below, only to awaken with the realization that the only thing I have scaled lately was a Chesapeake Bay rockfish.

After ten days in Colorado's version of the Rocky Mountains, I'm not even out of breath. However, I'm warning the finance company that repossession of my auto means a complete over-hauling so I might as well be allowed to catch up on those two back payments.

Yes, I took one look at those humps and decided I would go as high as gasoline would take me.

Working out of Colorado Springs, where the only housing spots that don't have "No Vacancy" signs out front are those of the ancient cliff dwellers, my first venture was up the side of Mount Cheyenne to the Will Rogers Memorial — a sporty climb of some 6000 feet marked by signs reading "Hairpin Curve," an exaggeration if I ever saw one.

These were the only curves I ever encountered where your front tires rubbed your rear tires.

Having successfully manned the ups and downs of Cheyenne, I looked up at Pike's Peak and warned, "I'm going to get you yet."

The next day I decided on a jaunt to Cripple Creek where gold was once so thick the prospectors used to complain about the yellow dust on their hats. There are two routes to this Midas territory. One is through Ute Pass on a nice oiled road and then turning into a wide gravel highway. The other is over the Cory Road. A native told me, "For one of the most scenic drives in all Colorado, do come back over the Cory Road."

Well, I took the Ute trail up to Cripple Creek, a gradual climb of 10,000 feet through beautiful country. A few of the larger mines are being worked by machinery, the ground almost everywhere is pock-marked by man's search for precious metal but the most action I saw was a soft ball game being played in a neat enclosure bearing the sign "Gold Bowl."

Despite the fact that I might have dug a little in the side of some hill and gotten even for Bowie, Pimlico and Charles Town, I turned away, eager to explore the wonders of the aforementioned Cory Road.

Now this Cory Road was once the route of an ore railroad connecting Cripple Creek with distant smelting operations. I finally drove onto the road. Perhaps you have heard of Route 40 and Route 1—well, thsi Cory thing should be labeled Route 0.

When I first encountered it, I thought the road must be under repair. It was two car widths, plus a foot and a half. At some spots there was a drop on one side of 1000 feet and on the other a mere 300. Guard rails consisted of two inches of dust and a few stones.

I gritted me teeth and kept in the middle. I'm told the scenery was out of this world but I was busy trying to stay in this world and didn't see it, if you know what I mean.

Despite being thrown for a mental loss by a sign reading "31 Miles To Colorado Springs," I was making steady progress in second gear when I discovered it wasn't a one-way road. A car shot toward me from around the side of a cliff. I sung to the outside and a cloud of dust whizzed by.

I yanked my right wheels off the precipice and returned to my middle of the road campaign, sneaking a look into the valley and wondering why, with all the high-priced gadgets the dealer put on my car he didn't think of installing a small parachute.

The sound of a horn jarred me back to reality. A guy wanted to pass me. That was the height of something or another—just picture one tight-rope walker wanting to get in front of another. When he honked a second time I knew he was trying.

Of course, he would pass on the left and on that side was the solid rock of the mountain. On the other was air—and thin air at that. I finally steeled myself and pulled over as far as I dared.

He came on the inside and slowed down when he got opposite me, saying, "Don't let these mountain roads get you down fellow." He whisked away before I could reply but I did note he had a Colorado license.

I was only getting about a half mile to a chill when I met another car. This driver took it for granted I'd move out and I did although I could here my right tires singing, "Give me land, lots of land—" and I know darned well they didn't have an inch too much.

Well, I was passed and I was approached. At last I began to get the idea. One guy came round the mountain so fast I could not tell whether he was hell bent for election or wanted to be elected mayor of Hades. I was a little slow in getting to the edge of the dirt trapeze and he remarked, "I see you're a stranger around here. Get a grip on yourself. This road won't hurt you. Drive like I do."

As I said, I had smartened up by this time and I snapped back, "Yes, you bum and you are on the inside and you can't fall up the mountain."

P. S.: Tomorrow we climb Pike's Peak.

Out Fishing...

By Jack Bell

SANDPOINT, Idaho, Aug. 26. Over circuitous, steep, rocky mountain roads of Alberta and through British Columbia, our party of 10 rod and gun writers left Jasper for the Canadian border.

At Kingsgate, B. C., we were met by a group of sportsmen from Sandpoint, Idaho, many of whom are responsible for the introduction five years ago of the kamloops trout from the waters of Kootenai Lake, B. C., into the waters of Pend d'Oreille.

Our party arrived at the picturesque Pend d'Oreille Club late at night. This morning we looked out of windows to see for the first time the waters of Pend d'Oreille.

The lake is approximately 50 miles long with about 175 miles of shoreline and more than 6 miles wide in places. Depths vary—in many parts to well over 1000 feet.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Jack Bell, outdoor writer of The Washington Post, is on the last leg of his trip to the Pacific Northwest with a group of nine other rod and gun writers. He reports his impressions, if only to tantalize those of us who are sweltering on the job at home while he roams through cool streams.

About 1940, Laurin Pietsch, Jim Weaver, Ross Hall and R. W. Brown, Sandpoint sportsmen, first introduced the kamloops trout. These men, out of their own pockets, paid for 100,000 hatching eggs received from Kelso, B. C., paid for hatching and rearing between the south and north Idaho hatcheries.

The first planting of the hatched trout was made in September, 1942, when 20,000 trout, 6 to 9 inches, were planted in the lake. In the spring of 1943, 60,000 more were released.

Because of a rich and nutritious diet of blueback or landlocked sockeye salmon, the fish have grown to tremendous size. Last night, just to show us that it is not trick photography, we were shown a 26-pound kamloops trout on ice at the Elks Club in Sandpoint that was caught two days ago.

THERE is considerable evidence of natural propagation but as yet no survey has been made to determine its extent.

British Columbia, that is, sportsmen of B. C., last year refused to send any more spawn for propagation purposes. Sportsmen of Pend d'Oreille now are making plans to enlarge the Clarksfork hatchery with private funds, so that kamloops trout can be materially increased. To conserve and give the small fish a chance to grow, they have set a minimum size of 15 inches on the theory that within two years the fish very probably will be 30 pounders.

Since May 1, a total of 242 kamloops rainbows have been entered in the Pend d'Oreill fishing derby, a total weight of 5328 pounds, and the average weight per fish, 22 pounds. Jess Puckett, jr., of Athol, Idaho, to date has entered the largest number—the heaviest 26 pounds.

June 9, Mrs. O. G. Olson, Spokane, Wash., beauty parlor operator, caught the second largest taken by a woman, a 33½ pounder. In May, C. C. Shepherd, Opportunity, Wash., caught a 36-pounder, setting a new world's record.

This morning members of our party set out on the lake to troll for fish, with the high hopes of hooking at least a 20-pounder. We were agreeably surprised a few minutes before starting by the appearance of Bing Crosby, crashing our fishing party on Pend d'Oreille.

Vet Advises Destruction As Control

Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—Facing perhaps the most critical problem in New England racing history, a committee of horsemen met in Rhode Island with Narragansett Park officials today to seek a solution to an outbreak of swamp fever that has turned the region's billion-dollar racing business into a turmoil.

Already the dread disease, somewhat similar to pernicious leukemia in humans, has taken an estimated $500,000 toll of thoroughbreds and the 900 horses stabled at Rockingham Park in Salem, N. H., are under a quarantine that could keep them idle there until well into winter.

Discussion by members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association and James E. Dooley, president of both Narragansett Park and the Thoroughbred Racing Association, included such widely diversified items as racing dates, totalisator boards and government attemps to isolate and remedy the disease.

Lincoln Apparently Set

It even involved B. A. Dario who audaciously sought to fight his way into big-time racing this year by opening Lincoln Downs on the doorstep of Narragansett Park. Cold-shouldered by the "Big Three"—Narragansett, Rockingham and Suffolk Downs in Massachusetts—he now finds himself apparently holding aces back to back in the battle for the bettor's buck.

To date, 40 thoroughbreds in New England are known to be suffering from the disease. Some will die, some will live, but none ever will race again.

These horses, including such stars as Spangled Game, West Fleet and Magellan, now are isolated in a huge tent that has been erected at Rockingham Park—some distance from the barns where horses racing this final week of the "official" summer meeting are stabled. Once afflicted with the disease, they become lifetime carriers.

Destruction Urged

Dr. H. M. Lewis, veterinarian and representative of the New Hampshire animal husbandry division, said the only sure method of controlling swamp fever is to destroy the afflicted horses.

Yet, insurance companies, thus far, have refused to pay for insured horses who die in this fashion.

Owners, with the gambler's instinct, are waiting hoping their steeds will die before policies run out. Since the horses cannot be moved to other tracks, it was understood the New Hampshire racing commission was ready to extend the Rockingham meeting.

Horsemen Want to Continue

Though General Manager Lou Smith would prefer to end his summer season Saturday and reopen in October, horsemen have prevailed on him to continue his season for 30 days so they will not be idle.

In that time it would be determined whether the disease was controlled.

However, Smith could continue only if Narragansett Park agreed to let the totalisator board, rented and moved from track to track during the summer, remain at Rockingham.

Mr. Griffith Regrets...

Washington Donates $5129.62 To Runyon Cancer Fund

A REPORT by Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, who served as chairman of the Washington sports committee for the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund, shows $5129.62 has been contributed.

The statement, which is being forwarded to Dan Parker, New York Mirror sports columnist, who heads the drive, reveals that the benefit game here last week between th Nats and the Phillies earned $2840.57 for the fund.

In regarding the drive as closed locally, Griffith said, "I wish to say that I am sorry that more money could not be raised from the baseball game (between the Nats and Phillies), but it came at a time when both teams were not doing too well."

The report:

Nats-Phillies game	$2840.57
Boxing	1415.23
Wrestling	575.27
Softball	113.45

Boston Coach Hits 'Stealing' Of Grid Stars

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 26 (AP).—Coach Denny Myers of Boston College says something must be done about what he called the "stealing" of football players among colleges and named the University of San Francisco as one offender.

Don Panciera, star B. C. quarterback, transferred to the coast college last spring, but Myers did not mention him by name as he told the Lions Club last night:

"A coming football star at Boston College was promised $300 a month and transportation for four vacations at home every year if the boy would enroll at San Francisco."

Myers asserted that "something must be done to correct such rotten tactics."

'Ridiculous,' Snorts Coast Spokesman

San Francisco, Aug. 26 (AP).—"Ridiculous" snorted athletic officials of the University of San Francisco today in comment on proselyting charges in Portsmouth, N. H., last night by Coach Denny Myers of Boston College.

In the absence of Head Coach Ed McKeever, Pete Newell, assistant athletic director, had this to say:

"If as reported, Myers accused the University of San Francisco of trying to lure one of his 'coming stars' on the promise of $300 a month and cross-country travel four times a year, he has made one of the most ridiculous statements we have ever heard from any responsible university official."

16 Cars Entered In Lanham Stake Race Friday Night

Sixteen cars will start in the 50-lap (12½-mile) National Capital championship sweepstakes feature on the weekly seven-event midget auto racing card at the West Lanhan (Md.) Speedway Friday night.

George Fonder, the Lansdale, Pa., daredevil and holder of the 25 and 50-lap track records at Lanham, will be out to beat the new 50-lap mark he set there last July 25.

Fonder has stolen the thunder of Ed "Dutch" Schaefer, Floral Park, Long Island, early season sensation, and has scored three grand slams in three of his four appearances.

Twenty-four pilots will see action Friday. Tickets can be obtained at the Fairway, 1328 G st. nw.

Ted Drives 5 Runs Home In 2d, 9-1

Detroit, Aug. 26 (AP).—Tex Hughson's strong right arm and the big bats of Ted Williams and Wally Moses kept the Boston Red Sox hanging narrowly onto second place in the American Legion today after dividing a double bill with third-place Detroit.

The Sox fell into third momentarily by losing the opener, 12 to 1, to young Art Houtteman's second straight five-hit pitching performance but bounced back to take the nightcap with ease, 9 to 1.

Hughson allowed the Tigers just four hits in the second game as Moses collected four straight hits and scored four runs and Williams knocked in five with his twenty-sixth homer, a double and a fly ball.

One of Moses' hits was his second home run of the year and Roy Cullenbine of the Tigers belted two four-baggers, one in each game.

Colts Ask Waivers on 10

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Slowly cutting down to meet the All-America Football Conference limit of 36 players, the Baltimore Colts announced today that waivers had been asked on 10 players.

Waivers were asked for centers Basil Petry, Purdue; Bob Sullivan, Nevada; and Otts Brandau, Tennessee and Pittsburgh Steelers; Guard Nick Kerasotis, St. Ambrose; tackles George Sergienko, American International and Mitch Olenski, Alabama and Miami Seahawks; ends H. Allen Smith, Mississippi and Gus Hempley, South Carolina and Chicago Bears; Quarterbeck Jim Darr, Missouri; and Fullback Johnny Johnson, UCLA. The slice reduced the Baltimore squad to 42 men.

Oliveri Wins, Parks Loses In Links Play

Andy Oliveri, the Mr. Public Links of Washington, lived up to his favorite role yesterday as the annual pay-as-you-play championship tourney went through two rounds of match play at East Potomac.

Shooting even par, Andy opened with a 4-and-3 triumph over Roger Martino and in the afternoon hung a 5-and-4 check on R. W. Suit.

The upset of the day was scored by Ralph McGonigall as he turned back Monday's medalist, Sam Parks in a 19-hole scramble. Later McGonigall himself was ousted, Francis Keene turning the trick after 20 hot holes.

Just back from a California vacation, Earl Marcey, who ended Oliveri's 2-year reign temporarily last year, had little trouble disposing of Charley Muck in the forenoon. But in the afternoon Marcey was forced to 19 holes before stopping Bill Sayers.

Semifinals and finals in all seven flights of the affair are listed for today, starting at 9 o'clock.

The Flying Terrapins

Maryland Charters Airliner For Its Five Football Trips

MARYLAND'S football team is taking to the air for 1947—and you're wrong if you think it has anything to do with Coach Jim Tatum's forward passing.

Walter Driskill, director of athletics at the school, came up with the announcement yesterday that the Terps are going to fly to all games away this season.

They've even chartered their own airliner for the five dates, making them the first in the Southern Conference to fly.

Trips will be made to Pittsburgh, where Duquesne University will be met. The Pennsylvania College recently announced their intent to fly. Other games to be played by Maryland will be at Nashville, Tenn.; Durham, N. C.; Blacksburg, Va., and Columbia, S. C.

Maryland is completing plans to greet the vanguard of football aspirants who will arrive at College Park Sunday, August 31, for practice beginning Labor Day. Opening game is September 27 at the University of South Carolina.

Marx Postponed, Plays Tonight

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—A semi-final game scheduled tonight between Marx Jewelers of Washington, D. C. and Concord, N. H., in the All-America Junior amateur baseball tournament was postponed until Wednesday because of rain.

Sexton Savoldi Wrestle Tonight

Frank Sexton, claimant to the wrestling title, who, keeps in condition by pedaling a bicycle 50 miles a day on his Ontario farm, collides with Jumpin' Joe Savoldi, a former titleholder, tonight at Turner's Arena.

It will be a one-hour time limit bout, with Savoldi pitting his drop-kicking and flying tackle against the body slamming of the champion.

In supporting bouts, Ivan Talun, 6 feet 8 inches, wrestles Red Ryan; Big Ben Morgan, 2 inches smaller than Talun, oppose Andy Meixner; Stu Hart faces Tiger Joe Marsh, and in the opener Kola Kwariani, the Russian, meet Jim Burnett at 8:45 o'clock.

Junior Golf Sept. 3, 4, 5

The first annual District junior open golf championship tournament will be played at the Georgetown Prep course, September 3, 4, 5, Frank Emmett, tournament chairman, announced last night.

Any player not yet 21 years old is eligible to compete. A qualifying round will be shot September 3. Match play will follow with every entrant being paired in some class. Sixteen will make the championship flight.

The tournament is being sponsored by the District Golfers' Association. Emmett will receive entries by telephone at WI. 3847, after 7 p. m. tonight, Thursday and next Monday nights. Pairings will be announced September 2.

Rain Drops Mercury 10 Degrees in 20 Minutes

Heat Exhaustion Fells 7 as 93 High Is Reached; Today Due to Be Cooler

Wind-filled, rain-laden, black clouds poured it on Greater Washington early last night, dropping temperatures 10 degrees in 20 minutes.

The brief thunderstorm ended a day that saw the mercury hit a high of 93 degrees. Seven persons were treated for heat exhaustion in area hospitals.

Only minor damage was reported from wind and lightning in the District, nearby Virginia and Maryland. The Weather Bureau's radar showed the rain general in the entire area, but only .02 of an inch was reported at the Weather station at National Airport.

To Stay in Low 80s

The storm, sweeping in from the northwest, cooled the night for pleasant sleeping and temperatures are scheduled to stay in the low 80s today under partly cloudy skies.

The temperature hit 93 degrees at 5:18 p. m., with a humidity of 42 per cent. It was 87 degrees at 7:45 p. m., and 77 degrees 20 minutes later. By 9 p. m., the mercury had dropped to 74 degrees.

Wind spenking the Washington channel tipped over a 16-foot sailboat about 100 feet off the War College seawall. Residents at the War College telephoned the harbor police; then turned auto lights on the two occupants of the sailboat as they waited for the police boat. Unhurt for their dunking, the occupants were Herbert Stern, 30, of 41 Allison st. ne., and Barton K. Greenlun, 31, of 806 N. Carolina ave. se.

Heat Victims Listed

The heat victims treated at hospitals in Greater Washington included: Lindsey Thomas, 71, of 1516 Monticello ave. ne., and James Knight, 42, of 609 3d st. ne., both treated at Casualty Hospital.

John McAdams, 25, of 705 N. Payne st., Alexandria, Va., at Alexandria Hospital; Mrs. Lulu Allan, 40, of 262 Hillside pl. nw., and Archie Phillips, 50, of 1817 4th st. nw., both at Emergency Hospital; Cesseley Love, 35, of 11 M st. se., at Gallinger Hospital, and Henry Coles, 52, of 6037 River rd., Bethesda, Md., taken to Freedman's Hospital.

The town of Jessups, Md., was in darkness temporarily during the storm when a large tree fell across power lines. Jessups, a town of about 1000 population, is partly in Howard county and partly in Anne Arundel county.

Heat Wave Broken

Showers and cool air broke a three-day heat wave in New England and although badly-needed rain in the midwest's corn belt had ceased, cool air gave hard-pressed crops welcome relief.

Possibility of additional showers in Iowa's corn country was noted by the Weather Bureau.

New York City's temperature skidded from 91 to the mid-80s after yesterday's showers. Boston, which had readings of 96 Sunday and 95 Monday, welcomed a drop to 81 degrees by mid-afternoon yesterday.

Weather Robs D. C. of 18,000 Hours of Work

Hot weather has cost the District approximately 18,000 man (and woman) hours of work, city officials estimated yesterday, after more than 1300 municipal employes went home early for the seventh time this summer.

Old-timers in the District Building mopped their perspiring brows and concluded that city employes took more time off because of the heat this summer than ever before in District history.

One veteran of 31 years of service maintained the previous high mark was set in 1943, when melting municipal workers trooped home early three times.

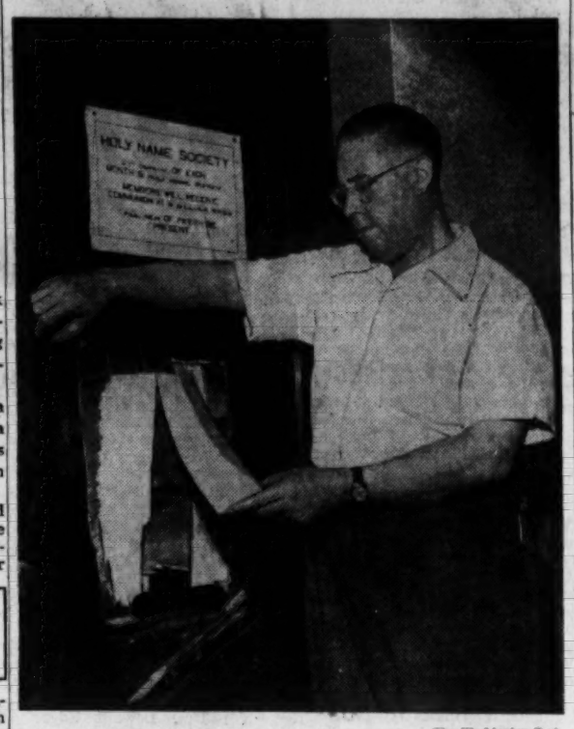
Officials worked out their lost time "guess-timate" with simple mathematics. An average of 1300 workers—who could be "spared" by their bosses—left two hours early on each of the seven days, making 2600 hours work lost each day, or a total of 18,200 hours. (They wrote off the 200 hours as "margin for error.")

7-Cent Rise Settles Paper Plant Dispute

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—A joint company and union statement said today a 7-cent hourly wage increase was one of the provisions of an agreement which settled a contract dispute at West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's three plans.

The agreement was reached in negotiations at Washington last Thursday and later was ratified by more than 4000 workers at nearby Luke, Md., Covington, Va., and Williamsburg, Pa. The workers are members of the United Paper Workers of America (CIO).

Special Police Squad Assigned After 6th Church Theft Here



The Washington Post

Door smashed in robbery of church funds is examined by William J. Scott, of 1701 Taylor st. nw., sexton of Sacred Heart

A special squad of detectives has been assigned to combat thefts from local churches.

The most recent case, the sixth in ten days, was reported yesterday by the Sacred Heart Catholic Church at 16th and Park dr. nw.

The sexton of the church, William J. Scott, told police he found the back door of the church broken when he went to work yesterday morning.

The thief or thieves had gone to the upstairs office, smashed panels of three doors, ransacked the office and obtained $12 from the petty cash box.

In only one case has a large amount of money been taken. The Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, at 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., last Saturday reported $300 stolen.

Police at first believed that juveniles were committing the thefts, but because of the frequency of larcenies they now believe that one or two men might be involved.

Other churches that have been broken into are: Central Presbyterian Church, 15th and Irving sts. nw.; Christ's Episcopal Church, 3108 O st. nw.; Augustana Lutheran Church, New Hampshire ave. and V st. nw., and the Church of Reformation, 212 E. Capitol st.

In most cases, entrance was gained by breaking in a rear door, and in all cases the offices were thoroughly ransacked.

Police pointed out the difficulty of watching over 500 churches in have been reported in every section bu the southwest area.

Precinct commanders have asked that all scout car men and patrolmen pay special attention to the churches on their beats. Police will notify all church officials to insure the safety of church funds.

Tom English, Under Sentence, Is Indicted on New Charge

The "raps" are piling up against Tommy English, erstwhile member of the former "Blackface Gang," now under sentence of two to six years for housebreaking and larceny.

He was indicted yesterday by a Federal grand jury in District Court on charges of housebreaking and larceny. The panel returned 30 other indictments, ignoring four and returning five to police court for disposition.

At the same time, Jean English, 31, who police say is Tommy's wife, was held in $300 bond for sentence September 3 on a charge of soliciting prostitution.

Indicted with English was Harry L. Ealley, 25, of 1109 4th st., sw. Both were charged with breaking into the office of the United Insurance Co., 811 11th st., nw., last July 8 and stealing stamps and cash after trying unsuccessfully to crack an office safe.

Another indicted was Herbert Hamilton Cole 3d, charged with passing bad checks totaling $663.64 after representing himself as the son of an executive of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. The checks were cashed by Morris Lenkin, manager of the Yorkshire Ca., 3355 16th st. nw., from whom Cole rented an apartment.

According to the indictment, Cole told Lenkin he had $8000 worth of furniture. Examination of his room revealed two chairs and a table radio borrowed from Lenkin.

Cole figured in the news several months ago, charged with impersonating a naval officer and occupying a desk in the Navy building in a room reserved for visiting admirals.

A robbery indictment was returned against Robert Hargrave, 28, charged with robbing a soldier of $91 as the latter slept on the steps of the postoffice building at 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., August 10. Hargrave was captured by a bus driver.

Falls Church Man and Auto Win Point Over Steam Shovel

A Falls Church, Va., property owner staged a successful bloodless revolt yesterday against a team shovel that was digging a 15-foot ditch across his lot against his wishes.

E. M. Peterson, owner of the lot on the 200 block of N. Noland st., tied up the entire construction job simply by parking his automobile between the open end of the ditch and the steam shovel, making further excavation work impossible when the shovel crew reported yesterday morning. Throughout the day the auto remained parked and the shovel remained idle.

Peterson's action followed a "friendly disagreement" with his neighbor, A. E. Smith, who sold the lot to Petrson last year. Smith contends he had retained the right to authorize construction of the sewage line when he sold the property.

Peterson's "revolt" was just in the nick of time, for the ditch had traversed all but 10 feet of his land when the shovel crew quit work late Monday.

Smith said yesterday that Peterson "apparently got wind of the fact that they were going to try to finish it up today before he had time to go to court and stop them."

Smith said Peterson parked his car in front of the ditch around 4:30 a. m., an hour and a half before the workmen arrived to resume digging.

An effort will be made to break the stalemate today when attorneys representing Smith, Peterson and the contractor will confer at Fairfax Courthouse on "some form of out-of-court settlement," according to Smith.

World Trade Seen Vital Factor In Binding Nations

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Postmasters from throughout Maryland heard Marshall Bidwell Dierssen, port traffic representative of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, declare today that international trade is the "greatest single instrument" for binding together nations with "divergent views."

Dierssen said that such commercial relations are an 'essential factor in maintaining the peace."

The Maryland chapter of the National Association of Postmasters and the Maryland state branch of the National Association of Postal Supervisors are holding a three-day convention. It closes tomorrow night.

Approximately 150 delegate are in attendance.

Couple Expecting Baby Sentenced to Prison in Forgery

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—A young married couple who said they were expecting a baby in December were sentenced to prison today on charges of passing 11 forged checks totaling $333.23. Police said they used some of the money to buy a baby carriage.

Circuit Judge Levin Claude Bailey gave 18-year-old L. Brooks Hart, jr., an indeterminate sentence up to five years. Hart's 17-year-old wife, Frances Joanne, was given an indeterminate sentence not to exceed one year.

The judge in imposing sentence said Mrs. Hart "tried to take the rap in this case because of her physical condition." Bailey said he believed the husband was more to blame.

Hart pleaded innocent to the charges and his wife guilty.

Montgomery Roads Plan Is Submitted

$800,000 Program Would Improve 40 Highway Miles During Next Year

A plan under which 40 miles of road would be improved next year in Montgomery County at a cost of $800,000 was submitted to the county commissioners yesterday in Rockville.

After taking the plan under advisement, the commissioners told their committee on roads, which sponsored the plan, that "a definite answer" would be forthcoming within a week.

The proposal, part of a five-year program designed to "take the farmer out of the mud," will not use a $130,000 Federal grant due in 1947 and 1948 as a part of the Government's "farm-to-market" program.

To Ask Bond Issue

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said, however, he would ask the commissioners to issue $800,000 in bonds for the program. The bonds were authorized at the last session of the Legislature, it was pointed out.

Under the proposal, roads to be financed entirely by the county with permanent surface and "proper" bridges are: Plyers Mill rd., 1.4 miles, $45,000; Kemp Mill rd., 1.2 miles, $30,000; Jones Bridge rd., 2.5 miles, $50,000.

Roads to be graded, drained and stabilized with "roper" bridges and financed entirely by the county: Charles Burdette rd. to Clarksburg, 3 miles, $35,000; connecting Laytonsville and Unity rds., 2 miles, $32,000; complete Goshen rd., .4 miles, $20,000; Brink to Goshen, 2 miles, $16,000; connection of two highways at Goshen, .9 miles, $15,000; John King rd. (Woodfield-Cedar Grove), 1.5 miles, $25,000; Paws Ridge rd., 2.5 miles, $25,000; Sugarland rd., 1.7 miles, $25,000; Ice House rd., 2 miles, $40,000; Martinsburg-Dickerson rd., 1.5 miles, $25,000; relocate River rd. (Old Hersberger House to Willard rd.), 2.5 miles, $25,000.

$31,000 Contract Let

Existing hard surfaced roads to be repaired, including shoulders, with costs to be paid by the county: Cloppers rd. near Old Germantown, 1 mile, $10,000; Sunshine to Brighton, 3 miles, $15,000, and Shady Grove rd., 2.2 miles, $12,000.

The committee members who appeared included James D. King, O. W. Anderson, William Hanson and W. W. Hodges.

Spokesmen said that after the bond issue of $800,000, a total of $700,000, also authorized by the Legislature, wil lremain for road construction in 1949.

Also at yesterday's meeting:

A contract for construction of the proposed Washington-Grove Equipment Depot was awarded to B. Z. Harding of Gaithersburg for a low bid of $31,172. There were four bids on the project, which will be used for storage and repair of county owned vehiclees and equipment.

The board granted to Blake D. Merson, president of the Montgomery County Refuse Co., a permit to operate a sanitary fill dump on a site 1½ miles northeast of Rockville. It has been used as a dump since 1938.

Air Taxi Service

Milwaukee (U.P.).—A Nation-wide air taxi service operating from here will provide planes for flights to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. The system will use some 1500 light cabin planes in the network. The charge will be about 12 cents a mile.

2 Polio Cases Bring '47 Total In Area to 17

Girl, 5½, Boy, 10, Latest Victims, in Children's Hospital

Two eases of polio were reported yesterday at Children's Hospital, bringing this year's Greater Washington total to 17 cases, the Health Department announced.

A 5½-year-old girl of the 3200 block of 12th st ne., was the District's sixth case this year, health officils revealed.

A 10-year-old boy of the 900 block of N. Kansas st., Arlington, was the eleventh area case outside the District, they said.

Officials at Children's Hospital said both the patients were admitted Monday. Diagnosis was completed yesterday.

49 Convicted in Md. of Fraud in Job Aid

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Forty-nine persons today were convicted of fraud ni obtaining unemployment compensation from the State's Employment Security Board but all but two were put on suspended sentence provided they make restitution.

The case involved $3592 in fraudulent claims.

Two, found to be serving sentences for various offenses, were given three-month terms to run concurrently.

Man, 95, Gives Down-to-Earth Reason for Age

Want to live to be a spry 95? Then follow the advice of Harry Rhodes, 5914 Broad Branch rd. nw., and head for the great outdoors.

"I've probably laid on the ground more than any man in Fayette County, Pa.," he said yesterday on the eve of his ninety-fifth birthday. "I've been a great trout fisherman, 'coon hunter, and even went West with tht Yukon gold rush."

Today he keeps the lawn mowed at the home of his daughter, and goes for 4-mile hikes through a nearby park. He enjoys playing croquet, but misses his former companions most of whom are dead.

This lively gentleman, who is six feet tall, likes to have people guess his age because they usually put it at between 70 and 75. He has been, in his day, a school teacher at $40 a month, a sheriff and a bookkeeper. "The happiest years of my life," he said, "were when I was a farmer in Fayette County, Pa."

Though he has lived through four wars, he never fought in any of them. "I was too young for the Civil War, just 9 years old, and too old for the Spanish-American War and the two World Wars." He is proud of his son who fought in the first World War, and the three grandsons who fought in the last one.

Politics? "I've always been a Democrat, always will be! I come from a long line of Democrats . . . my great-grandfather voted for Thomas Jefferson. I consider him the father of our country and our Government."

In addition to his daughter, Miss Grace Rhodes, with whom he lives, he has two daughters and a son who live in Greater Washington, Mrs. Mabel Baker of Bethesda, Mrs. Ruth Peterson of Washington and William Rhodes of Berwyn, Md. He has 14 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Rent Hikes Asked For 112 Units at Average of $9.50

The District Rent Control Administration yesterday was asked by owners to grant average $9.50 a month rent hikes for 112 apartments units at four District locations.

E. M. Willis and Sons, the owners, sought the increase for apartment buildings at 1417-23 ShVeridan st. nw.; 1418-24 Somerset pl. nw.; 4585-89 MacArthur blvd. nw.; and 5112 Connecticut ave. nw.

Present rents at the apartments range from $60 to $60 a month. Rent control officials said a date for the hearing would be set as soon as the owners supplied additional information regarding the units.

22 Seek Post As Alexandria City Manager

Col. Markham Only Local Applicant For $8500 Office

Twenty-two applicants, including Col. Edward M. Markham, jr., former assistant city engineer, are seeking the position of city manager of Alexandria.

A member of the city council committee thta is seeking a permanent successor to Carl Budwesky announced yesterday that Markham has been the only local man to apply. Of the others, he said, eight or nine have experience as managers of other cities. The committee has been working through the International City Managers Association and the State League of Municipalities.

The spokesman said council has discussed the matter of raising the city manager's salary of $8500 and might do so to get the best qualified man. Several Virginia cities of comparable size, he pointed out, pay twice as much as Alexandria does.

He said the committee has several candidates to interview and will probably make no selection until mid-September at the earliest.

Colonel Markham served as assistant city engineer in charge of sanitation and maintenance for four months until his abrupt resignation in July. His resignation, charging lack of cooperation from City Engineer C. Luckett Watkins, was the first of four that included the chiefs of the fire and police departments and City Manager Budwesky.

A graduate of West Point and holder of a degree in civil engineering from Cornell, Markham served 18 years in the Army until his retirement early this year. Before his resignation there was talk in some quarters that Markham was being groomed for the city manager position. Council spokesmen have repeatedly said duirng the past three weeks, however, that they will look outside the city for the new manager.

King Ready To Submit Raedy Case Facts to West

Evidence Sufficient To Press Charge In Court, Counsel Tells Reporters

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King last night declared himself "ready" to take definite action on his inquiry into the hit-run accident involving the car of Municipal Judge Ellen K. Raedy.

He said he would "probably" turn over his accumulated evidence today to his chief, Vernon E. West, Corporation Counsel. Earlier, King told reporters his evidence was sufficient to take the case to court.

The preparedness statement came at the end of the eighth 24-hour period since Judge Raedy's car struck and slightly damaged an automobile, August 19, at 1st and K sts. nw. Despite Judge Raedy's assertion she was at home the entire evening, she has been placed at or near the scene by several witnesses.

Police have been unable to locate two key witnesses to the probe, 13-year-old Jimmy Frisby, son of Mrs. Marie H. Frisby, Municipal Court cashier, and the boy's aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Hayes of 909 1st st. nw.

One witness has testified Mrs. Hayes gave Jimmy a birthday party on the accident night and that Judge Raedy attended. If substantiated, the account would refute Judge Raedy's assertion she did not leave her apartment.

A report that Frank Davis of 903 1st st. nw. drove a man and woman on a "cooling off" trip in his taxicab after the car in which they were riding struck the parked vehicle proved "a false lead," King said yesterday.

After talking with Davis, King declared himself "satisfied" the report was "just another one of those hearsay stories."

Judge Raedy has told reporters—and King—that she loaned her car to an "Edward Emerson, former newspaperman, of New York." "Emerson" was never further identified and is also among the missing witnesses sought.

The case was turned over to King, assistant corporation counsel for the criminal division of Municipal Court, by the Accident Investigation Unit of Metropolitan Police some 24 hours after the hit-run accident was first reported by a gasoline station attendant.

Woman Suffrage Birthday Party Forced Indoors

Celebration of the twenty-seventh anniversary of ratification of the Woman's Suffrage Amendment was "rained in" last night when showers forced 250 women participants inside the Alva Belmont House, 144 B st. ne.

The event had been staged as a garden party reception.

High points of the evening entertainment included dramatization of the trial of Susan B. Anthony after her arrest for voting in the presidential election of 1872 and a Little Symphony concert by the Army Air Forces Band, with Abrasha Robofsky, baritone soloist.

Mrs. Robert H. Walker of Baltimore ,wrote the drama script and portrayed the suffrage leader. Prologue and epilogue were recited by Mrs. Leon Freedom, also of Baltimore. The evening's program was sponsored by the National Woman's Party and its D. C. Branch.

Md. Tomatoes Rot By Thousands of Baskets in Field

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Farmers and their wives continued to operate an extra shift at the H. B. Kennerly and Son cannery at Nanticoke, as Eastern Shore processers reported that the tomato glut is worse this week than last.

Meanwhile, thousands of basketloads rotted in the field as a result of late spring planting, which caused a near-record harvest to mature all at once.

H. B. Kennerly, owner of the plant, said one farmer had offered him 480 baskets of tomatoes free if he would only take them off his hands.

VA's Perry Point Depot To Be Closed by Jan. 1

The Veterans' Administration announced last night that it is reducing the number of its supply depots in this country from seven to four.

VA said the supply depot at Horseheads, N. Y., was closed July 31, and depots at Dever, Colo., and Perry Poit, Md., will be closed before January 1.

$180,000 Gallinger Laundry, Newly Equipped, Opens Today

A new $180,000 laundry will begin turning out clean linen for patients at Gallinger Hospital today.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said the new battery of seven giant washers, 12 pressers, two ironers and an assortment of driers and markers will handle as many as 59,000 laundry items each 40-hour week.

"I think it will be the best hospital laundry in the city," he said proudly. "It's well lighted and air-conditioned and will really be comfortable for the workers."

Workers will also get another break, he explained, because the larger laundry will enable the hospital to eliminate its night shift. All 40 laundry employes will work during the day. Five additional employes are now being hired and more may be added later, he said.

The new laundry plant is housed in the old kitchen and dining room, which were converted for the purpose.

Funds for the new washing equipment were appropriated in 1945, but the hospital was unable to obtain the necessary new machinery until recently, Dr. Sweeney explained.

The old laundry was so inadequate, he said, that 241,000 items had to be "farmed out" to Lorton Reformatory and 62,000 to Glenn Dale Sanatorium each year, causing inconvenience and delay. With the new equipment, Gallinger will handle all of its approximately 3,061,000 items annually, he declared.

"All the machinery is entirely new," Dr. Sweeney said, "except for one flatiron, which has been rebuilt and made good as new."

Mute S. African Boy Flies to Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Johns Hopkins Hospital doctors examined today a 12-year-old boy flown from South Africa in the hope they can restore the power of speech he lost nine years ago.

The boy, Douglas, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sutherland, flew from Bloemfontein in the Orange Free State, South Africa.

The father, a railroad clerk, said: "Our boy has been afflicted for nine years. When he was three, he underwent a very minor operation, but suffered some sort of mental shock. He has never spoken since."

Sutherland said after consulting with "Doctor after doctor in South Africa, without the slightest avail," Leo Kanner of Johns Hopkins was recommended. Dr. Kanner is head psychiatrist of the Harriet Lane Home for Invalid Children at the hospital.

Chicagoan Offers Plan to Aid Indian And Businessman

By the United Press

Wanted: Tired businessmen; preferably with sinus trouble, couhs, sneezes or arthritis.

Salary: About $500 a year plus regained health.

The Interior Department may be looking for a few such men if a retired Chicago manufacturer wins approval for his plan to industrialize 60,000 Navajo Indians on their Arizona-New Mexico reservation.

As an Indian Service consultant without pay, Max Drefkoff found the Navajos "in the most deplorable condition of any group in the country . . . faced with actual starvation and hunger."

He wants to set up "industrial villages" to make clothes, blankets, rugs, leather goods, shoes, furniture and toys. The proposal is now before the Indian Service.

Drefkoff's tired and ailing businessmen would manage the industries. He knows a lot of them, he says, in Boston, Chicago and New York, whose doctors have told them they must go to Arizona.

"But they can't because they haven't anything to do out there," he explained.

Baby, Burglar, Calf on Loose, That's Life, in Scout Car 41

Doing nicely, thanks

BABY LUCAS
A nurse's armful

Excitement became so routine it was almost monotonous for the two policemen in Scout Car 41 yesterday.

At 1:45 a. m. they helped capture an Arlington County jail escapee as he worked on a finance company safe.

Ray

Kershner

Perry

At 4 a. m. they helped deliver a baby.

At 6:30 a. m. they corralled a fugitive critter from an 11th st. sw. slaughterhouse—a 100-pound calf.

Then Pvts. Henry R. Kershner, 34, and Le Roy N. Perry, who had been resting on routine since they used Car 41 to capture a 300-pound hog a week ago, went home to bed.

In the chronology of Scout Car 41's log, business was like this for the morning:

Cruising near No. 4 Precinct station—home base—they received a call to the City Finance Company, 515 8th st. se., where Police Pvts. Bernard J. Panetta and Lennie M. Daniels, Fifth Precinct, were investigating "noises" inside the building.

There they found a man identified as Robert Lee Ray, 31, of 444 H st. nw., who was making the noises, they said, in attempting to open a safe. Ray, who police said fled the Arlington County jail last week, waived extradition and was back in there yesterday.

No Papers Filed Here

Assistant U. S. Attorney John B. Diamond 3d said no papers were filed against Ray in the District because he agreed to be returned to Arlington to face trial on breaking and entering charges there.

Kershner, who lives at 1509 25th st. se., and Perry, of 3336 17th st. ne., resumed cruising until a stork got in on their wavelength at 4 a. m.

They received a call from a fast-running father-to-be, Elvin H. Lucas, of 418 7th st. sw. He hurriedly explained he had called an ambulance but time was a-wasting.

The two policemen officiated at the birth of a six-pound girl, then sent mother and child to Gallinger Hospital, where the police midwifery was praised as "excellent."

Chase for 15 Minutes

The last roundup began at 6:30 a. m. at Third st. and Maryland ave. ne., where Perry spotted the stray critter. By car and on foot and for 15 minutes the two policemen chased the calf. At 2nd and G sts. se., Perry was close enough for a tail hold.

Then they used a length of sash cord, which had been presented them after they caught the stray hog a week ago, to tie the calf to a tree until claimed by its owner, James B. Gilbert.

The payoff:

Capt. Benjamin C. Kuehling, commanding officer of No. 4 Precinct, praised them as "two good policemen who are right on the job all the time.

Four Grocers Get Fines for Short Weights

Four grocers found guilty of giving short weights yesterday found the scales of justice weighted against them for a total of $850 in fines on 17 counts.

Said Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon in levying the fines: "People are certainly entitled to what they pay for these days, especially meats."

David H. Roth, 23, treasurer of Roth's Market, 426 M st. se., was fined $200 on four counts; Sarah Golden, 49, proprietress of a stand at the New Center Market, 5th and K sts. nw., $150 on three counts; Morris Friedberg, proprietor of a grocery at 3400 13th st. nw., $200 on four counts, and Nathan Topowsky, 30, grocer, at 954 R st. nw., $300 on six counts.

Prosecuting attorney was Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert F. Kneipp.

Most Virginia Crops Show Improvement

Richmond, VVa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Some improvement during the past week in crop conditions throughout most of the State was reported by the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service today. However, some western, central and southern areas are said to be badly in need of rain and crops are deteriorating.

The area around Richmond has been hardest hit by the continued hot dry weather. During the first three weeks of August, Richmond recorded only .2 of an inch of rain. A hard shower hit the city last night.

The crop reporting service said early corn is maturing rapidly. Yields are expected to be good except in the driest areas where the late corn crop is threatened with failure. Lat hay crops too are yielding well except in the central and eastern areas where Lespedeza will be a failure unless soon watered.

Pastures are said to be unusually good in the west and southwest, and also in most northern areas. In some areas the hot dry weather has damaged the tomacco crop Tomatoes are yielding exceedingly well and in some areas canners have been unable to handle the crop. Peach harvest reached its peak during the week. Apples have had sufficient moisture in most commercial areas.

Strikers Due Back Today At Cleaners

Workers employed at the United Retail Cleaners and Tailors Association plant, 619 Neal pl. nw., are expected to return to work today after a 4½-day work stoppage.

Representatives of the management and union, the Cleaners and Laundry Workers Local 457 (CIO), yesterday reached an agreement under which the company will grant all disputed issues when two other retail firms incorporate them in contracts.

The demands are a two weeks' vacation after five years in addition to the present practice of granting one week after a year's employment, a nd time and a half for overtime after eight hours in any one day.

Jack Kutner, union business agent, said that he is now negotiating contracts with two other retail firms and expects no difficulty in winning acceptance of the proposals.

Attorney Reuben Bonnett represented the management in negotiations.

Householders On Roadway Get Extension

Occupants of about 10 houses in the path of the George Washington Memorial Highway yesterday got a month's grace from National Capital Parks.

The residents previouly had been ordered to vacate their premises by August 31. Because of a delay in the construction of the highway, Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, granted an extension to September 30.

The houses are just north of Key Bridge, along the Potomac River, on the Virginia side.

Root explained that persons living along the Federal property have been aware for a number of years that highway construction was planned there and the houses eventually would be razed. The Government has retained all rights to the land except the "use" privilege, which has now been withdrawn, Root said.

Arlington Gets Ready to List 12,000 Pupils.

A series of preschool meetings of Arlington educators has been set for Monday and Tuesday, in preparation for opening of the 1947-48 school term next Wednesday.

Officials of the county school board, in announcing procedures for registering new and old pupils, said one meeting had been slated for Monday at 3 p. m. at Washington-Lee High School for elementary supervisors and special teachers, while four others had been slated for Tuesday.

Registration of pupils opens at 9 a. m. Wednesday in all elementary schools, and at 9:30 a. m. in the junior and senior high schools. With most of the opening day expected to be devoted to enrollment, classes will get under way on a fulltime basis on Thursday.

School officials pointed out that pupils entering schol for the first time must have reached their sixth birthdays on or before September 1. Vaccination against smallpox also is required.

Attendance is expected to be well beyond the 12,000 figure established last year, a spokesman of the school board said.

Third of U. S. Towns Lack Building Codes

East Liverpool, Ohio (U.P.).—The President's Conference of Fire Prevention recently completed a survey which showed that a third of the towns in the United States have no building codes.

The towns which do have codes, the conference bulletin stated, set them up 20 years ago, and they need "serious revision."

County Seeks State Aid for Needy Patients

Appointment of a Hospital Survey Committee to report on needs and methods of obtaining better State cooperation in the care of county indigent patients was authorized yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

Mayor Caesar L. Aiello of Hyattsville was named chairman of the committee. Other members are Dr. Thomas Christensen of College Park, president of the Prince Georges County Medical Society, and A. K. Beasley, superintendent of the Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly.

William A. Carson, president of the board, said Superintendent Besley had informed him that the problem of securing beds for indigent patients had become acute. More and more, he said, the welfare and health agencies of the county have been calling on the Prince Georges General Hospital for aid. The agencies say they have reached a stalemate in their efforts to obtain beds in State-aided institutions.

State Has $460,000

Besley said approximately 25 per cent of the funds exepended for charity patients in the hospital in the year ending June 30 was for persons certified as indigent or medically indigent by local welfare agencies, despite the fact that the State Department of Public Welfare has available approximately $460,000 for this type of aid.

Also at yesterday's board meeting, the county commissioners granted a petition rezoning lots 31 to 39, block 25, Decatur Heights. Thus, the 5400 block of Annapolis rd., opposite Landover rd. goes from residential A to commercial D as requested by Wade H. and Alice B. Sheriff.

Bituminous treatment of the surfaces of tbout 17 miles of county gravel roads was ordered by the commissioners. Roads to be improved are two sections of Montgomery rd.; Pullman rd.; Mitchellville rd.; Armstrong lane; Possum Pike; Block rd.; Demineau rd.; Pumphrey dr.; Bergdorff rd.; Treasure Cove rd.; Bryan's Point rd.; Brandywine Heights rd.; Aquasco to Charles County line rd.

Order Road Closed

The board ordered old Eastern ave. between the Sligo Mill rd. and the Montgomery County line closed following report of road examiners that it is no longer needed. Eastern ave. constructed by the District of Columbia carries the traffic.

The commissioners approved a request from citizens of 59th ave. between Roanoke and Somerset rds., Special Improvement District No. 4, Riverdale Heights, for construction of a 30-foot concrete street, curb and gutter and 5-foot concrete sidewalks.

Only one bid was received for street improvements for Carmody Hills, Special Improvement District 16. The lone bidder was F. L. Hauser, College Park, who bid $11,295. The offer will be submitted to the citizens of the district for approval.

The commissioners approved appointment of A. J. Pickall of Laurel as a State forest warden.

Air Forces Intend To Change Names Of Enlisted Ranks

By the United Press

If everything goes according to AAF plan there will be no privates, corporals or sergeants in the United States Air Forces by 1949.

Army Air Forces leaders hope to abolish the Army's system of noncommissioned officers and substitute a new one "more fitted to our needs," it was learned yesterday. They hope to designate all enlisted men nad warrant officers as "airmen," "senior airmen" and "chief airmen."

There would be six classes of airmen, ranging in pay from a private5s $75 a month to a technical sergeant's $135 a month. But none would have any more authority than an Army buck private. The difference in pay would result from the difference in technical skills.

Rev. Cornelius Dacey, Pastor Of St. Paul's Church, Dies at 69

The Rev. Cornelius J. Dacey, 69, who was for 20 years pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church at 15th and V sts. nw., died Monday at Doctors Hospital where he had been a patient 11 weeks.

A native of Washington, Father Dacey was the son of Denis and Bridget Donovan Dacey. He was educated at St. Patrick's Parochial School and Gonzaga High School here, St. Charles College in Catonsville, Md., and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore. He was ordained by the late James Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore in 1901.

His first appointment was at St. Joseph's parish in Buckeystown, Md., from 1901 to 1902. He served at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church, Baltimore, until 1911, and then at St. Stephen's, Bradshaw, Md. He was at St. Patrick's in Baltimore from 1924 to 1927, when he came to St. Paul's in Washington.

Rev. Dacey leaves his brother, John Dacey of Washington.

Requiem mass will be said Friday at 10:30 a. m. at St. Paul's. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

G. L. Browning Dies; Member Of Va. Court

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Justice George L. Browning, 80, member of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals and former member of the House of Delegates, died today in a Richmond hospital where he recently underwent a major operation. He had been in ill health for some time.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Orange, with burial in Graham Cemetery.

The death of Justice Browning brought expressions of sorrow from State officials.

Governor Tuck, vacationing at Virginia Beach, praised Justice Browning as "an able and upright" jurist "known and beloved" throughout the State.

"His death,' the Governor said, "is not only a personal loss and source of sorrow to me but to many other Virginians as well. He leaves void a place in the public life of Virginia which will be difficult to fill."

The Governor, who will return to the State Capitol Thursday morning, said he would attend the funeral.

A member of the State's highest tribunal since February 19, 1930, Justice Browning was fourth ranking in seniority among the court's seven justices. He was serving his second 12-year term, having been reelected by the General Assembly in 1940.

Ruddy-faced and white-haired, Justice Browning embodied many of the physical characteristics of the traditional "Old Virginia" jurist. He took an active interest in arguments presented before the bench.

Since the death of his wife, in 1940, he had carried a special load for the Supreme Court. He remained in Richmond much of the time to hear local attorneys present petitions for writs of error, and was a familiar figure in the clerk's office.

In his 17 years on the Supreme Court, he wrote 299 opinions. He was highly regarded among members of the bar for the brevity and conciseness of his opinions, few of which exceeded four or five pages.

His opinions frequently sparkled with dry humor.

Justice Browning was educated at the University of Virginia and Georgetown University. His appointment to the Supreme Court followed a quarter of a century of law practice in Madison and Orange Counties.

He is survived by three sons, Armistead Willis Browning of Chadds Ford, Pa.; Dr. George L. Browning, 2d, of Boston, Mass, and Francis H. Browning of Seaford, Del.; a stepdaughter, a stepson and several grandchildren.

Husband Hunters Note—

Treasury Does Spadework For the Gals

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

RATHER UNEXPECTEDLY Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has lent a helping hand to matrimonially minded females—ladies wishing to snag rich husbands without too much preliminary spadework. Secretary S. published a partial list of those who, by their own efforts, garnered an annual $100,000 or more from grateful corporations. There were 77 lucky individuals and of these two (Rita Hayworth and Virginia Van Upp) were women. The three male topnotchers, two well above the half million mark, represented, respectively in order of wealth, movies, racing, newspaper ownership. None of the remaining 74 earned over a quarter million.

Out of this batch well over a third (30) are department store executives; five are moving picture businessmen, three work for the A. & P., three sell grain, while cigarettes and textiles each have two, liquor, paint and watches one apiece. The rest are divided between miscellaneous machinery outfits. The only intriguing money maker, at least to this department, is a certain J. C. Fox, whose efforts forward an organization prettily titled, Blue Bell, Inc. Curiously disproportionate, three concerns seem to have a monopoly on jumbo salaries. Six gents in the May Department Stores are in the big time with the Allied Stores trailing only one behind. Columbia Pictures leads the movie field with, besides La Hayworth and Miss Van Upp, four 100,000 plusers.

Now the lesson in these somewhat arid statistics for girls who want to wear diamonds is—avoid brokers, bankers and such formerly fashionable ilk, keep away from the glamour professions, pick your man from a department store.

"A Man of Conscience" Comes to Call

AMONG THE flurry of foreign oddities swept to these shores is a distinguished gentleman who numbers among his official duties that of "Keeper of the King's Conscience." He's Viscount William Allen Jowitt, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. Head of his country's legal profession, he'll address bar associations here and in Canada. Around the seventh century the current Lord Chancellor picked up this peculiar task because, as a clergyman, he could read while the King had no inclination to bother with such sissy goings-on. The L. C. read all manuscripts, saw to it nothing was put over on his liege lord. Besides acting as royal watchdog he was assigned the unenviable job of being general guardian of all infants, idiots and lunatics in the country!

On the more constructive side Lord Jowitt presides over the House of Lords, functioning more or less like our Speaker of the House. Unlike our Speaker, he is entitled to some nice perquisites, a fine apartment and later, a pension. Lord Jowitt dresses for his official chores in a robe and full bottomed wig. The full bottomed wig reaches to his shoulders and is used mostly for an effective entry. When His Lordship really rolls up his sleeves he switches to a shorter number which touches the eartip.

Viscount Jowitt, we suspect, with a touch of whimsey, says that his favorite recreation is building sand castles for children. If this is so we hope that Mrs. Perle Mesta traps him for a Newport weekend. We can imagine nothing more diverting than seeing the Lord Chancellor, Chief Justice Vinson, Secretary Anderson and others of Mrs. Mesta's swell guest roster, digging on Bailey's Beach and keeping tabs on each others' consciences!

The Career Girls Score

LATEST ON THE divorce agenda is Struve Hensel, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Struve, hard working and smart, bolstered the Navy Department for several wartime years, ended his Government career as one of Jim Forrestal's assistants. Over a year ago he returned to New York and a lucrative private law practice. His wife is the former Edith Wyckoff of Ithaca, N. Y., and the new Mrs. Hensel-to-be is a most successful business woman. The career gals seem to be coming into their own these days and nicely overcoming the hazard of housewifely femininity. For in the State Department's brilliant Assistant Secretary Willard Thorp, shortly after his divorce, married an equally able lady who's an expert in labor relations.

Dutch Embassy's New Chatelaine Is Charming Mme. van Kleffens

By Elizabeth Maguire

MME. VAN KLEFFENS

The youngest wife ever of a Dutch Foreign Minister, Mme. van Kleffens is now chatelaine of the Netherlands Embassy in Washington. She was just 26 when her husband was appointed Foreign Minister at the outbreak of the war, and they spent the following year in London.

Mme. van Kleffens is slim, charming and attractive looking. Her great companion is a miniature French poodle named Jansen. Nearly 2, Jansen has crossed the ocean three times cabin class. He behaves himself well at sea and seems to enjoy travel. He'll do tricks if he's given something for it. Otherwise, it's no go.

Jansen abandoned the puppy clip about a year ago, and now favors the royal Dutch bob. When you first approach him he barks furiously and frantically, but he melts at a smile, and at once becomes your friend for life.

Saved From Germans

The miniature poodle is not the only object d'art at the Embassy residence. Mme. van Kleffens has enhanced her surroundings with pieces which she has brought with her from Holland. There are little gray French chairs covered in embroidered gray silk, and a Louis Seize clock of white marble with a pendant as fragile as an earring. A handsome armchair covered in emerald green was rescued from the loot of the late Seyss Inquarht, one-time Reich Commissar of the Netherlands. The silver carried off in the same haul has never been retrieved.

There are two chairs belonging to the van Kleffens which have no cushions. The Germans, the Ambassadress explained, had a strange fondness for cushions and pillows, and always stripped the furniture bare.

Mme. van Kleffens' mother was an American and her father Dutch, and she was schooled in Paris and Switzerland. Her marriage to Eelco van Kleffens took place in Holland in 1935.

This is their first foreign post at an embassy. In 1939 Dr. van Kleffens was appointed Minister to Switzerland, but never reached Berne, as the appointment lasted but 10 days. "We were shutting the last bag, when he became Foreign Minister," his wife laughed.

Tells of Needs

Having left Holland just a month ago, Mme. van Kleffens can give a good thumb sketch of conditions today. Sweden, Switzerland and Belgium are the best off materially, she says. Belgium is not as badly in debt as other countries because she had the Congo to draw on all through the war.

Holland, she went on to say, suffers from lack of foreign exchange. Not being able to purchase anything outside of the country—not even a subscription to a magazine—the people are greedy for any contact with the outside world. A book or a magazine from the United States is a prized possession.

The people still need clothing, especially lingerie, which seems to be harder to obtain than other types of apparel.

British Students Entertained on Visit Here

Four students from Great Britain are here as exchange guests of the English Speaking Union. They are Richard King of Perse School, Cambridge; Colin Porteous of Birkenhead School in Cheshire; David Lineham of Kings Wood School, Bath; and John Boyd of Glasgow Academy, Glasgow.

They have visited Andover Academy in Andover, Mass., and in Williamsburg, Va. They are here as house guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris. Monday the president of the English Speaking Union, Charles S. Dewey, and Mrs. Dewey entertained for them at a dinner, and last evening they were taken out to the Chevy Chase Club by John Folger for dinner and a swim.

The boys are age 17 or 18. One is Irish, one a Scotsman and two are English. They are amazed at American food, as they have been on wartime rations since they were children. The highlight of their visit came when they were invited to tea at the British Embassy Monday afternoon. They met Lady Inverchapel, and said they were charmed.

Wagners on New England Honeymoon

Richard E. Wagner and his bride, the former Miss Elise Mangum, are on a wedding trip to New England following their marriage at 8 last evening at Brookland Baptist Church. Mrs. Wagner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webb L. Mangum of Washington, and Mr. Wagner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Earl Wagner, also of this city.

Dr. M. Chanler Stith, executive secretary of the District Baptist Convention, read the marriage esrvice.

Mr. Mangum gave his daughter in marriage. She wore white satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline with net insertion, and made with a long train. Her veil fell from a Juliet cap embroidered with seed pearls and she carried a Bible trimmed with an orchid.

Mrs. Jeanette Letner, the matron of honor and Miss Webblyn Mangum, the bride's sister, who was maid of honor, wore pink and aqua frosted sheer and carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Robert Wagner was best man for his brother and John L. Cook, Kenneth Grafton and Colin Ritter were ushers.

Tillotson—Adrian

In Honolulu at the First Methodist Church, Miss Adria Adrian of Tilden Gardens, Washington, was married July 12 to Freeman Hunter Tillotson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adrian of Circle, Mont., and Mr. Tillotson is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Tillotson of Kansas City, Mo. He is now special trade representative for the Government in the Pacific Ocean area and has his headquarters in Guam.

The bride wore white satin with a veil of illusion made with inserts of rare lace. She carried a bouquet of orchids which had been flown from Hilo and were arranged rception at the Royal Hawaiian flower of pikake.

Miss Virginia Langstroth of Honolulu and New York, attended the bride, and Comdr. Philip A. Walker, USN, was best man. A ceception at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel followed the wedding.

The bride was graduated from University of Montana and did graduate work at Universities of California and Oregon. The couple will live in Washington when Mr. Tillotson's assignment in the Pacific is completed.

Breakfast Party

Mrs. Melvin D. Smith is having friends in for breakfast this morning to listen to a radio program over Station WOL. Fred E. Malley, jr., director of the Trini- viewed by Marion Saxton. Needs dad Boys Club, will be interfor increased membership will be discussed.

De Lawters To Reside Here After Trip

Miss Alina Wanda Michalski, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Michalski and the late Dr. Michalski of Newark and Washington, was married Sunday to Paul E. DeLawter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. DeLawter of this city.

The double-ring ceremony was at 6 p. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, with Dr. Oscar deWolf Randolph officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Joseph V. Michalski of Atlanta, Ga., wore white satin with a finger-tip veil of illusion held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book covered with gardenias and stephanotis.

The attendants, Mrs. William F. Hoffmann, jr., of Washington, and Miss Janet S. Wilk of Newark, wore white and carried American beauty roses. Paul H. DeLawter was best man for his son and George Magee of Arlington, Va., and Arnold Bandler of Washington were ushers.

A reception was held afterward at the Hay-Adams House.

The bride is descended on her mother's side from Gen. Joseph Chlopicki, a Polish revolutionary hero. She attended Duke University. The bridegroom, who is attending Columbia Institute of Technology, served in the Navy during the war.

After a trip to the Shenandoah Valley the couple will live in Washington.

Louisiana Visitors

John Hayes Crichton of Minden, La., and his bride, the former Miss Lillian Glassell of Shreveport, La., are spending several days at the Statler on an Eastern honeymoon. Mr. Crichton, who is now studying law at Louisiana State University, served as aide to Gen. Walter Krueger of the Sixth Army during the war.

Garver–Rogers Nuptials to Be At All Souls

Miss Nancy Sibley Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Rogers of Chevy Chase, Md., and Reed Eldon Garver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Garver of Washington, will be married at 4 today at All Souls Church. The Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips will officiate.

To be given in marriage by her father, the bride will wear chiffon and a finger-tip veil. Her ssiters, Mrs. Ernest D. Michael, jr., in pale rose chiffon, and Miss Marion M. Rogers, in aqua chiffon, will be attendants. They will carry old-fashioned bouquets.

Mr. Garver will have his father as best man and ushers will be Alfred R. Becker, jr., of Montclair, N. J.; Ferdinand C. Bell, jr., of Clearfeld, Pa.; Edward R. Pierce, jr., of Washington, and David L. Rogers, the bride's brother.

A reception will follow at the Shoreham. Then the couple will leave for a stay in New England, after which they will go to Ann Arbor, Mich.

The bridegroom served 3½ years with the Eighty-ninth Infantry Division and was commissioned a first lieutenant. He is now a graduate student in chemical engineering at University of Michigan. The bride attended Oberlin College.

WAC Anniversary

To celebrate the fifth anniversary of the first WAC officers class, there will be an informal dinner party in the Cabinet Room of the Willard Hotel at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. All members of the first class in the vicinity are invited. Reservations may be made through Maj. Patty Treadwell at the War Department.

After-Theater Party Is Given For Mrs. Battille

An after-theater surprise party was given last evening for Mrs. Sarah Goodloe Battille, sister of Mrs. Paul Porter. The party, which was complete with birthday cake, was held at the Commonwealth Farm. Cohostesses were Miss Paula Lawrence, Miss Uta Hagen and Miss Irina Baronova—current guest stars in "Dark Eyes" at the Olney Summer Theater.

The Counselor of the Canadian Embassy and Mrs. Stone attended the fete, and also Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter and their daughter, Betsy. Others included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dudley and John Allison.

Guests of Smiths

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith have as their guests, Mrs. Julia Burchfield and Mrs. Buell Miller of Jenkintown, Pa. A series of parties are planned for the visitors. Mrs. Donald Lathron of Wood Acres, Md., entertained at dinner Friday and Mr. and Mrs. Smith gave a dinner party Monday night.

Brownells Return

Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick Brownell, jr., have returned from a three-week vacation at Bethany Beach, Del.

Because of His Boastful Drinking, Which Makes Her Fear He's an Alcoholic, Girl Breaks With Lad She Loves, But She Still Wants to Help Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 19 years old and very much in love with a young man who is 21. After he left the service he worked for a few months, then quit his job. For the last three months he has done nothing but loaf, but now he says he's starting a new job next week.

My real concern is about his drinking, however. He drinks excessively at intervals. I've seen him feeling "high" on two occasions only, but he constantly talks about how drunk he got last night or last week and his boy friends all tell me he drinks like a fish. Also, I do see him entering taverns frequently.

So for this reason, because I am afraid he is an alcoholic, I broke with him a year ago. Since then I've tried desperately hard to forget him and I act very casual when we meet. I don't give the slightest hint that I still care; he certainly must think I don't love him any more,—but I can't stop, no matter what.

Can a person 21 be an alcoholic at such an early age? My hopes were raised recently when a friend remarked that he probably can't be "too far gone" at his age. If you agree, please advise me how I can help him to discontinue these bad habits. And tell me, am I right not to be his girl any more, even though I still love him?

Lad's Alcoholic,
Though Only 21

DEAR D. N.: When a person's compulsion to drink has become stronger than his power to resist and his excessive use of alcohol consists in (1) routine heavy drinking or (2) periodic sprees, he is an alcoholic, regardless of his age and regardless of the reasons he gives for drinking.

Thus your former beau who drinks like a fish and boasts about it—for lack of other claims to distinction—is at this time an alcoholic, though only 21.

As for the hopeful thought that he probably can't be too far gone at his age: Superficially it might seem that the younger the alcoholic, the better his chances of throwing off the habit before it "throws" him.

However, the experience of Alcoholics Anonymous and other therapists who work with drink addicts has been that, in general, they scoff at the idea of being drink-enslaved or needing help until they've hit bottom in a complete panic state—after exhausting the indulgence and alienating the trust of relatives, old friends and one-time employers.

The average constitution can take a lot of punishment before it cracks. Hence an able bodied young alcoholic, say 21, might go on hitting the bottle for years before the zero hour of abject nervous terror "got" him,—that "last extremity" which, from the AA viewpoint, may be translated into God's opportunity to put things right: provided the addict is humbly willing to do his part.

God Called Only
Help of Drunkard

ALCOHOLICS Anonymous, then in its infancy, was introduced to this column nine years ago by a psychiatrist who remarked—when asked for the latest scientific slant on alcoholism—"Only God can help a drunkard; and only on condition that he wants to be helped." Then he told of the A.A. movement and, thanks to his good offices, the AA followed through with an exposition of its philosophy and beginning success story.

The fine work of this group, now international in scope, has done more in its short history to control or cure dipsomania than all previous efforts of medicine, psychiatry, religious evangelists and white ribbon crusaders combined—according to disinterested expert testimony.

Thus the AA chapter nearest him would be the logical source of help for this lad—when, as, and if he's ready to admit his need of help. The address may be had from The Alcoholics Foundation, P. O. Box 459, Grand Central Annex, New York City. The most you can do is to place this information in his hands, if you're willing to brave the risk of drawing a cynical laugh; and you're wise indeed to avoid romantic involvement with a compulsive drinker.

M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Old Pillows Not Best

Grandmother's carved beds and her patchwork quilts are useful antiques—but not her feather pillows. The feathers in these old pillows, plucked years ago for some bride, are most likely to be broken now. And broken feathers make a droopy pillow unable to give buoyant support to your head and shoulders.

Pillow fights also take a lot out of pillows. After several lively youngsters wham themselves with the pillows the feathers are probably broken and spilled out. If you want to keep your pillows in good condition better give the boys some old ones for their battles and make sure your good ones are not on the combat line.

Stop Being a Wallflower

You see them at every dance and party—the forlorn girls who sit on the sidelines and wonder why they aren't more popular. The answer's obvious—their dancing is at fault. A pity, when it's so easy to learn the latest steps by home practice.

The basic rumba step, for instance, is merely a box step done in 4/4 time. Try it before a full-length mirror, swaying your hips subtly—avoiding any movement of upper body. On 1—Left foot to side. AND—Close with right. 2—Forward on left. Pause. 3—Right foot to side, AND—Close with left. 4—Forward (or back) on right. Pause.

Soon you progress to tricky turns and breaks, and before you know it, you're rumba-ing with the best of them.

Send 25c (coin) for "How to Do the Latest Dance Steps" to The Washington Post, Reader Service, 243 West 17 st.,New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 37.

Unspoiling 'Cry Baby' Takes Time

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The healthy, satisfied baby does not need constant attention from relatives and friends in order to be happy. Even if a baby has had more attention than is really necessary, because there have been too many adults to play nursemaid to him, htere still will be times when he will be content to be left alone and to occupy himself with his toys.

When a baby has become so cantankerous that it demands the time of some adult to keep him from crying, the answer lies elsewhere. Obviously, there must have been months of his life when his diet was deficient. There must have been a lack of vitamin C (orange or tomato juice or a synthetic pill)—or, there must have been a lack of vitamin D, so that his nerves and body were made irritable by this deficiency.

Martyr to Baby

Mrs. E. H., who writes too lengthy a letter to print, says that she has become a martyr to the baby. They live in part of a home and their two landladies are elderly and nervous and cannot bear to hear the baby cry.

She feels that because the baby had too much attention in infancy that he is now completely spoiled. She is waiting for a new baby and he thinks she ought to discipline his one so that he won't demand so much attention. But how can she when she can't allow him to cry?

I am not one who has much faith in the discipline of crying. If the baby has become too dependent upon you then the dependency should be tapered off. This can be done gradually, not abruptly. Play with him some of the time, then go into another room, sing talk to him, but do not hold him. Come to him often and smile at and notice him, making him feel your loving presence, but expect him to play with his toys.

Better See Doctor

Have you had him checked recently by a pediatrician? You should. Deficiencies in a child's diet lead to constant irritability, inability to sleep and such behavior inspires you to give him excessive attention. Get his diet as perfect as you can make it, see that he has sunshine and fresh air daily and the essential vitamins. I cannot but feel that earnest attention to these will result in so contented a baby that he will not need your constant services.

Rings on Their Fingers

AT A DANCE at The Orchard in Lenox, Mass., last evening, Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Rollins announced the engagement of Mrs. Rollin's daughter, Miss Ann Gaddis Snow, to William H. Woodin 3d. Mr. Woodin is the son of Mrs. Melville Hanna Haskell of Tucson, Ariz., and William H. Woodin, jr., of Atherton, Calif., and is a grandson of the late William H. Woodin, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Woodin.

The bride-elect is a senior at Wellesley. She attended the Potter School in Tucson and the Katharine Branson School in Ross, Calif. Her father is John B. Snow of Beaufort, S. C.

Mr. Woodin attended the Thatcher School at Ojai, Calif., and the University of Arizona. During the war he was overseas with the American Field Service in Burma and India.

Indian Cup Team To Play Friday

At the Army-Navy Country Club Friday afternoon, the Indian Davis Cup team will play at 5 o'clock. The team is composed of Miss Man Mohan, Miss Sumant Misra and Miss Janished Mehta. Members of the Indian Embassy staff and other diplomats are expected to attend.

Admission is by invitation. The reception committee will include Mrs. John Hoover, Mrs. R. R. Waller, Mrs. William H. Arnold, Mrs. Frank Erskine, Mrs. W. D. Luplow and Mrs. Alphonso Smith.

Robt. H. Taylor and Miss Haynes Marry

Miss Catherine Eleanor Haynes, daughter of Mrs. Gracia F. Haynes of Washington and Mitchell, S. Dak., became the bride of Robert Herbert Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Taylor of Grandview, Mo., at noon August 23 at the Little Church of Fort Lincoln. The Rev. Roy H. Stetler, jr., officiated.

The bride wore white marquisette with a finger-tip veil and carried white roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Burch Rivers, who wore aqua net and carried yellow roses. William Burch Rivers and Donald A. Knowles attended the bridegroom.

MRS. ROBERT H. TAYLOR
... Marries in marquisette

Mrs. Taylor, until recently an employe of the Strategic Air Command, is a former student of Dakota Wesleyan University, Mitchell, S Dak., and served in the Women's Reserve of the United States Marine Corps.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio., and is doing graduate work at University of Kansas City. He served as a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps.

After a reception held at Hotel 2400 the couple left by plane for Chicago where they will spend their honeymoon.

To Tour West

Miss Patsy Ridgeway, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank T. Ridgeway, of Herndon, Va. has gone to Chicago to join a party that will tour New Mexico, the Grand Canyon, California and other places of interest on the West Coast. On her return she will visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lake, in Chicago.

Orange Cream For Hot Days

Ice cream is the item that cops the popularity prize on the August menu! Here's a recipe for a smooth orange cream that you can make right in your own refrigerator:

1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon water
1 cup evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
Juice of 2 oranges, strained
Grated rind of 2 oranges
Juice of ½ lemon, strained
½ cup rich milk

Beat egg yolk with water until well mixed. Cook with the evaporated milk and salt in double boiler until the liquid films a metal spoon. Cool. Add remaining ingredients. Freeze until firm. This recipe makes about 1½ pints.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I remove rubbing alcohol stains from my mahogany table? J. M. L.

Mix rottenstone or powdered pumice and lemon oil to a creamy paste. (These materials can be obtained in most paint stores and some drug stores.) Apply with a soft cloth, rubbing with a circular motion. Wipe up immediately with a cloth dampened with lemon oil. Wipe dry with a soft clean cloth, then rub with a flannel polishing cloth. If this treatment doesn't help, refinishing may be necessary.

Do peaches canned by the open kettle method and put up in two-piece Mason jars need to be processed after jars are filled? K. A. C.

In open kettle canning, food is cooked in an ordinary kettle, then packed into hot jars and sealed without processing. Canning specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture do not recommend this type of canning, however. They say that when food is transferred from kettle to jar, bacteria sometimes get in and cause the food to spoil. So, even if you cook peaches open kettle style before packing them, it's a good idea to process them too.

Is it safe to use an enameled coffee pot after some of the enamel has chipped off inside? T. Q.

No; you may find yourself gulping a few slivers of glass along with your morning coffee. Enamel is a form of glass, and once there's a chipped place, there's danger of more breaking off. Also, the bare spot may rust.

Could you suggest a remedy for weevils? Flours, crackers, and nuts become infested with them in our pantry. C. G.

Remove everything from the shelves or cabinets and thoroughly clean them. Destroy badly infested food and salvage slightly infested packages of food by setting them well separated in the oven and heating them through to a temperature of 135° F. for 30 to 60 minutes. Destroy weevils that may be crawling on shelves by spraying thoroughly with 5 per cent DDT solution. Pay particular attention to the cracks. The spray will dry and leave crystals of DDT, which retain the power to destroy insects crawling about among food packages. Repeat this treatment about once a month to keep weevils away. Never put spray directly on or into food packages.

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

It's amazing how many stains, light surface burns, and minor scratches can be eradicated from polished wood surfaces by rubbing with powdered pumice and linseed oil. Both can be purchased in paint stores and some drug stores. Mix them together in a paste, or dip your cloth first in the oil, then in pumice. It's usually better to rub with the grain of the wood

How can I remove the gray line from the collar of a white shirt? How can this be prevented in future washing? B. D. H.

Soak the shirt, then scrub the collar with a small brush and plenty of soapsuds to get rid of the gray line. Don't scrub too hard and damage the fabric. In the future, if you use a washing machine, rub collars and other especially dirty areas with a wet bar of soap before putting them into the washer.

How can a white milan hat be cleaned? What is the best method of storing it so that it will not become yellow? C. H. F.

To clean a milan hat, brush briskly with a stiff brush and rub with a rag or tissue paper moistened with wood alcohol. This may remove the gloss from the straw, but it can be restored with a coat of millinery sizing or thin shellac. Clean the hat before storing and put it away in a box in a fairly cool, fairly dry place. There's no guarantee against it's yellowing; that depends in large part on the straw itself. But proper storage will keep it in good condition.

I have a light blue rayon jersey dress which has been stained by perspiration. Is there any way to remove the stain without ruining the rest of the dress? S. A. P.

Perspiration stains are often impossible to remove. However, if it's a fresh stain, dampen it with water and hold it over the fumes from an open ammonia bottle. If it's an old stain, sponge sparingly with vinegar, then rinse by sponging with clear water.

(1) I've noticed that all my summer straw and marquisette hats seem to get smaller during the winter when I have put them away. Can you tell me how to remedy this and keep them from shrinking? (2) I have purchased some cheap prints of Rembrandt portraits which I would like to shellac and frame. Please tell me how to go about it and what type of shellac to use.

1. Stuff the crowns of your hats with tissue paper when you put them away to help hold their shape. Put them in hat boxes, each in a separate box, if possible, so brims will not be warped. Store them in a moderately cool, fairly dry place. Excessive dryness or dampness during the long winter months could be responsible for their shrinking. Be careful not to place them near heating pipes.

2. Mount the prints first on cardboard, beaver board, or pressed wood. Use good quality library paste and spread it smoothly on the back of the print, being careful not to include any lumps. Then lay the picture carefully on the board, paste-side down, and roll it down smoothly with a rolling pin. Lay another board and several books on top to hold it firmly in place until it dries. A special picture lacquer (sold in paint stores) can be used to cover and preserve the print. Ready-made frames can be used, or a frame can be made at home with picture molding. Directions for frame-making can be found in "The Complete Home Encyclopedia," by Dorothy Pace (published by Caxton House), or in Edward Landon's "Picture Framing" (published by the American Artists Group, Inc.) These books may be obtained in libraries or book shops.

I have a massive electric phonograph cabinet which seems to be finished in first-quality veneer. Some time ago, the piece was refinished by stripping off all the old veneer, then applying coat after coat of paste wax directly over the bare wood. This finish is not durable and is easily stained. How can I completely remove the wax coating so that a varnish finish will adhere to the wood? J. J. K.

Use one of the wax-removing preparations sold by local paint and department stores to remove all the wax from the cabinet. Then wash off the remover with water and soapsuds, rinse by sponging with clear water, and wipe with a dry cloth. Let the veneer dry throughly before applying the varnish.

Will you please tell me how to remove from a pillow case stains made by a salve I used for sunburn? I have tried hot water and soapsuds but there are still traces of stain.

Stains made by the salve you mention usually come out when the article is washed in hot water and soap. However, there may be a residue of grease left by the preparation. Sponge with dry-cleaning fluid, then wash the cases again thoroughly, using a laundry bleach in the rinse water.

1. How can I clean and restore two old picture frames, one covered with gold leaf, the other gilded and "antiqued?" Both are specked with little black spots and streaked with dust. I have washed them with soap and water with no results.

2. I have an old table of pine which has been sanded down to the raw white wood. How can I make it the warm golden color of my old pine floors? I do not want a shiny varnish finish, but a waxy glow. H. W. C.

1. If the golf leaf frame is a fine one, it would be better to have it cleaned professionally. You should be able to clean the gilt frame satisfactorily at home with a solution made of equal parts of ammonia and denatured alcohol. Apply it to a small area of the frame with the least possible pressure. Use a dry pad to take up the soil, then proceed to the next area. Once or twice a year, pat a little lemon oil gently on the gilt to keep it from drying and cracking. Never rub.

2. Apparently there ar no pine stains on the market. However, there are stains in various tones of reddish brown. If you can carry a mental picture of the color you want (or a sliver of pine of the right shade) to a paint store, you should be able to find—or have mixed—a match for it.

With Mary Harris

CARL SANDBURG, great poet and No. 1 Lincoln historian, was the target of all eyes recently at Olmsted's. The gray-haired, bow-tied literary celeb set a pattern of kindliness for VIPs. He gave many autographs, also signed Olmsted's guest book and a menu for his Swedish waiter. To cap it all, he sang a little Swedish song, shook hands all round, left everybody feeling mighty happy . . . Some sightseeing Swedish sailors came in the next evening, were pleased and astonished to be able to speak their native tongue to the aforesaid Swedish waiter. Altogether, it was a great week for shouting "Skoal!" at Olmsted's

The Lotus will present a fresh and bright new revue tomorrow night. Top acts will be the Michaels, ballroom dancers; Russ Miller and his dogs, singing emcee Buddy Shaner, tap ballerina Nancy Bell. Al Sakol and his band are celebrating their first Lotus anniversary.

NEW SHERATON MANAGER. Raymond E. Bruen, veteran hotel man, who began his career at the Waldorf in 1917, has been named general manager of the Sheraton Hotel. Mr. Bruen has occupied managerial posts at New York's Lincoln, Taft and Piccadilly Hotels and for some years was assistant to Vice President Fred Dreier of the Dreier hotel chain.

WONDERFUL MUSIC was heard at the parties given by bandleaders Grisha Gregory of the Balalaika and Bob Knight of the Lounge Riviera. Arthur Tracy, radio's famed "Street Singer," sang at Bob's party, was applauded frantically. He'll sail for England next week, is due to make a flock of Decca platters. Among the many radio notables at Bob's party were Art Brown, Bill Hunnicutt and Marian Sexton. A couple of hundred people must have dropped in to congratulate Bob on his "Man Behind the Band" anniversary . . . Grisha's party was given aboard a small yacht on the Potomac. All of the Balalaika band was on hand plus some fine musicians and singers from Baltimore. Their choruses and dance music were probably the finest ever wafted over the Potomac. The guests were in great fettle. One stunning blonde danced the gazotsky wearing French heels! Maestro Grisha lanced the polka like crazy, swung himself right around a steel stanchion in one inspired moment, then stopped to say, "We're just a bunch of Volga hillbillies!"

P. S. Don't be surprised if you hear scratching sounds over Bill Hunnicutt's radio hour. He kissed a femme friend with poison ivy at the Knight party. Before she had time to warn him.

The new Gold Key Club at 606 E st. ne., is presenting young entertainers and old timers in a Gay 90's setting. There, too, you'll find singing waiters and bartenders, old-fashioned silent movies and community singing. Gosh!

OF MUSICAL LASSES. Marian Kingsley of the King Cole Room sang over the "Dream House" hour last week, will probably be on the air waves frequently . . . Uptown cocktail lounge customers return every night to hear Maurita Gordon's piano teasing. Her music is creamy smooth—but with a tang,—something like an Alexander cocktail . . . Organist Edith Davies of the Neptune Room received a different kind of request lately. Some one called her up from the suburbs, asked her to play a tune for a couple then sitting in the Neptune Room.

70% of Pepco Senior Stock Is Exchanged

By S. Oliver Goodman

Books closed at 3 p. m. yesterday on exchanges of old Potomac Electric Power Co. preferred stock for the new 3.60 per cent preferred shares.

At a late hour last night, clerks at the American Security & Trust Co. were still busy tabulating the last day flood of stock deposits.

A Pepco spokesman estimated at 7 p. m., while the count was still in progress, that "at least 70 per cent" of the old stock had been deposited under the swap offer. This would mean that about 30 per cent of the 140,000 new shares, or 42,000 shares might be available for public offerings.

Local brokers reported that the unsubscribed portion will be snapped up at the $51.75 a share offering price. For the past two weeks brokers have been taking orders for any available stock and they report a heavy oversubscription is assured.

Pepco gave its old 6 per cent and 5½ per cent preferred stockholders the opportunity to exchange for the new 3.60 per cent preferred on the basis of two new shares for one old, plus a $2.90 cash adjustment. Preferred holders electing not to exchange will receive the redemption price of $107 a share on September 2.

The refinancing is part of a simplification of capital structure and will effect a $143,000 annual savings in Pepco dividend requirements.

PURELY LOCAL: Woodward & Lothrop declared regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share on common and $1.75 a share on preferred stock, both payable September 29 to stock of record September 17. . . . Federal Bake Shops voted 10-cent dividend on common, payable September 30 to stock of record September 10. . . . Life insurance firms paid death benefits of $6,820,000 to 6364 District of Columbia policyholders in first six months this year . . . Seaboard Finance Co. netted record $1,281,096 in nine months ended June 30, equal to $1.50 a common share, compared with $708,896 or 80 cents in like 1946 period.

ODD LOTS: Mergenthaler Linotype Co has backlog of orders that in some cases are more than four years old. Orders for parts and new machines are being filled on basis of need, with 24 to 30 months required for delivery of smaller machines. . . . British woolen prices are currently 50 per cent higher than last year and "are completely prohibitive," said Jerome I Udell, president of men's clothing firm, on return from abroad. . . . Business failures in week ended August 21 numbered 59, compared with 78 in preceding week and 17 in comparable 1946 week. . . . New 15-million issue of 20-year 2¾ per cent debentures of Libby, McNeill & Libby offered by group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co., priced at 100.50 per cent and accrued interest. . . . "Operating Under the Taft-Hartley Act," a practical handbook for labor relations and personnel executives, has been prepared by Commerce and Industry Association, Inc., of New York City. . . . Columbia River salmon catch this season the heaviest in five years and record 18½-cent-o-pound prices for chinook salmon lifted fishermen's earnings to new peak of 12 million dollars.

Lighthouse Shows Way at Garden State

Carden State Park(Camden, N. J., Aug. 26 (AP).—Lighthouse, three year old son of Knave High and Lady Bart, racing in Amory Haskell's Woodland Stable's colors won the Tavistock Purse today by a two lengths over Cain Hoy Stable's Noble Creek.

Mrs. Elmer Trueman's Sendoff was third three lengths farther back and 3½ lengths to the good of Shamrock Stable's Little Harp. Lighthouse covered the sx furlongs in 1:11 1/5 to pay $3.20.

Four choices out of the first five races were home first with the Woodland Farm contributing a consecutive double, having registered with picture card in the previous race.

Lighthouse was off in the first flight of the seven-horse field but was outrun to the half-mile pole where Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Danada Capt. held a half-length lead.

The rest of the three year olds were strung out behind the leaders as Tommy Malley began to move with Lighthouse on the outside of Danada Capt. to force to a three-length lead at the top of the stretch. He lengthened his lead through the run to the wire and was being eased up as Noble Creek made up some ground from the eighth pole to the wire.

Cup Draw Due Friday

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—U. S. and Australian Davis Cup officials announced today the draw for opening singles matches in the challenge round at Forest Hills Saturday will be made at 1 p. m. (EDT) Friday at the West Side Tennis Club.

The two non-playing captains, Alrick Man, jr., of the U. S., and Roy Cowling of Australia, also agreed to start the first singles match at 2:15 p. m. Saturday, the doubles at 2:30 p. m. Sunday and the final two singles at 2:15 p. m. Monday.

Both captains accepted a proposal to name their doubles teams one hour after the conclusion of the second singles match Saturday.

Although neither team has announced its singles assignments, Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder were expected to carry the load for the U. S. against Jack Bromwich and Dinny Pails of Australia. Bromwich and Colin Long, top Aussie doubles team, were expected to represent their nation on Sunday. Man will have to decide between a Kramer-Schroeder team or the unit of Gardnar Mulloy and Frank Parker.

Mason and Dixon Point Show Aug. 31

The third annual point show and whippet races of the Mason and Dixon Kennell Club will be staged this Sunday, August 31, near Hagerstown.

A highlight will be the participation of selected Boy Scout troops from Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia, and the parade of champions.

Two Football Leagues Complete

Andy Farkas, president of the Metropolitan Football League, announced last night that both the 160 pound and unlimited class leagues are oversubscribed.

Ten teams in each weight class will be selected this week to form the final makeup of the leagues. Players are needed by teams in each league. Tryouts may be arranged by contacting Ray Henderson at WArfield 4977.

Bierman Named East Team Coach

San Francisco, Aug. 26 (AP).—Bernie Bierman, football coach at University of Minnesota, will be head coach of the East team in the January 1 Shrine football game here, Manager William M. Coffman announced today.

Howie O'Dell, head coach at Yale, is to assist Bierman, and the veteran Andy Kerr, for many years at Colgate, continues in the East team coaching assignment he has handled for years.

Narragansett Opens Despite Nearby Ban

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 26 (AP).—Judge James E. Dooley, track president, announced today Narragansett Park would open its 30-day fall meeting Monday on schedule despite the fact it will have to operate without horses from Rockingham Park in Salem, N. H., where a ban has been placed on shipment of stock because of the outbreak of swamp fever.

Lowman Top Pentathlon Swim Scorer

James Lowman, junior competitor, posted the highest pointed total, 25, yesterday in the annual pentathlon swim at the Boys' Club of Washington pool at 261 7th st. se. He received a trophy as winner in his division.

$30,000 Test Lures Fillies

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP).—A dozen sharp fillies and mares today were named to go to the post in the $30,000 Beverly handicap at Washington Park tomorrow with William Heilis' Miss Kimo bidding to make a clean sweep of Washington's stakes for horses of her sex.

Miss Kimo has won the Artful handicap and Nisty Isle stakes and faces her severest test in tomorrow's mile event because of her top impost of 125 pounds. The handicap will have a gross value of $34,300 with $23,500 going to the winning owner.

The W-L Ranch's sensational filly, Honeymoon, which finished fourth to Cover Up in the Hollywood Gold Cup, will carry 123 pounds.. She holds the world's record of 1:21 4-5 for seven furlongs. Other probably starters are: Canina, Be Faithful, Happy Issue, Letmenow, Devastating, Faithful More; and Trixie, each carrying 113; Blue Grass, Say Blue, and Brownian.

Should the track be off due to rains, Miss Kimo will be the chief beneficiary on the basis of her victories in Arlington Park's Cleopatra Handicap on a slow track under 120 pounds, and the Artful in which she scored in muddy footing at seven furlongs with 119 pounds up. Her best race, however, was over a fast track in the Misty Isle. She carried 122 pounds and set a new track record of 1:22 1/5 for seven furlongs.

Be Faithful won the Beverly last year when it was at a mile and an eighth and established a new track record of 1:49 2/5.

U. S. Caddy Title Golf Opens Today

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 26 (AP).—The boys who tote those bags and hunt those balls start out tomorrow over Ohio State University's long and tricky course in quest of the second Annual National Caddy Golf Championship.

Ninety six youths under 18 years of age, representing 17 States, will fire a 36-hold qualifying round tomorrow, with the low 64 getting into the match play which winds up Sunday.

The winners gets a yard-high trophy, plus a four-year scholarship for a college career, and the runner-up takes down a two-year scholarship at Ohio State University.

N. Y. Giants Buy Poat To Help Mound Corps

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The New York Giants tonight announced the purchase of Ray Poat, 29-year-old righthanded pitcher, from the Baltimore Orioles of the International League to bolster their crippled mound staff.

The six-foot, two-inch, 210-pounder will report to Manager Mel Ott here tomorrow and may see action soon, since Clint Hartung is nursing a sore arm, Mort Cooper is recovering from an operation and Monte Kennedy is out with a broken finger.

Walter Byers Takes Position With Big Time

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Walter Byers, former foreign sports editor of the United Press in New York, has been appointed director of the Western Conference Service Bureau and executive assistant of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, it was announced today.

Byers succeeds William R. Reed, who recently became administrative assistant to Senator Homer Ferguson, Michigan.

Mrs. Barefoot Wins Hopkins Cup Tourney

Mrs. Paul Barefoot won the Hopkins Cup in the Class B handicap play at the Washington Golf and Country Club yesterday by carding a 106-28 for a 78.

Low gross honors were won by Mrs. E. M. Norton with a 98. Second low net went to Mrs. W. E. Baker with a 110-27-83.

Sandlot Football League Needs Teams

There are still openings in both divisions of the Sandlot Football League. A meeting will be held Thursday evening at 8 p. m. at 1846 7th st. for the 140-pound class. The following evening the 160-pound class will hold a meeting at the same time and place. For further information, call Columbia 8586.

N. Y. Bans Salem Horses

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—New York today banned importation into the State of horses that have been infected by or exposed to "swamp fever."

The order followed an outbreak of the infectious anemia at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., where more than 900 thoroughbred race horses were put under quarantine last Saturday. Under the order, persons bringing horses into the State must show a veterinarian's signed statement certifying that the animals are now suffering from and have not been exposed to the disease.

Giants Trip Cubs

Mize Belts 41st, 42d Home Runs

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (AP).—Slugging Johnny Mize of the New York Giants crashed his forty-first and forty-second home runs of the National League campaign today and picked up two singles, including the game-winning infield safety, as the Giants nipped the Chicago Cubs, 7-6.

Rain forced the postponement of the second game in the last of the second.

Mize slammed No. 41 into the right field stands in the second inning with none aboard, and collected No. 42 in the same place with two one the sacks in the third inning to tie the count at four-all.

His homers put his four games and two days ahead of Babe Ruth's 1927 record when the Bambino set his record of 60.

Andy Paiko's two-run homer gave the Cubs a lead in the first, and Bobby Sturgeon's two-run triple added another pair in the third. But Mize was carrying on a one-man campaign and his two circuit blows knotted it. The Cubs came back and held a 6-5 lead going into the last of the ninth.

* * * *

PINCH-HITTER Ernie Lombardi opened the final rally with a single, Lloyd Georhart ran for him and moved up on a sacrifice when Emil Kush took over for Starter Bob Chipman. Gearhart advance don Micky Witek's infield hit and scored on Bobby Thompson's single. Bobby Blattner, running for Witek, took third on the blow and scored the winning run when Mize scratched his fourth hit of the day, an infield single.

Joe Beggs, who relieved Starter Dave Koslo, received credit for the win. Kush was the loser.

7-Cents-an-Hour Wage Boost Won By Paper Workers

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—A joint company and union statement today said a seven-cent hourly wage increase was one of the provisions of an agreement that settled a contract dispute at West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.'s three plants.

The agreement was reached in negotiations at Washington last Thursday and later was ratified by more than 4000 workers at nearby Luke, Md.; Covington, Va., and Williamsburg, Pa. The workers are members of the United Paper Workers of America (CIO).

The joint statement said it was the fifth wage increase since VJ-Day and that workers are now drawing 50 per cent more than at the end of hostilities. The lowest rate at Covington and Luke is $1.04 and at Williamsburg $1.05½.

Snyder to Head Treasury Group In Chest Drive

John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, has accepted chairmanship of the Treasury Department volunteers for the 1948 Community Chest Federation Campaign.

A banker since 1920, Snyder has headed many Federal agencies, including the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, the Federal Loan Administration and Defense Plant Corp. A member of the advisory board of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, Snyder has been Secretary of the Treasury since June, 1946.

The Government unit he is to head is one of nine groups comprising several thousand citizens who are volunteering to raise $3,900,000 for 1948 operations of 125 community services. The federation campaign opens on November 12.

3 From Hopgins Lacrosse Stars

Three members of the 1947 Johns Hopkins University lacrosse team, 1947 National College champion, were named to the All-America team, it was announced yesterday by the U. S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

The three are Lloyd Bunting, Wilson Fewster and Brooke Turnstall.

Navy, Maryland and Johns Hopkins placed two men on the second team; from Maryland, Jiles Freeman and John Ruppersberger; Navy, Lee Chambers and James Carrington; Johns Hopkins, Thomas Gough and Fred Smith. Maryland also had two men on the third team, Art Lundvall and Thomas Hoffecker.

McQuillan Is Dead; Once Series Star

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Hugh McQuillan, 50, former New York Giants pitcher who starred in the 1922 and 1924 World Series, died in Queens General Hospital today of cancer.

McQuillan, who brought $100,000 when he was sold by the Boston Braves to the Giants in July of 1922, was penniless when he died, and had been supported in his six-month hospitalization by the National Cancer Foundation. He never knew the nature of his illness.

Ex-Shepherd Athlete New Berryville Coach

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 26.—Chester Rockwell, graduated at Shepherd College in June, has been named coach and instructor in Berryville (Va.) High School.

He succeeds Coach George Pope and George Grove, Pope's wartime replacement.

$2,212,000 In Md. Phone Work Planned

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—The largest allotment voted recently by the board of directors of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., $2,212,000, will permit expansion of facilities in most parts of Maryland, Vice President August B. Haneke reported.

The company's appropriations now amount to $27,344,000 as part of a five-year expansion and improvement program.

Haneke said $239,000 will be used to place more cables for expansion of toll facilities and rural lines in the areas of Parkton, Delmar - Salisbury, Easton - Tilghman, Denton, Queenstown-Chestertown, Darlington and Indian Head.

Another $61,000 will permit installation of additional equipment in the central offices in Easton, Solomons, Laurel, La Plata and Armiger.

Approximately $900,000 will be spent in the Baltimore area for more central office equipment and expansion of outside plant facilities.

An expenditure of $270,000 will provide equipment for more switchboards and subscriber lines in the Cumberland area. Another $107,000 will be used to expand cables and rural lines in Frostburg.

Haneke said $177,000 will be used to increase long distance circuits over toll linesending at Clear Spring, Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown and between Cumberland and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Glen Burnie will get a new exchange building costing $103,000. A building addition and new office equipment in Essex will cost $114,000 and $200,000 will be spent in Woodland for more cables.

Enterprise In U. S. Called Bar to Soviet

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Declaring that "Moscow sees in the power of American enterprise the most formidable obstacle to the Russian design for world domination," Earl O. Shreve, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, today called for a reduction in taxes to "provide incentive for enterprise."

"Political decisions will be influenced by what happens to business in this country. Russia has been counting on a postwar business depression in this country," he said.

"The dynamics of American enterprise spring from the energies, the initiative and the aspirations of free men and women working in voluntary cooperation for mutual benefit. This is not Moscow's system. Russia courts delay in Europe while awaiting developments in America.

"This is America's opportunity to lead and to show that free men can work as hard in peace as they fought in war. The markets of the world and at home cry hungrily for American goods and food. In this demand there is work for years to come. In the capacity of America to work is the salvation of the war-wrecked world."

Asserting that "what this country needs now is more investment for industrial expansion and less government spending," Shreve said that industrial expansion "depends upon investment incentive and incentive to invest capital depends heavily upon tax rates. The present tax structure is a drag upon the enterprise system. It has taken a lot of drive out of American enterprise."

Brides Who Jam Army's Schedule Must Buy Tickets

The War Department yesterday told war brides who have refused Army-arranged transportation to this country that they will have to pay their own way if they want to join their husbands.

Too many brides, it said, have turned down reservations made for them because it did not suit their convenience.

The department said the program for transporting 1260 women and children still in the United Kingdom is "moving slowly."

Shipping space for 200 British brides and children is available each month on United States ships.

Norfolk Fireman Is Found Dead

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Winfred Lester (Sonny) Powers, Norfolk Naval Station fireman, was found dead in a fresh water sandpipe near the Virginia farm experimental station, in Princess Anne County, shortly before 1 p. m. today.

G. J. Whitehead, of 543 McFarland Road, Oakdale Farms, said Powers telephoned him from the baseball park about 9:30 last night and said he was going to a beach party.

The body was clad in a pair of yellow swimming trunks. Witnesses said there was a laceration about the mouth. Apparently Powers had been dead several hours. County Coroner Dr. H. F. Dormire said the death was still under investigation.

Apache Indian Records Medicine Man Chant

Globe, Ariz., Aug. 26 (AP).—A device of modern civilization is perpetuating the power of Apache Indian medicine men.

An Indian working in a copper mine here found it impossible to return to the reservation for "office visits" to the medicine man.

So he purchased a recording machine and made a record of a particularly potent chant.

Price Is Off In Flue-Cured N. C. Markets

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—With prices off as much as $13 per hundred pounds, sales on the eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets moved into their second day of the 1947 season today.

Meanwhile, sales continued in their fourth week on the 17 markets of the Carolina's border belt where prices yesterday were up slightly for most grades.

The majority of opening day losses on the eastern North Carolina belt were from $5 to $9 from last year's record figures, the Federal and State departments of agriculture reported.

Most sales were confined to low to fine lugs and low cutters with total volume about five million pounds, about half of the 1946 first-day figure.

Best crude nondescript at $1.50 and fair lemon cutters at $58 per hundred represented the extreme averages with most grades selling between $36 and $58. On the border belt, low lemon lugs were off $3 at $31 while low orange primings were up $3 at $26 per hundred.

Leaf Group Formed

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 26 (AP).—Representatives of interested tobacco organizations will meet here September 12 to act on ratification of a proposed charter for a new organization, designed to promote greater sale of tobacco, particularly through development of export trade.

Preliminary plans for the new organization, to be known as the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association, were laid here yesterday by 16 delegates from various tobacco interests.

Represented at yesterday's meeting were organizations covering the eight-State burley belt and associations including other tobacco interests in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina. It was voted also to extend an invitation to Maryland tobacco men to attend the next meeting.

Longshoremen End N. Y. Wildcat Strike

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Four thousand longshoremen ended their six-day "wildcat" strike today but a union official asserted that peace might not last.

A union official who asked that his name be withheld said further trouble would result unless existing problems were settled. He described the mood of the returning workers as "grumbling."

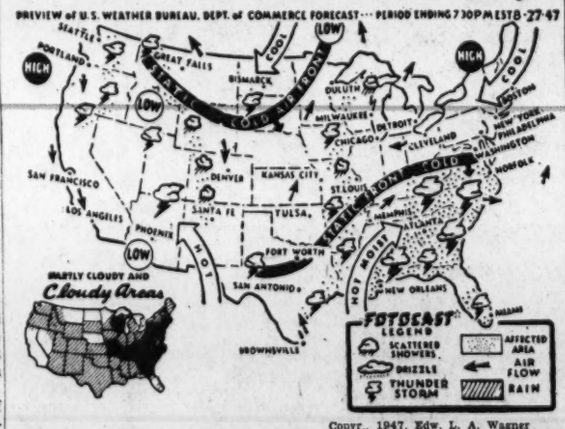
National Weather Summary



Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner

24-HOUR FORECAST—A cool, comfortable respite from the stifling, sticky weather is predicted from New England to the Ohio Valley today. The weather experts point out cool Canadian air is flowing in behind the cold air front from Delaware to Ohio. Today's maximum temperatures will be in the 70s from New England and New York to Michigan and North Dakota.

Forecasters are calling for afternoon temperatures in the 80s in the Ohio Valley, the Central Plains and along the east slopes of the Rockies. Warm southerly winds off the Gulf of Mexico will send the mercury into the sultry 90s from New Mexico to South Carolina and Florida while the "hotbox" of the United States, the Southwest Desert area, can expect the mercury to soar above 100 degrees.

Warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico will rise into tall unstable clouds and release thunderstorms in the affected area over the Gulf States. Some scattered thundershowers are also pictured over the Mississippi Valley, the Rockies and the Northwest. Storms in the Mississippi Valley may bring more local relief to scattered sections of the drought area in the Corn Belt and Central Plains.

Fotocast fans will notice a sharp change in direction of air flow along the front from Delaware to Texas. This front marks the leading edge of cool air pushing down from central Canada and bringing cooler weather. This same cool air will dominate the fotocast during the fall and brings the cold snaps during winter.

Today's maximum temperature forecasts include Nashville, 89; Atlanta and Kansas City, 88; Washington, 86; Philadelphia, 85; New York, 84; St. Louis, Chicago and Pittsburgh, 82; Detroit, 79; Hartford, Albany, Buffalo and Cleveland, 78, and Boston, 77.

Zones Altered For Fairfax Water Tanks

The Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals yesterday approved construction by Fairfax Hydraulics, Inc., of four pumping stations and two storage tanks to furnish wafer to three developments in the eastern part o fthe county.

G. Hubard Massey, consultant engineer for the company, said two wells with a capacity of 400,0000 gallons a day are already servicing Huntington, Fair Haven and Jefferson Manor subdivisions on a temporary basis. The new installations, he said, will include two 100,000 reservoirs and four pumps with a 1500-gallons-per-minute capacity.

Massey estimated that the area has a potential water suply of five million gallons a day. When the three subdivisions are completed they will house about 6000 people.

The board also authorized county construction of a police station and office building at Poag Heights in Mt. Vernon district. Main purpose of the new building will be to save time, said county executive secretary R. M. Loughborough. He pointed out that the only county police statio in the 400-square-mile county is in the town of aFirfax. This means that an officer often has to travel 20 miles to book a prisoner.

Altogether, the board granted eighteen requests denied four and deferred one for further study.

Richmond, Ashland Mills Halt Purchases

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Richmond's Dixie Portland wheat mills and the Ashland, Va., roller mills have placed a brief embargo on purchases on milling wheat to forestall a flooded local wheat market.

W. D. Saunders, secretary of the Richmond Grain Exchange, said the two mills are scheduled to reopen wheat purchases next Tuesday. The shutdowns were deemed advisable, he said, after both mills reported they were swamped by farmers seeking to market their wheat at current high prices.

Last of 'Grand Dames' In Society Hurt in Auto

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Hamilton McKown Twombly, 93, granddaughter of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and believed to be the last of the "grand dames" who ruled society in this country, was seriously injured in an automobile accident here this afternoon.

Her physician said she had suffered fractures of both knees, chest injuries and multiple abrasions and contusions.

RAF Bomber Chief Arrives to Visit AAF

British Air Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders, head of the RAF bomber command, arrived here by plane yesterday for a three-week tour of Army Air Forces installations.

He came at the invitation of Gen. Carl Spaatz, Army Air Forces commander. He will attempt during his visit to familiarize himself with AAF planes and equipment.

Yep—Some Days a Guy Should Stay at Home

B. H. forwards this tale of woe from Buckingham:

"I got to the bus stop Monday just in time to discover that I'd missed my bus.

"After a reasonable interval another one came along, and I climbed aboard. We made ten blocks before it developed fallen arches or something.

"Somebody said the drive shaft had broken. Whatever the trouble, there we were on the sidewalk, clutching our emergency transfers, and waiting for the next bus.

"After a while it arrived, and we piled in. All went well until we got to Fort Meyer—where the accelerator seemed to stick.

"The driver coaxed his stricken behemoth along to Rosslyn, where we again hit the pavement with emergency transfers tightly clasped in our hot little fists.

"When the relief bus to relieve the relief bus pulled up, I discovered that it doesn't pay to be a gentleman and let the women and children get on first.

"I finally got to work in a taxi."

BALL & CHAIN LETTER

Local humorists are kidding the return of chain letters by circulating this one:

"This chain was started in the hopes of bringing happiness to the tired businessman.

"You send no money, receive no money. Simply send a copy of this letter to five male friends, and bundle up your wife and send her to the fellow whose name heads the list.

"When your name works its way to the top, you'll get 15,176 gorgeous girls. But DON'T BREAK THE CHAIN. One man broke it, and got his wife back."

TOO BUSY?

An amazingly large number of Washingtonians end their telephone conversations without employing the word "goodbye."

This is especially true when both parties to the call are men. At the conclusion of their business, they seem to hang up by mutual agreement.

However, it's encouraging to note that most women and tourists still observe the amenities.

IT'S STILL FUNNY

Did you ever hear the oldie about the two boys who had raided a watermelon patch, and were busily engaged in demolishing the loot?

Suddenly one of them stops eating and starts praying to be forgiven for his two transgressions, and the other says, "Two transgressions, Tommy? We've only swiped one watermelon." Whereupon the other kid asks:

"Ain't we gonna take another one?"

SOUND YOUR "A" KALLA

As a result of our recent kidding of Bostonian Joe Mooney, we have a letter from Bostonian Kalla Abrahams, of Maine Hall, Arlington Farms, Va.

Miss Abrahams says that she's sometimes tempted to carry a sharp knife for defense against teasers. But what most folks consider a "Boston accent" is in reality that of a "Down Mainer."

Pursuing the subject of speech characteristics further, Kalla sighs that she's been in Washington six years now—and in that time her accent has moved as far south as Brooklyn.

At that rate, she'll probably be saying "y'all" in a few more years.

PUZZLER

F. D. has a sensible answer to a silly question.

Remember the oldie about "how can you be sure that the light really goes out when you close the refrigerator door?"

It's not a trick question, and you don't need any special equipment or Rube Goldberg devices to solve it. F. D.'s answer is based on cold logic (no pun intended).

Put on your thinking caps, and let me hear from you.

Grin and Bear It

"Why should the Russians distrust our form of government—it isn't as if they were constituents and we made campaign promises to them!"

Leonard Lyons

Homily On an Official's Private Life

New York.—A Government official whose name was involved in the Hughes-Meyer-Brewster controversy thought that his mere attendance at a nightclub party didn't warrant such frontpage publicity. "Oh, well, I learned one thing from this," he sighed. "The private life of a public official has to be not only an open book but also in big type."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: At a preview of the "Body and Soul" movie this week Libby Holman told of the first time she sang "Body and Soul" in "Three's a Crowd." The director of the show suggested that instead of singing the song to the audience Miss Holman should select a member of The Californians Orchestra and address the song to him. Miss Holman studied the musicians who were to be onstage with her for the "Body and Soul" number, and finally selected a handsome, tall saxophone player. Her choice really was a standout—Fred MacMurray.

MOVIES: Gabriel Pascal telephoned from London last night. The reception was poor, and Pascal was asked to spell out one of the words. "Blow-out," said the movie producer. "Blow-out. I'll spell in for you. B, like in 'Best Years of Our Lives;' L, like in 'Life With Father;' O, like in 'Odd Man Out;' W, like in 'Welcome Stranger.' Then come O, like in 'Open City;' U, like in 'Unfaithful' and T, like in 'The Razor's Edge.' That's it 'Blow-out.'"

HELP WANTED: Judy Cook, whose swimming exhibitions at Howard Hughes' parties brought her front-page publicity in the recent Senate investigation, can be seen every day on the beach at Santa Monica. "I get a lot of movie work by coming here to the beach," Miss Cook confided. "All around here are directors, writers, producers and studio officials. I merely put on this bathing suit, walk up and down a bit—and before you know it one of those men always says, 'What a figure.' Then they usually approach me—and I get a few days' work."

ANNIVERSARY DEPARTMENT: When Ernst Lubitsch heard that the John Hustons, Lewis Milestones and Jean Negulescos were having a joint wedding party he said, "My wedding anniversary falls on the same day too" . . . "Are you sure?" Lubitsch was asked . . . "I'm positive. Because on the same day that I was married 12 years ago," said Lubitsch, whose marriage was short-lived, "the Milestones were married. And I distinctly remember telling my wife, 'That'll never last.'"

THEATER DEPARTMENT: Charles MacArthur's first hit play was "Lulu Belle." He wrote it in collaboration with Ned Sheldon. MacArthur disagreed with David Belasco, the producer, about proposed changes in the script. He finally suggested to Sheldon that they have their names removed from the programs, the ads and the billing as authors. "If that's how you feel about it, we'll have our names removed," Sheldon agreed. "Mr. Belasco won't object because it means he won't have to pay us any royalties" "Not pay us? Why not?" asked MacArthur . . . "Because," explained Sheldon, "you cannot be an author on Saturday nights only."

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: Abel Green, the editor of Variety, is in the south of France. Last week he stayed up late at the casino in Juan-Les-Pins. The next morning he asked Mrs. Green about the events the night before, and how was it that his bankroll had been so depleted. "Well, for one thing, you were betting on making the 9 the hard way," she told him—"two 4½'s."

TOURIST FOUND DEAD ON SANTA BONITA BEACH
A body identified as that of J. K. Smith, a Buffalo, N.Y. business leader on vacation here, was found last night on North Beach. He apparently had died of drowning. There were no marks of violence on the body. Smith had told friends he was going out to the "Devil-May-Care," where he is said to have won a large sum recently. But operators of the notorious Gambling Ship denied seeing him last night. Police are

I'M WONDERING— WHO DO I HAVE A DATE WITH THIS EVENING?
NONE OF THAT STUFF, HAL—
JUST BECAUSE DUGAN'S GOOD LOOKING YOU DON'T HAVE T'MAKE PASSES AT HER— ESPECIALLY RIGHT IN FRONT OF ME
I'M TALKING ABOUT YOU, SWEETHEART!
ARE YOU "JOSIE" —OR "MAGGIE"?
HA! THAT!— DIXIE CALLED ME MAGGIE BECAUSE SHE DIDN'T KNOW I TOOK ANOTHER MONICKER—
—DON'T TELL ME THAT MY BEING AN "ALIAS" FRIGHTENS YOU—MAGGIE, AN F.B.I. AGENT, IS CLOSING IN ON THIS KILLER— HAS DIXIE UPSET HER APPLE-CART ???

In Your Hands

My heart is in your loving hands . . . To do with us as you will . . . My only hopes and promises . . . Are those that you fulfill . . . I look to you for courage in . . . Each task I undertake . . . And all my thoughts and actions are . . . For your beloved sake . . . There is no hour long enough . . . When you are at my side . . . But every moment is a song . . . Of happiness and pride . . . To me you are the sun and moon . . . And all the stars that shine . . . And that is why I hope that you . . . Will be forever mine . . . And that is why I love you so . . . With every breath in me . . . And pray that I shall be with you . . . For all eternity.
